ONE DAY'S SCORE IN SEA BATTLE: 63 JAP PLANES

Heroic Deeds of U.S. Flyers Told.

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON.

[Tribune Foreign Correspondent.]

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Her airmen, banding with those of the second carrier in our sea-borne air force, delivered a devastating left hook, followed by a right cross to the Japanese chin, almost at the moment when the Japanese were showering their blitz upon us.

To land these blows the Lexington's pilots and air gunners swept thru almost 200 miles of fierce, continuous air combats. These were proportionately more sanguinary than the dueling I saw over Dover and the Kentish coasts during the now historic Battle of Britain in 1940.

And yet the fog of war, the rain squalls of the hot and muggy Coral sea, and confusions in time and distance—you must remember that in this fight the Japanese and American fleets of ocean vessels never came closer to each other than 180 miles—tend to obscure the true picture of the effectiveness of our dive bombers and torpedo planes.

Opposed by Three Carriers.

The only real records available for the deeds of the day are the reports and memories of the gallant boys who flew away to do their jobs. They say that at least three Japanese aircraft carriers opposed them in the fighting that day with more than 160 Japanese planes. And they say, many of them told me as much within an hour after their return to the Lexington from battle, that they sank one of the carriers and left another totally enveloped in fierce flames. The least damage the second carrier could have suffered would have been a complete gutting.

These stories from the men whose eyes had beheld the Japanese fleet spread out below them as they dived at 250 miles an hour to plant their bombs on Nipponese carrier decks and whose fingers pressed the buttons that sent streams of machine gun bullets toward Zero [naval] fighters indicate to me, at least, that the navy's official communiques are ultraconservative.

The Japanese lost 63 planes that day—about 30 per cent of the total involved in both offensive and defensive actions. We lost 16, three times more than in any other of the Coral sea actions. And of these 11 were from the Lexington's squadrons. The remainder fell from those of the second carrier. The name of the second carrier may not be mentioned, but for the sake of clarity we will call her United States Carrier II.

New Chapter in Navy History.

Certainly there were more aircraft fighting over the Coral sea on that final day of the Lexington's life than in any previous conflict between seaborne air armadas. And the fighting that occurred there probably established a pattern for the brand new chapter in naval history that aviation is opening.

In my previous stories I told of the opening phases of the five day battle of the Coral sea, and how our flyers smashed a Japanese carrier of the Rhyakaku class. Then you were told of the Japanese attack upon the Lexington on the morning of May 8. Yesterday's story told how she sank.

Scouts Contact Japs.

With today's story we return once more to the morning of May 8. You may remember that we had observed the presence of the second Japanese pincer prong on the evening of May 7, when nine Japanese planes tried to alight on the Lexington's deck only to be driven off into rain squalls by gunfire from the rest of our fleet. Their presence warned us that we were in for a desperate battle the next day.

Our scouts were off at dawn. They made contact with the Japanese at 8:10 a. m. on May 8. At 9:30 a. m. our dive bombers and torpedo planes

Two 'Heydrich Slayers' Shot in Prague Church

LONDON, June 18 (AP).—Two men accused as the assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, No. 1 Gestapo executioner known to millions in occupied Europe as "the hangman," were found in a Prague church this morning and "shot while resisting arrest," the Prague radio announced tonight.

The announcement came two hours after the expiration of a German ultimatum to the Czechs to deliver up the assassins of Heydrich or take the consequences.

The British Broadcasting corporation told the Czechs in a broadcast from London tonight that the Nazis had "decided to discover" the assailants of Heydrich after realizing that their threats of heavy reprisals were "in vain."

At least 382 persons, some of them women and girls, have been executed by the Germans in reprisal for the assault on Heydrich and the Nazis have wiped out the village of Lidice, where 350 men of the village were said to have been shot and the women and children transported to other areas.

Shot While Being Arrested.

The official Prague announcement as heard here said the assassins had been dropped by parachute from British planes, and that they had "taken cover in a church and were shot while being arrested."

"At the same time," it was added, "it was possible to dispose of their closest aiders and abettors, all of whom were Czech nationals who had been landed in the protectorate by British planes."

The version broadcast by the Berlin radio said the DNB, German news agency, from Prague carried this official statement from Prague:

"The murderers of Acting Reichsprotector S. S. Upper Group Leader Heydrich were discovered in the early morning hours of June 18 in a Prague church and were shot while resisting arrest.

Wounded in Automobile.

"The result of investigations made by the secret state police in Prague showed that the murderers had been in hiding in the church for some time. All the murderers and the people involved in the murder were Czech nationals who were dropped from British planes over the protectorate with orders to commit murder."

Heydrich, whose 38 years had spanned a turbulent career of bloodshed and hatred, was wounded in an attack on his automobile near Prague on May 27. The Nazis charged that it was an anti-tank bomb of British make that wounded him. Top ranking German doctors strove to save his life. He died in Prague June 4 and the wave of reprisal executions mounted higher.

The Polish government in exile here said that the Germans had arrested 13,500 Polish officers in a series of "special measures of self-protection" resulting from the assassination of Heydrich.

Round Up Paris Youths.

VICHY, France, June 18 (AP)—Paris police last night searched the Champs des Elysées and the Latin Quarter cafés in a roundup of "Zazous," members of the Swing youth group which has emerged from a seemingly innocent faddist movement into an openly Nazi-baiting organization.

Gang Menaces, Robs Family in Evanston

Four masked gunmen late last night invaded the home of Gail Bennett, wholesale jeweler, at 2626 Hartzell street, Evanston, ordered Bennett, his son, Gail Jr., 14 years old, his daughter, Patricia, 13, and his wife, Dorothy, about the building, robbed them of $125 in cash and $1,667 in jewelry, and escaped in an automobile.

Bennett told Evanston police he and his son were in the living room late in the evening when the doorbell rang. His wife and daughter had retired. Bennett went to the door, and two of the men, showing revolvers, pushed their way in.

Ask Him If He's Jeweler.

"You're Bennett, the jeweler, aren't you?" one of the men asked. Bennett admitted he was. Then the other man said, "Well, we're in the right place! Come, give us the jewelry!"

Bennett said he took off a diamond ring and a wrist watch and handed them over.

"Now the wallet!" said the second man; and as he said it two more men, also masked, entered.

Bennett handed over his wallet, containing $125. He told the robbers as he did so that there were some I. O. U.'s in it, which were of no value to them, and these were extracted and laid on the table.

Enter Wife's Bedroom.

"Now upstairs!" said the leader, motioning Bennett and the boy up the stairway ahead of them. They compelled the jeweler to show them into Mrs. Bennett's room and then awakened her.

"This is a stickup and we want the jewelry," they told her; "and don't do any screaming!"

The robbers ordered Mrs. Bennett from bed. As they pulled off all the covers, two rings she had been trying to conceal fell out.

"Ah-ha-a-a-aaa! I knew it was here!" the leader exclaimed as he seized them. Bennett said he heard an automobile start after the men had cut the telephone wires and walked out.

GERMANY TO DEPRIVE 7 MILLION WOMEN OF THEIR TOBACCO RATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 18.—Seven million German women are to be deprived of their scanty tobacco rations under new regulations introduced with the issuing of new smokers' cards. Women under 25 years of age will receive tobacco only when their husbands are serving at the front, and women over 55 will receive tobacco rations only if their husbands or unmarried sons are serving with the German forces.

The announcement in the German press declared that the women's former tobacco allowance will swell rations of men in the service. Lost tobacco cards will not be replaced.

The German government has agreed to deliver to Finland tobacco which the Finnish tobacco monopoly had purchased in Greece before that country was invaded. Baltic states tobacco factories are operating with raw supplies furnished by Germany but their output is being delivered chiefly to the German armies in Russia and only small quantities of cigarets are placed on sale locally.

CARD RATIONING OF COFFEE STILL IN THREAT STAGE

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Card rationing of coffee is unlikely in the immediate future, but grocers will have to keep a close rein on the amounts sold to customers under the quota system, Harold B. Rowe, director of food rationing, indicated today.

He said that because of the ever present possibility of more drastic curtailment of shipping space he could give no assurance that coffee would not be rationed.

The War Production board's coffee quotas for July, soon to be announced, are reported to provide the same amount as in the last two months—75 per cent of 1941 deliveries.

The Office of Price Administration provided today for temporary or permanent increases in retailers' sugar stocks in an effort to insure consumers of ample supplies.

Unions Fatten on Arms Plant Worker Fees

Dixon, Ill., June 18 [Special].—The government's Green river ordnance plant, under construction on a tract of 8,300 acres in Lee county, has uncovered a $75,000 bonanza for the American Federation of Labor unions in Dixon. It is expected to grow into a bigger one.

Until the government moved in and ordered that only men with local union cards could work at the plant, these labor units were so small they could properly be described as anemic. Dixon was an open shop town.

Unions Grow Rapidly.

Now the carpenters union local, which had only 150 members, has 700 new ones who labor at the plant. The Hod Carriers and Common Laborers union had only 42 members. It has expanded until the roll of dues payers exceeds 1,000. The Teamsters union local has put on 350 extra men. Proportionately its increase is not so large as the other locals, as it already had some 400 on its lists.

Initiation fees for each of these unions are $25. Miscellaneous unions, representing several hundred employés at the plant, exact fees up to $150—with the electricians at the top figure.

Observers believe that more than $75,000 already has been collected from about 3,000 newly fledged unionists. Before the plant is finished, it is estimated that the 3,000 will grow to 9,000 and the union take will exceed $200,000.

All Must Pay Super Tax.

There are dues, too. The carpenters pay $2.50 a month. So do the teamsters. The common laborers pay $2 a month. On top of this is a super tax on members of $1 each three months—from all the unions—that must be paid to the newly organized Building Construction Trades Council of Dixon. The city never had one until the bonanza was struck.

The government pays well. High school boys who can grease trucks are drawing up to $62.50 a week.

Green River's site is well guarded and the sentinels will permit no one to apply for a job at the office until he appears with the $25 union card.

PARLEYS BEGUN IMMEDIATELY ON WAR STRATEGY

Briton Flies Over on Surprise Visit.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain tonight were deep in a series of conferences looking forward to the establishment of a second front in Europe.

Winston Churchill.

The conferences were begun shortly after the British leader made a second dramatic appearance in this country. His arrival was announced by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early at 7:30 p. m. Chicago war time.

Conferences Already Begun.

Early declined to say whether the President and the prime minister were together at the time the White House announcement was made, but said that their conferences on the conduct of the war would begin tonight.

No details were given out here as to the time or method of the prime minister's arrival. On his previous visit last December he crossed the ocean on a British battleship and flew into the capital. A statement issued and passed by British censorship in London, however, said the prime minister came by air. As on his last visit he was accompanied by a staff of British experts. They were Gen. Sir Alan William Brook, Maj. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, Brig. Gen. G. M. Stewart, Sir Charles Wilson, John Martin, secretary to Churchill, and Commander C. V. R. Thompson, a secretary and aide to the prime minister.

London Has First Tip.

The first inkling that a news event of major importance to the American and British people was in the making came as usual from London. British newsmen in New York were advised that a momentous story was in the making in Washington and were ordered to the capital.

This hint came in the early afternoon. Queries at the White House and state department brought no confirmation of the fact that a story was impending. Shortly before 8 o'clock newspaper men were called to the White House by Early.

Early's Announcement.

After a short wait the newspaper men were ushered into his office, where he delivered the following statement:

"Mr. Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain, is again in the United States. The prime minister will confer while here with the President and the conferences will begin immediately.

"The subject of the conferences will be, very naturally, the war, conduct of the war, and the winning of the war.

2 WORTHY FOES CLASH IN BATTLE OF READIN', 'RITIN' AND 'RITHMETIC

Atlanta, Ga., June 18 (AP).—Georgia's governor, Eugene Talmadge, reckoned today that New York, with its 13,479,142 population, is "the most illiterate" state in the nation. He had been up there and he knew, he said; "all of them are foreigners up there."

In New York City [population 7,454,995] Mayor Fiorello La Guardia reckoned that "when it comes to illiteracy the distinguished governor of Georgia talks as an expert and speaks for his own class."

"No one," the mayor added, "pays any more attention to Gov. Talmadge here in New York than they do in Georgia."

The governor's reckoning came at a press conference when his attention was called to a state selective service officer's statement that 30,000 Georgians had been rejected because of illiteracy.

DIGEST OF NEWS FROM PRINCIPAL FIGHTING FRONTS

Latest war developments:

The British army in Libya has been split by the axis offensive there, Cairo reported, one force withdrawing to Tobruk to make a stand while the remainder retreated to fortified positions almost on the Egyptian border.

Establishment of a United States army bomber command in China was disclosed by Chungking. Col. Caleb V. Haynes was named chief of the American unit. It was reported that the Japanese are greatly increasing their air power on the Chinese front. On the land front, two Japanese forces advancing along the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway still were 50 miles from a junction.

As the siege of the Crimean port of Sevastopol entered the third week, Russia said its hard-pressed forces were hurling back waves of German attacks. The Germans claimed their forces had captured Maxim Gorky fort of the Sevastopol bastion and were two miles from the entrance to the harbor.

British Believe Drive Against Nazis in Offing

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 19 [Friday].—How the American army can best coöperate with British and dominion forces in establishing a second front in Europe, ways and means of combatting the U-boat campaign, and stepping up allied shipping resources, now admittedly a factor governing the entire allied war strategy, are among the foremost subjects for discussion between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, according to political observers here today.

Roosevelt and the prime minister, it was stated, also will review war developments on all fronts, particularly the middle east, since they met last January, as well as considering plans for the closest coördination of Anglo-American productive and supply resources along the lines of the agreement drawn up in Washington earlier this month.

Heads Personal Staff.

The conviction that the question of offensive action against the Germans will loom large in the talks is strengthened by the fact that Churchill was accompanied by Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff, and Maj. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, head of Churchill's personal staff.

The news that Churchill was meeting Mr. Roosevelt for the third time within 10 months came as a surprise to the political world. The first report, contained in a dispatch from Washington, was too late for publication in early editions.

Nothing was announced officially here regarding Churchill's trip until nearly 2:30 a. m. when a statement was issued from 10 Downing street disclosing merely that he had arrived in the United States.

Demands Report on Libya.

The prime minister's last public statement before his departure was on Sunday when he attended the united nations parade.

The house of commons had no inkling of his visit and only yesterday both Laborite and Conservative members demanded a statement from him on the Libyan situation at the next sitting. Lord Privy Seal Sir Stafford Cripps and Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee have relieved Churchill of all routine business so that his appearances in commons now are rare. Cripps carefully avoided raising the members' suspicious when he replied that he would convey their message to Churchill, but made no promises that they would be granted.

During Churchill's absence Attlee will act as prime minister and preside over the meetings of the war cabinet.

MONARCH FLIES OCEAN ON WAY TO WHITE HOUSE

Dutch Ruler Greeted by Juliana.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 18 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, crossing the ocean and traveling by air for the first time in defiance of wartime hazards, arrived here today from Britain for a visit with her daughter and two grandchildren and a call upon President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Queen Wilhelmina.

It was more as a mother and grandmother than as the living symbol of her empire's resistance to the axis that Wilhelmina warmly embraced Princess Juliana and Juliana's two girls, Beatrix, 4, and Irene, 2, who met her at Rockcliffe airport.

Separated Two Years.

The 61 year old Wilhelmina, who has ruled the longest of any monarch alive, had not seen her daughter and the little princesses in more than two years—not since she insisted that Juliana go to Canada with them to safeguard the succession to the throne. Queen Wilhelmina looked very well.

After the family greetings were over, the queen was welcomed to Canada by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King. Then she went to the princess' home outside Ottawa for luncheon.

To Stay Few Days.

It was announced the queen would stay, while in Ottawa, at Government House as the guest of the governor general, the earl of Athlone, whose wife, Princess Alice, is the queen's niece. Both the governor general and Princess Alice at present are on a tour of western Ontario, however.

Expecting to remain in Ottawa only a few days, Wilhelmina plans to proceed to Lee, Mass., where Princess Juliana has a summer home.

Beyond the official statement that she would see President and Mrs. Roosevelt, there were no details of the trip to the United States.

Trip Kept Secret.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—News that Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands would visit President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt here was made public in Ottawa today. American newspapers had been instructed not to mention her impending arrival. Evidently the queen had not been advised of the precautions undertaken in her behalf. On her arrival at Ottawa, Canada, the queen issued a statement announcing her intention to visit this country and its first family.

During her visit the queen may get her first glimpse of her extensive property holdings in the national capital. She owns the largest apartment house development in Washington, where senators, representatives, and officials live.

BROOKS RENEWS PLEA FOR PLANES TO SAVE SHIPPING

May Mean Winning War, He Warns Senate.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—In an eloquent appeal for action by the administration and heads of the armed services, Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] today in the senate reaffirmed his plea for an air "umbrella" of civilian planes to protect shipping in American home waters.

Overcoming the challenge of axis submarines and keeping the supply lines open to the far flung battle fronts means not only the saving of lives and ships, he warned solemnly; it may mean winning of the war.

Pleads with New Dealers.

Brooks reached the high point of his remarks when he turned toward the opposite side of the chamber, leveling his gaze at the majority members—including numerous administration stalwarts and White House spokesmen—and said earnestly:

"I sincerely urge those members of this body who have influence with the administration to use their every influence to see that these planes and pilots and all other available resources are used—and at once—to save these ships. It means supplies for our country. It means supplies for our soldiers. It means support for our allies."

It was on April 30 that the Illinois senator took the floor to suggest that a civilian air patrol be extended along a belt of the Atlantic ocean from Maine to Florida and 50 miles to sea to combat enemy submarines. He urged that this be done by utilizing the small, slow, privately owned airplanes now lying idle at many airports thruout the country.

Would Use Older Pilots.

Brooks said these planes could be flown by older sportsmen pilots whose flying skill and knowledge is being wasted and whose service would release many younger men for more strenuous duties, such as combat or ferry flying.

At that time, Brooks reminded his colleagues, a total of 131 vessels had been reported sunk in our waters. Today the total is approximately 250, making a toll of 120 ships exacted by the axis raiders within a span of 60 days.

Briefly the senator dwelt upon the recent spectacle of two large American cargo ships being torpedoed, one of them sunk, by enemy submarines within sight of thousands of persons sunning themselves on the Virginia shore.

Borders on Negligence.

"Our American production of arms, munitions, guns and planes has amazed the world," he said, "but our failure to meet this submarine menace along our coast comes close to being gross negligence.

"We have vast numbers of American soldiers in Iceland, Ireland, Australia, and countless other points thousands of miles from home. Can we keep open the constant line of supplies to them? Can we reach them constantly with sufficient materials and munitions? Can we reach them when they call for help? Can we reach them when they are wounded? Can we open up a new front to meet the demand of Russia? Can we launch an attack upon Japan to bolster the courageous and battered Chinese?"

2,000 Already Have Radios.

Brooks said he has been informed that more than 2,000 small, privately owned aircraft already are equipped with two way radios. The steel necessary to build racks for carrying bombs and depth charges to be used against the lurking subs would not equal the amount of steel sent to the bottom in the sinking of a single cargo ship, he declared.

As to the failure of the heads of the armed services to take up his suggestion, Brooks reminded the chamber that these same officials were a long time in recognizing the superiority of aircraft over ancient war machines. But, he continued, they finally have recognized it as shown in the present emphasis on airplane and aircraft carrier construction rather than on outmoded, cumbersome battleships.

"How long will it take to convince these same heads that in this world encircling war we must use every available air and surface craft to stop these submarines from invading and working at will in our American waters?" Brooks asked.

Brooks' Son Graduated

Sen. Wayland Brooks and his son, Russell.

Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] took time out from his senatorial duties this week to attend the graduation of his son, Russell Ackerly Brooks, from Western High school in Washington, D. C. Young Brooks received his preliminary education in Chicago and moved to the capital when his father was elected to the senate.

BARRETT AND 6 AIDS WILL GIVE ZILLER EVIDENCE

Attorney General George F. Barrett announced yesterday in Springfield that he would take six or more of his assistants to Bloomington Monday to assist in presenting evidence to the grand jury regarding the alleged sale of ordnance plant jobs by George W. Ziller.

Barrett is to give his personal help to Clifford N. Coolidge, state's attorney of McLean county, who asked for the convening of the grand jury.

Ziller, 500 pound mystery man who is said to have taken fees of $300 plus $50 a week from truckers on the government plants at Kankakee and Elwood, and to have collected union fees in addition, has denied any illegal acts. He contended that 68 of 102 chairmen of Democratic county committees in Illinois had authorized him to act as their representative in placing men on the ordnance construction work.

U. S. Navy Workers Boost Bermuda's Immigration

BERMUDA, June 18.—The immigration board report for 1941 just published shows that of 18,455 people coming to Bermuda last year, 9,452 were listed as United States naval base personnel. Actually this number does not represent the true total of base workers now in the colony, since many of those listed as arrivals have left.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK IN GULF; 2 CREWMEN KILLED

that a small Norwegian merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk in the Gulf of Mexico so near shore that her 20 survivors rowed their crowded lifeboat into harbor 15 hours later.

Two crewmen were killed and four others were injured in the attack, which took place on June 14. A single torpedo sank the ship in three minutes. The submarine was not seen either before or after the attack.

The ship was the 246th sunk by enemy action in American coastal waters since the attack on Pearl Harbor. The sinkings have taken a toll of 1,466 persons reported killed and 1,604 missing and believed dead. A total of 7,983 persons have been rescued.

SINK DUTCH FREIGHTER

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 18 (AP).—The newspaper La Razon said today that two German submarines appeared off Point Pajaro last night and sank the 1,400 ton Dutch freighter Flora. Colombian vessels rescued 30 members of the crew and six passengers, and recovered the body of the first engineer, the paper reported.

The survivors were quoted as saying that the submarines fired 63 shots at the ship, which replied with six.

33 SURVIVORS LANDED

MEXICO CITY, June 18 (AP).—Survivors of three torpedoed ships were on board the Dutch ship Krinjsen when the latter was sunk in the Caribbean June 10, published reports from the Yucatan peninsula said today.

Thirty-three survivors of the Krinjsen were landed at Xkalak. Among them were survivors of the Panamanian ship Silver Arrow, the Norwegian Lessen, and the Canadian Wellendoo. They gave no details of how they came to be aboard the Dutch vessel.

The Krinjsen was carrying 27 passengers and a crew of 70 when she was sunk. All except the 33 who arrived at Xkalak still are missing.

WILLKIE URGES 'FRANK STAND' BY G. O. P. LEADERS

New York, June 18 [Special].—Wendell L. Willkie, in an interview today, urged that all Republican candidates for New York state offices make "clear and unequivocal statements" as to how they stand "toward the interests of American labor and toward the international situation."

In advising the G. O. P. to maintain an open mind in its selection of a state ticket in the fall elections, Willkie said that any Republican ticket, if it is to be successful, must be one which will attract support from a large number of interventionists as well as gain the confidence of labor.

He declared that the advocation of these views transcended "personalities and trivialities" and added the hope that he may be helpful in getting the Republican party, both in the state and in the nation, to adopt anti-isolationist platforms and to induce G. O. P. candidates to speak forcefully on these issues.

NEW U. S. BOMBER COMMAND READY TO FIGHT IN CHINA

Col. C. V. Haynes, Burma Air Hero, Named Chief.

CHUNGKING, China, June 18 (AP).—Existence of a United States army bomber command in imperiled China was disclosed today at a time when the Japanese enemy was heavily reenforcing his air strength to defend his conquest of Burma and attempt to mop up the armies of Chiang Kai-shek.

Col. Caleb V. Haynes.

Col. Caleb V. Haynes, tall, 46 year old North Carolinian who personally directed the harrowing aerial evacuation of Burma, was named chief of the command. Just where and when the American force will go into action is an important military secret.

Already operating in the China war theater are the "Flying Tigers" of Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American Volunteer group, which will be taken back into the army air forces July 4.

800 Jap Planes in Area.

The Japanese are reported to have 500 planes in Burma and 300 in China, with a new influx of aircraft about Canton and Hankow in the southeast.

They have left aerial reënforcement of the Manchukuan theater to the very last, apparently, altho they are reported to have restored the army there to its full strength of 33 divisions, approximately 660,000 men.

The recent enemy attacks on Midway Island and the Aleutians are interpreted in some quarters as preparations for attack on Siberia.

On the Chekiang-Kiangsi front in southeastern China the enemy had less than 50 miles to go to complete the occupation of the 450 mile railway which loops thru the two provinces. The Chinese high command said that the Japanese column moving from the west had reached the railway town of Kweiki by a detour and that the column approaching from the east was continuing to advance from Shangjao. These towns are in eastern Kiangsi.

A third column was thrusting southward toward Fukien province from Kwangfeng in eastern Kiangsi. It had advanced eight miles and apparently was headed for Chinese inland bases in Fukien.

NEVER CRASHED PLANE.

Col. Caleb V. Haynes learned to fly in the last war and has never crashed a plane in his 25 year career.

He was the last allied airman to fly into Lashio, terminus of the Burma road. He flew to Shwebo in Upper Burma right after a flight of Japanese bombers and took out Gen. Joseph Stilwell's staff.

Earlier in the war he made some of the first flights from the United States to England in the Atlantic ferrying command.

He has been awarded the distinguished flying cross with oak leaves for pioneering four-motor plane routes in Africa. He flew from the United States to South America in 1938 in the first great mass flight of American bombers, and in 1939 flew much needed medical and other supplies to victims of the disastrous Chilean earthquake.

British Union Welcomes Women; Urges Equal Pay

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 18.—Another wartime breach opened on the British labor front today when the Amalgamated Engineering union delegates, conferring at Blackpool, passed a resolution welcoming the employment of women in factories and demanding that they be given equal pay. The union, traditionally opposed to women in its ranks, hopes that after the war employers will prefer male help if the pay rates are equal.

ILLINOISANS TELL HAIR RAISING LIFE OF BUSHMASTERS

Danger a 'Sure Thing' in Panama Jungle.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN PANAMA, June 18.—Three young men from Illinois are noncommissioned officers in the ranks of the "bushmaster," the hand picked group of officers and men which has become the crack jungle combat unit of the Panama command.

They are Sergt. Alvin Ogle, 21 years old, of Ava, a farmer before he joined the army two years ago; Corp. Lewis Miller, 24, of Peoria, who worked in a woolen mill there before he enlisted 14 months ago, and Corp. Bob Sleater, 23, also of Peoria, who was a carpenter until his enlistment 16 months ago.

Ogle, Miller, and Sleater have gone two months or more without seeing a town, spending all their time roaming the jungle.

Something to Remember.

Each of the three men has had more than six months of service in the bushmaster units, commanded by hardbitten Col. J. Prugh Herndon. During that six months each of the three has had what the bushmasters call a "close crop" [close shave].

This was Ogle's:

"We were way back in the interior on a training trip and had stopped to eat," he said. "I was busy with my canteen, chlorinating water, when the fellow sitting across from me yelled.

"Jerking around, I found myself looking right into the eyes of a big panther. I grabbed my machine gun, but he was gone before I could get it on him."

Acquires a Nickname.

"We were hiking along a river when we came to a waterfall about 70 feet high," he related. "There was no way to continue except up the slippery rocks beside the fall. Just before I reached the top I slipped and started down. I managed to grab a vine and swung on that until the boys could pull me in. Now they call me 'Tarzan.'"

"We were on a reconnaissance training mission," he said. "Had to go down this trail, which bordered the Pecora river far out in the jungle. I was in the lead.

He Takes Evasive Action.

"Suddenly in the dim light I saw something black and long rushing at me from the thick mat beside the trail. I yelped and jumped out of the way and it swept on by, then turned and came at me again. By the other flashlights I could see it was an alligator about 6 feet long.

"I smacked it with a rifle butt, and at the same time another boy took a chop at it from behind with a machete. I guess that was enough, because it dived for the river."

Jap Envoy Flies to Moscow After Talks in Kuibyshev

LONDON, June 18 (AP).—The Vichy radio reported tonight that the Japanese ambassador in Kuibyshev, Russia, flew today to Moscow with six members of his staff after a call on the soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs. The report said the call in Kuibyshev was to "discuss the political situation." The purpose of the Moscow trip was not stated.

16TH STREET SITE IS SELECTED FOR 33D'S MEMORIAL

A site for the memorial to the 33d division has been selected between Leif Eriksen drive and Burnham park lagoon, on the extension of 16th street, the committee in charge of the $150,000 project announced last night. Provision was made in a bill signed by Gov. Henry Horner a short time before he died. Time since has been taken up in deciding on a site and on the character of the monument. According to present plans it will be a square shaft with the division's cross emblem at its base, the whole set on a platform to which wide steps will lead.

Members of the 33d Division War Veterans' association will hold their 16th annual reunion in the Morrison hotel today and tomorrow.

ONE DAY'S SCORE IN SEA BATTLE: 63 JAP PLANES

I cannot sufficiently emphasize the part the weather played in the offensive efforts of our pilots on the Lexington and those of United States Carrier II. Overhead were unusually woolly clouds. Under some of them was a curtain of heavy rain. These vapor pillars filled the sky to overflowing without, however, making a solid layer.

Squalls Screen Enemy Fleet.

The Japanese were fortunate in being in an area of the sea where there was an unusually large number of hard rain squalls. These served to screen parts of their ocean fleet—one squadron of a dozen heavy dive bombers from the Lexington never did find a Japanese target and returned without striking a blow.

The clouds also were responsible for as strange a bit of chance as any in the entire five day Coral sea action. This was the amazing fact that the American and Japanese air striking forces passed each other on the way to their respective targets without ever seeing each other. Yet each side apparently took the most direct course.

This can happen tho. Our air units, that day, flew at medium altitudes, and close to the ocean. The Japanese, on the other hand, flew high, coming out of bad weather and into the clearer air around the Lexington. They might easily under these circumstances, have passed within a mile or two but never have had a glimpse of each other.

Remains Over Jap Ships.

Our first contact with the enemy was made by one of the youngest pilots in our scouting force. To amplify his report Lieut. Comm. Robert Dixon, skipper of the scout units, flew into the youngster's sector and remained there two hours and 50 minutes. During that time he had a number of brushes with enemy planes, but remained over the hostile ships sending out radio messages and directional signals to lead the oncoming striking squadrons to the target.

"How did you manage to survive, Bob, alone in the middle of enemy air?" I asked him later.

Both he and I knew that he had been flying a relatively slow plane—ordinarily no match for Zeros.

Duck In and Out of Clouds.

"We ducked in and out of the clouds," he answered, grinning a little. "When they came after us [he had a rear gunner in the scout with him] they didn't press their attacks home. They seemed to prefer to make feinting runs, evidently hoping to get my rear gunner to use up his belts of ammunition so they could close as he was reloading. My gunner refused to play this game and held his fire until they were within killing range.

"Finally if they came in too close I would make a steep turn and head toward them with one wing low. This allowed me to be in shooting position with my front wing guns and also permitted my gunner to fire forward over the wing too."

Japs Make a Mistake.

"The Japs were using the same protective screen for their carrier that we generally did while cruising," Comm. Brett said later. "It was screened by several cruisers and destroyers that we ignored, even to the extent of flying right over one cruiser, while going in. That cruiser didn't fire at us. She must have mistaken us for some of their own—the weather was so bad it was an easy mistake to make.

"We slid thru a bit of scud and came out astern of the carrier. Her lookouts recognized us and she began a sharp right turn. All the antiaircraft guns in the unit opened up on us, bounced us around some, but didn't stop us.

"Several enemy fighters—I saw Messerschmitt types with liquid cooled engines, Zeros and older fixed landing gear types mixed together—came at us, but we were in the final run by that time, well fanned out.

Carrier's Decks Empty.

"Just before I let my fish [torpedo] go I could see the carrier well. Her decks were empty—all her planes were in the air, either defending the ship or pounding our own carriers. We saw the whole Jap vessel jump as our torpedoes began exploding. Then we were busy dodging fighters, calling down our own fighting pilots, and heading home.

"We closed up into a tight formation so all our gunners could get cross-fire into any Jap fighters bothering us. It was well, too, because 12 Jappies came down on us. They came cautiously because we were flying only 30 feet above the water.

"After several gentle passes in our direction two of the Zeros got caught in our gunners' converging fire and dropped flaming into the sea. The rest cleared out, and left us alone. Our problem then became one of nursing our fuel—we were damned low—so that we could make it back home. Thirty miles out one plane's tanks ran dry. The pilot made a perfect, wheels-up landing. Later a destroyer picked up the pilot and his two men. The rest of us made it back. We could hardly believe, from the way the Lexington looked at that time, that she had been hurt."

The fighters that Brett had called upon were led by Lieut. Noel Gayler. He emerged from that day's bitter air combats as the navy's leading ace. Gayler had three other pilots with him and as they slid down to protect the torpedo planes they found themselves in a hot dogfight with only a few feet between their wings and the sea. This ended with all of Gayler's men shot down—one reported making a forced landing into the sea—but Gayler himself knocked down two Japanese.

Turning back to find his comrades in the torpedo planes, Gayler zipped thru a cloud into momentarily clear air. Ten miles away he saw a Japanese carrier blazing furiously. He decided that the job was done and started homeward.

"Half way back," he told me later, "I saw two Japanese torpedo planes heading for their mother ship, probably after having strafed the Lex. [Lexington]. I was above them, and by taking advantage of the clouds I managed to stay out of their sight until ready to make my attack dive. I got them both and proceeded home."

Destroys 8 Planes in Combat.

These four victories brought Gayler's total of enemy planes destroyed in combat to eight. His fighter also has a miniature painting of a flag with a bomb in the center to indicate that he dropped a light bomb on a Japanese anti-aircraft battery at Salamaua, New Guinea, on March 10. At that time he was the navy's leading ace—having three more credits than Edward [Butch] O'Hare. Gayler's total, however, may have been surpassed by other pilots in the Midway Island battle.

Let us revert for a moment to the attack on Japanese carrier No. 1. As Comm. Brett's torpedo planes came snaking out of the low cloud, Comm. Ault's four heavy dive bombers were gaining altitude for their attacks. They first flew over the Japanese at 3,500 feet, picked the carrier from amid the formations below. The Japanese ships momentarily were in clear air but were steaming fast for a rainsquall.

The four planes turned into their dives just as the first torpedoes were being released. Much of the carrier's anti-aircraft was busy with the torpedo planes—there being 11 of them—and Comm. Ault's bombers were not molested in their swift, straight descent. The result was that three of their bombs plunged thru the carrier's deck. Towering masses of smoke and débris rose after each blast.

"The bombs seemed to act in a dual manner," one of the torpedo pilots who saw the dive bombers come down said afterward: "Not only did they tear that carrier apart but they also had an incendiary effect. Of course, that's not so strange. Carriers have huge tanks full of fuel oil and high test gasoline. Once this starts to burn it's good-by."

Only one of this force of four dive bombers reached the Lexington after the battle. A cloud of Zeros intercepted Comm. Ault's little force and shot down three. The commander's last words over the radio were:

"My rear gunner is badly hit, I'm also wounded. Going down on the water."

Carrier Smoking Heavily.

Ensign N. A. Sterrie, one of Comm. Brett's torpedo plane pilots, said:

"Many Japanese fighters showed up during our attack but they didn't push their attacks home. The carrier went into a tight constant turn when it was attacked, and was smoking heavily when we went away. As I came out of my attack, I found one of our group had saved his torpedo, since the carrier seemed to be definitely gone.

"He turned away and made a run toward one of the four cruisers that were accompanying the carrier. I had no fish but accompanied him on the attack in order to absorb some of the nti-aircraft fire from that ship's guns. We were unable to see the result of the torpedo shot."

The assault on Japanese Carrier No. II. was just as furious as the raids made by the Lexington's squadrons on Jap No. 1.

"We had an uneventful flight to our objective," Ensign J. H. Jorgenson in one of our Carrier No. II.'s torpedo planes told me after the fight. "We circled once and saw two carriers, two battleships, three heavy cruisers and three light cruisers. They were increasing their speed to 25 knots and were spread over a distance of five miles long and three to four miles wide at that time.

"We dived on the starboard carrier. The skipper, Lieut. Comm. W. O. Burch, led and I followed. My bomb was released at 2,000 feet. I could see the skipper's 1,000 pounder hit flush on the carrier's deck. Then saw a lot of smoke."

As he swooped up out of his dive, Ensign Jorgenson said, his plane was hit by Japanese anti-aircraft fire.

Bullets Pepper Plane.

"As I gained a climbing attitude three fighters jumped my tail. Their bullets peppered the plane and especially the wings and front end of the fuselage. Some passed in over my right shoulder and tore off the rear of my telescope. Others hit the back of the seat [which was armored]. More came thru wrecking most of my instruments. One bullet passed thru the oxygen tube which was lying on my forearm—causing the tube to smoke.

"Three bullets grazed my right leg and I got some shrapnel or powder burns in my foot and toes."

The plane became difficult to control, being heavy in the left wing, the ensign said.

"I flew thru some clouds and my radioman saw one Japanese fighter. Three more attacked from above and ahead. One came in head-on and I shot into him until he veered off smoking. After this my engine began to lose power—missing on one or two cylinders. I picked up a group of Douglas scout bombers and came home.

"Arriving I tried to land with flaps down, but the plane was uncontrollable. I then raised the flaps, notified the carrier I would land in the water, and set the plane down in the sea. I was picked up four minutes later."

Dives Into a Cloud.

Lieut. E. S. McCusky, also from United States Carrier II., was in a fighter accompanying a group of dive bombers and torpedo planes. He also saw two carriers and watched his comrades in the bombers and torpedo planes deliver strong assaults. Then he found himself in a fight with Japanese defensive fighters that occupied all his attention until he dived into a cloud and escaped. McCusky's official report read as follows:

"When we saw the enemy they were steering for the cover of a rainstorm. In their group were three battleships, two carriers, with an accompanying screen of destroyers. I was at 2,000 feet and the torpedo planes were right down on the water.

"As the torpedo planes went in I could see the Japanese main batteries firing their heaviest guns—either six or eight inchers—in salvos. They were kicking up spouts of water close to our planes, which were all fanned out to cover any angle the carrier might turn to evade the missiles.

Jap Dives on U. S. Pilot.

"Thirty seconds later I saw three Zeros above preparing to attack. I closed in on my leader, Lieut. George S. Leonard, to warn him. I overshot and the first Jap dived on me from above and behind. I applied full throttle and made a steep climbing turn toward him. His tracer bullets trailed behind my plane.

"In a few seconds I saw him pull up in front of me, smoke, hesitate, then go down in flames—evidently hit by one of our fighters, I believe by Lieut. Leonard."

McCusky saw another Zero commencing a dive at him. He turned toward the plane in a "scissor maneuver" to avoid the attack. Then as the Japanese pilot climbed for another dive the ensign raised the nose of his plane until his sights were full on the enemy.

"I fired 400 rounds into him," McCusky wrote. "He did not attack but turned, struggled into a cloud with smoke trailing behind him. At this moment another Zero attacked me from above and as I was almost at stalling speed I went into a cloud to avoid him. As I entered I saw three more Zeros below and behind."

The dive bombing pilots of United States Carrier II. were busy meanwhile dropping their big explosive charges on and around the Japanese Carrier II. There were 24 of these which accounts for the large number of hits—seven—as compared with the Lexington's total of three on the carrier her dive bombers hit. The Lexington's main dive bomber group, remember, did not find the Japanese at all, and the only dive bombing support given the torpedo planes was by four planes.

A Flyer's Gallant Act.

One of the most determined and gallant acts of the entire five day battle came during the attack of United States Carrier II.'s dive bombing groups. Lieut. John L. Powers, one of the pilots, had told his comrades that he was going to put his big bomb into a Japanese carrier "come hell or high water."

Powers' dive was watched by a number of men. They said he held his ship straight for the Japanese deck until he was down to 500 feet—point-blank range even for a dive bomber. There he released his bomb and began his recovery. The missile went true to its mark and the resulting explosion shattered not only the Jap ship but also Powers' plane.

"There is no question that John knew what he was doing," one of his fellow pilots told me. "He knew that if you go below about 700 feet in your recovery the blast will get you every time. To stay above 700 feet means you must release your bomb no lower than 1,000 feet. He held his to 500 and was probably below 300 feet when the explosion came. He just decided not to miss, God bless him."

Exploits Illustrate Valor.

The pilots told many more stories. Every one was replete with more action, more thrills, and more destruction of planes than the wildest pulp magazine thriller ever dreamed up. But in this case every one was true. And invariably they were told in the most self-effacing manner possible by men who were proud of their flying mates, but mentioned their own deeds as impersonally as tho they had had nothing to do with them.

In these stories I have mentioned several names. I want to point out that the men whose exploits I cited as examples to illustrate the universal valor of our airmen and ships' crews, were no more brave, daring, or self-sacrificing than a large number of others whose names have not been mentioned. In news accounts, even as full as my editors have allowed these to run, it is obviously impossible to cite every outstanding deed.

Annapolis, Md., June 18 (AP).—The United States Naval academy officially announced today that 611 senior midshipmen would receive diplomas during commencement exercises tomorrow for the 1943 class and that all except five would be commissioned naval ensigns or marine corps lieutenants.

The graduation, to be featured by the address of Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet and chief of naval operations, is the largest in academy history. The largest previous class, in 1939, numbered 581 midshipmen.

It also was announced that George Downes Prestwich of Westmont, N. J., topped the final academic standings of the class of 1944, while Plebe Willis Clifford Barnes, Ithaca, N. Y., led the 1945 class in studies during the year.

LEXINGTON CREW EXPECTING NEW CHANCE AT JAPS

If the Japs think they have seen the last of the Lexington's crew, which dealt with them so harshly, they are much mistaken, it was revealed yesterday by Charles Edward Hines, 24 years old, one of the survivors, who arrived at his home, 837 Grove street, Aurora.

Officers and men of the Lexington have been ordered to reassemble June 27, Hines said, and it is understood they will be assigned to another airplane carrier.

Young Hines was chief storekeeper of the Lexington. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hines of Aurora. Two other Aurora boys who survived the carrier's sinking and are due home are Robert Lee Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Collins, 415 Highland avenue, and John Barret.

BRITISH RETREAT IN LIBYA, NEAR EGYPTIAN BORDER

Army Is Split; One Force Takes Stand at Tobruk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 18.—Military experts today listed among other things underlying the British setback in Libya Marshal Rommel's better tactical handling of tanks, superior gun power, and better defensive positions. Against this was British failure to concentrate the RAF on axis supply lines and the vast reserves of accumulated equipment, thus Rommel was able to survive all the destruction inflicted by the RAF despite its superiority in the air. The Daily Telegraph said the battle "resulted in a tactical defeat" for the British.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 18 (AP).—Split by 25 days of hammering by powerful axis armored forces, the British 8th army withdrew to new positions today, one section taking up fortified places near the Egyptian border, while the other fell back into the defensive perimeter of Tobruk to defend that Libyan coastal stronghold.

Only the shore road remained as a tenuous link between Tobruk and the British main body, Tobruk otherwise being practically surrounded.

With that exception, the situation nearly duplicated that which existed during almost eight months of last year when Tobruk held firm as the axis forces drove toward the border of Egypt, 80 miles to the east.

Planes Blast Advancing Axis.

Allied air squadrons, supporting the ground forces, were declared to have broken all records for bombing and strafing as the enemy moved eastward and the British pulled out of El Adem and Sidi Rezegh. The desert trails were littered with vehicles wrecked or burned by the allied pilots.

In the absence of direct word concerning Acroma, 20 miles west of Tobruk, British quarters believed it probable that the British forces had retreated from there.

El Adem is 18 miles below Tobruk. Sidi Rezegh is 25 miles southeast of Tobruk and about 50 miles from the Egyptian border.

"Our mobile forces," a headquarters communique said, "are continuing to harass the enemy in the area south and west of Tobruk."

Informed persons expressed the belief that Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel would try quickly to cut the coastal road as a preliminary to a grand assault on Tobruk. The Nile valley and the middle east appeared to be in no immediate danger, however.

All Big Allied Units Saved.

Tobruk, Libya's best deep water harbor, is of tremendous importance to either side; to the Nazis because its capture would eliminate their bugbear of an 800 mile supply line from their major base at Tripoli, and to the British for the like erasure of a maintenance problem over hundreds of miles of desert.

Should the middle east fall, the axis would gain the food and oil resources of this area and the east and west gates to the Indian ocean.

Foe Near Collapse, Nazi Says.

BERLIN, June 18 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A military spokesman tonight said the fact that the British 8th army in Libya has been split into two parts amounts to its virtual collapse. In reporting the division of the allied forces, the German high command said one part of the army has fallen back on Tobruk, while strong German and Italian tank formations are pursuing other British forces fleeing toward Bardia, near the Egyptian border.

Several desert forts in the southern perimeter of Tobruk's defenses have been captured, it addded. An earlier announcement said axis forces had occupied a British base south of El Adem, 18 miles below Tobruk, and captured 500 prisoners.

Seek Negro Who Raped, Slugged Young Mother

Police last night were seeking a Negro, about 35 and stockily built, who late Wednesday twice raped, then robbed and slugged a young mother at Jeffrey and Anthony avenues, near her home. He took $22 and her wrist watch from her, then struck her on the jaw, fracturing it, and left her in a semiconscious condition in a prairie. Physicians at the South Chicago hospital gave her first aid treatment.

CHURCHILL HERE TO SEE F.D.R. ON A SECOND FRONT

statements by the President or the prime minister this week."

Link to Molotov Visit.

Asked if the conferences would center on the opening of a second front, Early answered, "I should say yes."

He said he had no background on the visit, that he could give nothing beyond the few facts in the statement.

Asked if there could be speculation that the visit was the outcome of the recent visit of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov with the President, Early replied, "In a free press a certain amount of speculation is inevitable and properly so."

The first reaction of the capital to the second visit of the British prime minister within six months is that a crisis has arisen in the affairs of the united nations. Observers differed as to whether the crisis is favorable or grave.

Others Are Optimistic.

The more optimistic regarded the surprise visit as indicating that the British are about to open the second front and await the arrival of American troops to carry on from what foothold the initial British forces will secure.

More pessimistic were inclined to view the crisis as grave in the light of British reverses in Africa and the Nazi assaults in Russia. The pessimistic observers were convinced that only a serious unfavorable situation would take the British leader out of London at this time.

The latter argument was answered by the optimistic observers with the statement that the British leader made the journey as a gesture of contempt against Hitler in a sly move to injure German morale.

On his last visit here the prime minister dramatically appeared in the capital three days before Christmas. He arrived after dark on the evening of Dec. 22, and immediately began a series of conferences with the President.

During the stay he paid a three day visit to Canada and wound up the visit with a brief vacation in Florida. He returned to London by plane, early in January.

Met First at Sea.

The first visit between the President and prime minister took place at their historic sea conferences off Newfoundland last August, months before the United States entered the war.

At the first series of conferences the two leaders drew up the Atlantic charter, which set forth joint aims tc conquer and disarm Germany, Italy, and Japan, and police the world after the establishment of peace.

The second series of conferences at the White House six months ago developed the pattern of British-American coöperation in the war effort.

MACARTHUR PROUDER HE'S A FATHER THAN OF SOLDIER'S CAREER

New York, June 18 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur cabled the National Father's Day committee today that, while he was proud to be a soldier, "I am prouder, infinitely prouder to be a father."

Chosen by the committee as "outstanding American father of 1942," MacArthur replied:

"Nothing has touched me more deeply than the act of the National Father's day committee. By profession I am a soldier and take pride in that fact, but I am prouder, infinitely prouder to be a father. A soldier destroys in order to build. The father only builds, never destroys. The one has the potentialities of death, the other embodies creation and life. And, while the hordes of death are mighty, the battles of life are mightier still. My hope is that my son, when I am gone, will remember me not from the battle but in the home repeating with him our simple daily prayer, 'Our Father who art in heaven.'

"[Signed] DOUGLAS MACARTHUR."

HOUSE APPROVES 1,900,000 TONS OF NEW WARSHIPS

Program Puts Emphasis on Plane Carriers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The house today passed and sent to the senate an 8 billion 500 million dollar naval construction bill to add 1,900,000 tons of combat ships to the nation's present naval forces. The vote was 316 to 0.

The measure provides for the construction of an additional 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 500,000 tons of cruisers, and 900,000 tons of destroyers and destroyer escorts.

A special provision in the bill would permit the navy to exercise discretionary authority to reduce the tonnage of one type of vessel by 30 per cent and add this percentage to the tonnage of any other type of vessel authorized by this naval construction measure, or to increase the tonnage of submarines authorized by previous legislation.

Lost Ships to Be Replaced.

The bill would authorize the President to maintain present tonnages of underage naval ships by permitting replacements of ships which become overage or are lost. However, the President would not be required to replace overage or lost vessels with vessels of the same type or class.

In addition, the secretary of the navy would be empowered under the bill to construct 800 small vessels suitable for patrol vessels, mine layers and sweepers, or similar ships which he considers most useful in prosecution of the war. These vessels would be in addition to similar vessels previously authorized.

The navy also would be authorized to acquire 200 additional small vessels to be converted for coastal defense, patrol, mine sweeping or other purposes considered necessary. These 200 vessels would be in addition to those previously authorized.

Agree Battleship Outmoded.

Rep. Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval affairs committee, told his colleagues flatly that the aircraft carrier has replaced the battleship as "the backbone of the fleet."

"Probably when this program is completed," Vinson said, "the strength of the United States fleet will be greater than that of all the other navies of the world."

Rep. James W. Mott [R., Ore.], ranking minority member of the naval committee, concurred in that statement and declared the construction program "is the greatest ever undertaken by any nation."

Rep. Warren G. Magnuson [D., Wash.], a member of the naval committee and a naval lieutenant commander just back from duty in the Pacific area, declared his experience had convinced him of the need for "more and more" plane carriers.

PHYSICIANS IN DESERT WAR AIDED BY SCIENCE AND FREAK OF NATURE

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN THE AFRICAN DESERT, June 18 [Wide World]—Science and a freak of nature are helping doctors conquer the medical problems of war in a desert.

The freak of nature is absence in the desert dust of gas gangrene bacteria. As a consequence, doctors say, this theater of the war has seen no gas gangrene—a horrible affliction which necessitates amputations and was one of the worst killers of the last war. One dangerous germ is contained in the dust to a slight extent—tetanus—but this is controled by antitetanus injections.

Science has contributed by development of two kinds of anesthetic which are revolutionary improvements over the old ether drip method used in the last war. They are the intravenous and the spinal injections. Both have been used in the peacetime interlude, but it was not until the present war that their full potentialities were realized.

Doctors in a New Zealand tent hospital behind the lines said the intravenous is quicker, easier to take, and easier in its after effect than any other anesthetic. It takes effect so rapidly the operation can begin a minute later. With ether, the operation must wait 10 minutes. The spinal injection gives longer and more complete relaxation.

IDENTIFY ITALIAN BATTLESHIPS HIT BY U.S. BOMBERS

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The two Italian battleships damaged by American heavy bombers in the Mediterranean on Monday were identified by the war department today as the new 35,000 ton Littorio and the 25,000 ton Conte di Cavour.

In its first official report on the exploits of the big "Liberator" planes operating from North Africa, the department said that "a number of direct hits" were scored on the warships.

"On the return to their North African base," the communique said, "our bombers were intercepted by German Messerschmitt fighter planes. One enemy plane was shot down and was seen to explode as it struck the sea. All of our planes returned to their base without being seriously damaged. There were no casualties among our personnel."

Germans Give Their Version.

BERLIN, June 18 [from Grman broadcasts] (AP).—The German high command announced today that 15,000 tons of merchant shipping along with one British destroyer, an escort vessel and a submarine chaser had been sunk by a flotilla of German motor torpedo boats attacking a British Mediterranean convoy sailing from Alexandria, Egypt.

Air Ace in Africa Downs 10 Planes in Day, Say Nazis

BERLIN, June 18 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command, crediting Lieut. Marseille, one of its air aces, with downing 10 planes in 24 hours in North African fighting, said today his score now stands at 101 planes. At the same time, loss of another ace, Sub-Lieut. Strelow, 20 year old commodore of a fighter squadron who had scored 60 individual air victories, was announced.

Sub Sees 13 U. S. Bombs Hit Italian Battleships

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 18 (AP).—First class American bombing as seen thru a British periscope: A Royal navy submarine patroling the Mediterranean during the United States air attack on the Italian fleet reported seeing two Italian battleships get a total of 13 direct hits within a few seconds.

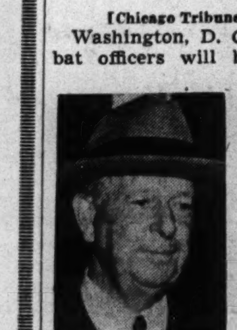
ORDERS COMBAT OFFICERS FROM SWIVEL CHAIRS

Stimson Says Too Many Clutter Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Combat officers will be removed from swivel chairs in the national capital under orders issued today by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.



Dwight F. Davis.

"There are too darn many combat officers in Washington," the secretary said in echoing complaints which have poured in on the department over the army of able bodied officers assigned to duty here.

He did not disclose the number of combat officers on duty here, altho a survey of such officer assignments was made at his direction.

Calling on Specialists.

The work of the officers will be assumed wherever possible by the new army specialist corps, which is being formed under the direction of former Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis of men who are too old or otherwise disqualified for active service.

Davis reported that 11,132 officer and enlisted specialist posts are now open. Enlisted specialist pay will range from $1,800 to $2,900. Officer pay is $2,600 for second lieutenants, $3,200 for first lieutenants, $3,500 for captains, $4,600 for majors, and $6,500 for colonels. It is provided that no one shall receive a higher rate of pay than he did in civilian life.

Under Stimson's order all commanders and heads of activities have been directed to reorganize their work so as to reduce officer personnel without replacement, if this is possible. In the future officers will be assigned to Washington only when a complete job analysis clearly justifies their need, it was said.

May Go Overseas.

Stimson indicated that the members of the specialist corps will also take over desk jobs overseas to relieve men for combat duty.

The order was promoted by insistence of some of the officers assigned here that they be placed on active duty as well as by criticism of the large officer detail here. Many officers resented the widespread public disposition to label all officers on duty in the war department as slackers.

In announcing that the newly organized army specialist corps will take over duties of combat officers in the capital, Stimson outlined the policy on appointment to the new unit in a directive to Director General Davis.

Political Pull "Out."

"All political or personal considerations will be rigidly excluded," Stimson said, "and care will be exercised to insure the appointment of men who are fully qualified and specifically needed. Any attempt to provide employment for men seeking a job, or pay at a higher rate than that received in civil life, is contrary to approved policies and, of course, cannot be tolerated."

The fundamental basis for appointment and employment of individuals in the army specialist corps, the secretary said, will be that their services, whether in an administrative, professional, scientific, or technical capacity, will release military personnel for combat or command duties.

1-A Men Not Eligible.

In general, persons coming under the following headings will not be eligible for appointment in the army specialist corps:

Those liable for military service, when their current classification under selective service is class I-A-O, I-B-O, IV-E, or IV-E-LS; those who are under 30 years of age, unless permanently disqualified, physically, for general military service; those who are over 30 and under 45, when their current classification is class I-A, and those deferred for occupational reasons, who, in the opinion of selective service, should not be released.

NAVY RECRUITING PROGRAM GAINS; SIGN UP NO. 5,021

June Total Is Expected to Reach 10,000 Goal.

The navy's campaign to recruit 10,000 men from the Chicago area in June passed the halfway mark yesterday, three days behind schedule but gaining momentum.

"After the pickup in the last few days, I think we're going to make the quota," said Lieut. David N. Goldenson, Chicago recruiting officer. "We got off to a slow start but we're making up for it now."

Ceremony for No. 5000.

Ceremonies were held at the Congress plaza in Grant park at the induction of naval recruit No. 5000. He is Edward P. Fayman, 19 years old, 3335 North Halsted street.

Tall, dark, and slim, Fayman grinned as he shook hands with Commander Philip R. Weaver, inspector of recruiting in the central area, and Charles R. Walgreen Jr., chairman of the recruiting radio committee. He said:

"This is one of the happiest days in my life."

Fayman enlisted in the V-2 branch of the navy where he will be trained as an aviation mechanic. He was graduated from Lane Technical High school last year and has been working as a stockroom employé in a mail order house.

Barrington Athlete Joins.

Naval officers saw a good omen yesterday in the signing up of a naval air force training recruit with the symbolic name of Victory Joy Klopfenstein of Barrington. Klopfenstein, a former star athlete at Barrington High school, got his name by being born at 11 a. m. on Armistice day, Nov. 11, 1918.

He is a private pilot with three hours of solo flying. He signed up with Lieut. Carl G. Olson, senior member of the flight selection board in the Board of Trade building.

2 SISTERS HAPPY OVER FREEING OF RUTH MITCHELL

Two sisters of Ruth Mitchell, sister of the late Brig. Gen. William [Billy] Mitchell of the army air corps, were relieved to hear yesterday that she has been released from a Nazi concentration camp and is in Lisbon, Portugal, awaiting passage to the United States.

Ruth Mitchell.

The sisters are Mrs. Martin Fladoes and Mrs. Mitchell Mackie, both of Milwaukee. They said Miss Mitchell had lived in Europe for many years, and that they had not heard from her for some time.

Miss Mitchell in April, 1941, joined a band of Serbian guerilla fighters in Jugo-Slavia. She had been in Europe studying native folklore. The Nazis invaded Jugo-Slavia a few days after she had been sworn as a member of the Comitadji organization. She became a dispatch rider and apparently was captured and held as a war prisoner. She was one of those released by the Germans in exchange for German nationals in the United States.

CONFEREES VOTE 2 BILLION DOLLAR FUND FOR BOARDS

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Members of a joint senate-house committee agreed today on the $2,126,420,890 independent offices appropriation bill, carrying funds for various bureaus, boards, and commissions for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The senate group gave way to the house on the proposal of Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] to prohibit the Tennessee Valley authority from grouping its power receipts and appropriations into a single revolving fund. McKellar's proposal was designed to restrict TVA's expenditures to appropriations previously approved by congress. Under the conferees' agreement, TVA may use the revolving fund.

The house conferees, on the other hand, consented to the senate language of the measure under which provision is made for the payment of salary to Goodwin Watson, chief analyst of the foreign radio monitoring service of the Federal Communications commission. The house previously had provided that no part of the appropriation should be used to pay his salary.

STIMSON FINDS AIR RAID DANGER IN WEST EASING

Midway and Coral Fights Delaying Japs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The threat of Japanese air raids on the Pacific coast has been lessened by the heavy losses inflicted on the Jap fleet in recent actions off Midway Island and in the Coral sea, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today.

"Temporarily there is much less of a threat to the Pacific coast," the secretary reported with a smile of satisfaction.

Information is still incomplete on the battle of Midway and the Jap operations against the Aleutian Islands, he said urging that the public be patient with the army and navy because of the great difficulty in gathering accurate information on enemy losses in these operations.

Says Two Fleets Dispersed.

"Two great fleets from Japan, with battleships, carriers and transports were making a deliberate and far reaching attempt at occupation of Midway," he said. "Three days later those fleets were scattered over the Pacific, hustling in the opposite direction without air protection."

In the Aleutians, he said, the opposing American and Jap forces have secured scarcely more than fleeting glimpses of each other thru the eyes of airmen because of the unfavorable weather conditions.

The easing of Jap raid threats was reflected in the army's announcement of maneuvers for the summer and early fall, which had been held up for weeks as coastal protection was being strengthened. The maneuvers will stress desert fighting, jungle fighting, air ground operations, operations by small task forces and night maneuvers, which are better known as commando operations.

Maneuver Schedules.

Second army corps, July 13-Sept. 6, Carolina area.

Third army corps, Sept. 14-Nov. 8, Camp Forrest, Tenn.

Fourth army corps, Sept. 21-Nov. 8, Louisiana area.

The general training plan has been so arranged that maneuver periods requiring the coöperation of the army air forces and the armored force will not conflict. The plan calls for using only more seasoned troops in the operations.

GERMAN BOMBERS SEEK TO CRIPPLE SOVIET RAILWAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 18.—Germany is trying to cripple Russia's railroads. For two weeks German bombers have been penetrating hundreds of miles behind the soviet front to attack cars and locomotives.

On many sections of the front Russian troop and munition trains are being convoyed by fighter planes, which have shot down some of the raiders. The Germans are using small bombs, which, however, can cause serious damage to a locomotive with a direct hit.

Providing convoys for moving trains is difficult and because the recent attacks have been directed chiefly against locomotives, the Russians believe the new offensive aims to cripple their most important means of transport.

SOVIET HOPES U.S. AND BRITAIN WILL HIT NAZIS SOON

Told Second Front Gets 'Close Attention.'

MOSCOW, June 18 (AP).—Thundering a vote of complete confidence, the supreme soviet tonight at its first wartime session ceremonially approved the British-Russian treaty after hearing Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov express the deep hope that the "common enemy soon will feel on his own skin the mighty blows" of Russia, Britain, and the United States.

Molotov told the cheering Russian parliament, as Premier-Defense Commissar Josef Stalin nodded agreement, that the question of a second front in Europe was given "serious attention" both in London and in Washington, D. C. In the latter city Molotov concluded a full understanding with the United States on the war and on postwar problems.

[The three great powers announced on June 11 that they had reached complete understandings on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."]

Parley Was F. D. R.'s Idea.

Molotov disclosed that President Roosevelt had cabled an invitation to the trip which resulted in the Washington agreement.

He told the parliament that the Washington agreement would accelerate and increase deliveries to the soviet union in spite of the damaging axis attacks on convoys destined for Murmansk and Archangel, soviet arctic ports.

U. S. Aid to Reach 3 Billion.

Molotov revealed that the new agreement with the United States envisaged American aid amounting to 3 billion dollars.

Molotov declared the conversations in London and Washington strengthened the conviction that "victory over German imperialism will be considerably faster."

Among the main points in Molotov's speech were:

1. The agreements would govern both the wartime and post-war coöperation, with no territorial expansion or interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

2. The soviet union holds no territorial ambitions either in Europe or Asia, "including Iran." [Russian and British troops now occupy Iran.] Russia also made no secret— agreements with the British or the United States.

U. S. to Send More Aid Faster.

3. American supplies will be "greater" and will come "faster."

4. "Complete unanimity of views" was reached at London and Washington for a second front in Europe in 1942 which would create "insurmountable difficulties for Germany."

Molotov said the London treaty and the Washington agreement were "destined to hasten the rout of Hitlerism and serve as the basis for postwar relations among the soviet union, Great Britain, and the United States."

VATICAN AUTHORIZES EVENING MASSES FOR MEN IN ARMED FORCES

New York, June 18 (AP).—Afternoon and evening masses will be held for United States Catholics in the armed forces who are unable to attend morning services, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman announced today.

Archbishop Spellman.

The New York archbishop, who is military vicar of the Catholic churches in the United States, said permission for the later masses was given in a decree of the sacred congregation of the sacraments, a department of the Vatican.

It followed pleas of both chaplains and men for greater opportunities for daily mass and growing attendance at weekday mass and holy communion, the announcement said, adding that chaplains and men in many camps had given "substantial evidence" of their desire to sacrifice their afternoon recreation hour so they might attend the services.

A fast of four hours from solid food and one hour from liquids was prescribed both for celebrant and communicants.

The archbishop said rigid restrictions guard the extraordinary privilege against any danger of laxity or irreverence and that chaplains will be instructed to acquaint their spiritual charges with the terms of the rescript.

The dispensation was granted in this country probably for the first time, church officials said. Chaplains were instructed that the new privilege normally will be exercised only on weekdays and holy days of obligation, except in certain classes of posts which follow a seven day schedule, precluding general attendance at mass on Sunday mornings.

SEVASTOPOL HIT HARD, BUT STILL HOLDS, SAY REDS

Hurls Back Nazi Drives as 3d Week of Siege Opens.

MOSCOW, June 19 [Friday] (AP).—The soviet defenders of Sevastopol continued to hurl back waves of German attacks, the Russian high command announced today as the besieged Crimean naval fortress began its third week of resistance to Germany's offensive. The midnight communique said the German losses were heavy.

In various other sectors it was stated that fighting continued, but there were no essential changes. On the Kharkov front activity was limited by thunderstorms which drenched the battlefield where the Russians have stood firm against a nine day German offensive.

Sevastopol admittedly was hard pressed by the battering land and air assaults which started June 5, but according to official sources in Moscow the lines had not been penetrated.

Repulse Tank Assaults.

A battlefront dispatch to Pravda, official Communist party newspaper, described the soviet defense as unyielding, with infantry standing firm in the face of tank attacks and with point blank artillery fire taking a terrific toll of Germans.

On the Kharkov front, barring the northern route to the Caucasus, the information bureau yesterday said the Reds repulsed another tank led infantry attack.

Two Miles from Harbor: Nazis.

BERLIN, June 18 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command today announced that Sevastopol's Maxim Gorky fort, described by the Nazis as the "most modern and strongest bastion of the whole fortress," had been stormed by German infantrymen and engineers.

This thrust, against the northern part of the Crimean city's defenses, carried the Germans to within two miles of the harbor entrance, the high command added.

The high command said German and Rumanian troops had driven the Russians out of important positions on the southern part of the Sevastopol fortress, while Russian stores and supply vessels were destroyed by air attacks in the harbor district.

Russian attacks on the Volkhov front southeast of Leningrad were reported repulsed again.

German dive bombers raided supply steamers in Murmansk harbor, the high command said. Fighters escorting the Stukas shot down 11 enemy fighters, the Germans added.

SALES LEVY OUT, THO TAX BILL IS 2 BILLION SHORT

Measure to Reach Floor of House by July 6.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The largest tax bill in the history of the nation will be sent to the floor of congress by July 6 without provision for a general sales tax, the house ways and means committee decided today. Despite the enormity of the levies calling for additional revenue of $6,640,100,000, the measure will reach the house over 2 billion dollars short of the 8.7 billion goal set by the treasury.

Committee members, subject to a formal vote tomorrow, tentatively agreed that a sales tax yielding 2½ billions should not be imposed in this, an election year. This action was taken after months of wrangling in closed committee sessions. The sales tax was opposed by the treasury which had requested a drastic boost in income taxes, which was also refused by the committee.

Excise Levies Pending.

Measures approved by the committee to date provide for the $6,640,100,000 new revenue. Yet to be acted upon by the committee are other measures for excise taxes on such things as soft drinks, candy and chewing gum. Also before the group is the question of post-war credits or refunds of excess profits on corporations.

This proposal was advanced by Donald M. Nelson, head of the War Production board, and received the support of administration leaders. A final decision is due tomorrow.

Ranking members of the committee reported that the sudden decision to speed the bill to floor consideration was influenced by [1] growing restiveness on the part of the congressmen who have been struggling for three months to find new sources of revenue and to increase the burden on the old, and [2] primary campaigns this summer in which many members are facing stiff fights to retain their seats.

Meanwhile, the senate is expected to receive the bill on July 12 and to turn it over to its finance committee for consideration probably as lengthy as that given in the house. Final passage by congress appears unlikely before early fall at the earliest.

Coffee Tax Turned Down.

A list of excise taxes, suggested by the treasury and the joint committee and members of the committee itself, were reported to have been turned down by the house group today. These included levies on coffee, tea, spices, sugar, electric energy, and several other items that were not specified.

In the work on the post-war credit proposal, the group is said to be considering a proviso that whatever amount is granted corporations will be taxed as capital gains at the rate of 15 per cent.

Nelson has suggested that the 94 per cent excess profits tax recommended by the committee might impair the war program by eliminating the profit incentive from the business economy. He urged an excess profits tax of 80 per cent with the allowance of a 20 per cent credit in the form of bonds which might be used in the post-war period by corporations to readjust themselves and provide jobs during the conversion to peacetime production.

Many members of the committee were said to favor this proposition.

3 Sailors Jump Off Vichy Ship to Join 'Free French'

New York, June 18 [Special].—Three French sailors jumped overboard from their Vichy ships to get to Gibraltar and now have arrived in London to join the "Free French" navy, the British radio reported today. BBC said that one of the sailors reported anti-German sabotage in the port of La Rochelle. The broadcast also said the sailors told how one of the Vichy ships tried to make a dash for Gibraltar, but was headed back by an escort vessel.

Joseph C. [Yellow Kid] Weil who previously had pleaded he was penniless and needed the services of the public defender to represent him in a 10 year old confidence game charge, appeared yesterday before Judge Harold Ward in Criminal court with his own lawyer, Attorney Morris G. Meyers. When Meyers, a former assistant state's attorney, informed the court he planned to present several technical motions to dismiss the charge, Judge Ward set Tuesday for hearing of arguments. Weil is accused of defrauding Mrs. Bertha Harter and her daughter, Agnes, of $32,000 in 1932. The "Kid," lacking $10,000 bail, is in the county jail.

U. S. PROPAGANDA RAPPED IN HOUSE AS BEWILDERING

Hope Is Expressed Davis Will Cut 'Deadwood.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The sprawling, confused, poorly organized press agencies of the New Deal's information service have led to the confusion and bewilderment of the people, Rep. Roy O. Woodruff [R., Mich.] told the house today.

"It is an astounding thing in American life," said Woodruff, "when we stop to realize that there are about 35,000 press agents on the public pay roll. The cost of these publicity people in their salaries and expenses of their operations runs far beyond $25,000,000 a year—nobody knows how far beyond that.

"It becomes more astounding when we realize that the administration had to appoint some 15,000 censors to censor the work of these press agents."

Cheered by Davis' Job.

The appointment of Elmer Davis, radio commentator, to direct all news and propaganda agencies of the government will be encouraging to the nation, Woodruff said.

"It is devoutly to be hoped," he told members, "that Davis will be more successful in wielding an intelligent power in pruning out a great mass of this publicity and public relations deadwood from the government pay roll than Donald M. Nelson [chairman of the War Production board] has been.

"The people have confidence in Nelson. They believe he would have done a better job if he had been given the free hand the President said he would have when he took the job. He would have accomplished much more than he has been able to accomplish to date.

"It is because of the confusion and futility which have arisen thru the appointment of first one authority, then another, board upon board, bureau upon bureau, commission upon commission, which have succeeded each other so rapidly in war effort, that the people have lost confidence thru a confused and bewildered state of mind.

"The American people never have feared any situation, no matter how dangerous, if they could understand it, if they could know about it, and when they could meet and grapple with it intelligently. The only things that can whip America today are confusion and deceit.

People Should Get Facts.

"It is devoutly to be hoped that Elmer Davis will clear up this confusion, end these deceits, have the courage to tell the American people the facts, pleasant or unpleasant, which the American people have ample courage to hear, to the fullest extent consonant with necessary military strategy."

[Davis, Saturday, was appointed head of the Office of War Information, with wide control over government publicity bureaus.]

"If Davis is prevented from performing as the American people expect and believe he will perform in keeping them advised of all the facts they should know concerning the progress of the war," Woodruff added, "the damage to the public morale and the public confidence in the American government, and in the war effort itself, will be so great as gravely to endanger our victory.

"This must not be. The American people are entitled to all the facts possible to give them. They have the courage to know all the facts it is possible to give them. They have the capacity to meet any situation these facts might disclose."

Report Air Lines May Use 1 Engine Planes for Mail

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The nation's air lines, which recently had to abandon service on approximately 25 routes or segments of routes because of equipment shortages, may resume the use of single motored planes to carry mail and express. The air lines have not used such planes for years, but the civil aeronautics board was reported today to be considering allowing their use except for carrying passengers on routes where service has been suspended. Some air lines were reported to have such planes.

TAFT ASKS U. S. TO SPARE OLDER MEN IN DRAFT

Urges New Classifications to Permit This.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.] today urged sweeping revision of the dependency classifications for draft registrants to stabilize the nation's man power supply and prevent unnecessary hardships resulting from conscription of older married men.

He presented the senate with a detailed analysis of the number of registrants and the numbers available for induction. Taft disclosed that there are approximately 11,479,000 men over 30 with wives and children, or with exceptional cases of other dependents, who probably never will be called up for combat service.

Favors Clarifying Status.

"If this is the fact," he said, "it is wise to tell them now that their proper work is at home and that they should devote themselves wholeheartedly to the support of the war thru civilian activities."

He also warned that congress soon must decide whether men 18 and 19 years old are to be summoned before married men or those in the higher age brackets.

The 18 and 19 year olds can be registered under the existing draft law, but are barred from induction until they reach 20 unless they volunteer.

Urges Four New Groups.

Taft's proposal for reclassifying the dependency deferments would require local boards to divide those now in III-A into at least four separate groups based on the degree of dependency. Those with a lesser degree of obligations would be called first, and no class would be pressed into service until substantially all the preceding classes had been exhausted.

Following are the classes he suggested:

1. Those without wives or children but with dependent parents, minor sisters and brothers who are under 37.
2. Those with wives but without children and under 37.
3. Those living with wives and children, or children only, and under 30.
4. All other class III. registrants, including those over 30 years old with wives and children, or children only, and exceptional cases from the first three classes.

Authority for President Roosevelt to order the selective service system to make these reclassifications is contained in the allowances and allotment bill for support of dependents of fighting men on which congress completed action today. The measure was sent to the White House.

Taft said in his analysis of available man power that the men reaching 20 years in 1942 and 1943, plus the 26,000,000 already registered, will provide a grand total of 28,420,000 on the selective service rolls.

More if Ages Changed.

Another 1,200,000 would become available if congress lowered the minimum age for fighting service and authorized the induction of boys of 19, he added.

The following table shows Taft's version of how such a vast fighting machine could be raised from the men available and in the order in which the different categories would be called:

1. Men in the regular armed forces on Oct. 16, 1940—800,000.
2. Registrants classified as 1-A before Dec. 31, 1942—4,795,000.
3. Men classified as 1-B but available for limited service—estimated at 300,000.
4. Proposed class 3-A—550,000.
5. Proposed class 3-B—1,300,000.

Total available in 1942 under present law—7,745,000.

6. Men becoming 20 in 1943—648,000.
7. Men becoming 19 in 1943—648,000.
8. Proposed class 3-C—800,000.

Total available by Dec. 31, 1943, if 19 year olds inducted—9,841,000.

9. Men becoming 19 in 1944—648,000.

Grand total without calling on class 3-D—10,489,000.

He emphasized that the figures are rough estimates based on his own research into the limited statistical material available.

Taft Warns Senators of Huge Liability.

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The senate rejected, 34 to 26, today a proposal by Sen. Robert Taft [R., O.] to exclude air raid wardens and other civilian defense workers injured in practice black-outs from the provisions of a measure authorizing federal financial benefits of from $10 to $85 a month to persons injured or to their heirs if killed in enemy attacks.

Taft asserted that unless his proposal is carried up to 6,000,000 persons who give part time service to civilian defense activities might be brought within the scope of the bill, which would provide monthly cash benefits for injury, death, or capture by enemy forces.

Objects to New Pensioners.

The Ohioan also objected to what he said was the creation by the measure of a "new class of pensioners."

Despite efforts by Taft and others to limit the scope of the bill, Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] predicted early senate passage in its present form.

Providing monthly cash payments for the injury, disability, death, or enemy detention of civilians, the measure would establish the machinery for coördinated relief of wartime civilian distress on an emergency basis in areas which had suffered from bombing or other attacks.

Applies in Territories.

Pepper said the measure would apply to civilians in the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The President also would be authorized to extend the benefits to other areas outside the United States and make them retroactive to Dec. 7, when the United States entered the war.

Soldier in the Caribbean Sends Thanks for Smokes

The "Smokes for Yanks" drive conducted by THE TRIBUNE last Christmas still finds pleasant echoes, according to a letter received yesterday from a staff sergeant in the Caribbean area by Miss Helen Smith, 1521 East 73d street. She and another girl gave a carton of cigarets in the drive. The sergeant, writing for his group who received the cigarets, said, "We thank you for your kindness," adding such kindness helps make the boys contented while away from home.

SON OF VETERAN IS INDICTED AS DRAFT VIOLATOR

Arrested Last August, Jailed for Week.

Robert Watson Barker, 29 year old son of a wealthy Highland Park manufacturer and Canadian war veteran, was charged with violation of the selective service act yesterday in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury.

Robert W. Barker.

Barker, who is a graduate of Cornell university, was first arrested last Aug. 6 and spent a week in jail before the government quashed the charge because he was more than 28 years old, then the maximum age limit for military service.

At that time Barker issued a statement accusing the government of "evading the issue" by failing to prosecute him and stating that "the government is afraid of arousing further opposition to the draft."

Barker's father, William H. Barker, who opposes his son's pacifist views, is president of Boynton & Co., manufacturers of steel moldings, and a former vice president of the Northern Trust company. The elder Barker served overseas as a lieutenant in the Canadian army during the Boer war and was a captain and instructor during the first World war.

Young Barker is a follower of Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian leader, who believes that evils can be stamped out by passive resistance. He lives with his parents at 179 Prospect street, Highland Park.

Three other indictments charging violations of the draft law were returned by the grand jury. Bruno Rylewicz, 23, of 1344 West 18th place, and Frank Adam Sypien, 24, of 1204 Greenwood avenue, Chicago Heights, were charged with failure to report for induction. Both claim they are exempt as ordained ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses, religious sect.

Lemuel Anderson, 36, colored, of 510 East 67th street, was indicted on a charge of failing to fill out his draft questionnaire.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Cigar stores that gave a free book of matches with purchases last March must continue to do so or reduce their prices the value of the matches, the Office of Price Administration ruled today. Because the cost of matches has increased many counters thruout the country discontinued the gift package. This discontinuance, without any compensating price cut, the OPA ruled, is a violation of the general maximum price regulation.

The OPA outlawed another recent innovation in retailing—also trivial, but annoying to customers. The administration decided that it is a violation to charge an extra penny for a paper cup to carry a drink from a soda fountain or drug store if this penny was not charged in March, the base period for fixing the general price ceiling.

Herbert Swope Is Named War Department Expert

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The appointment of Herbert Bayard Swope, publicist and former newspaper reporter and Pulitzer prize winner, as an expert consultant to Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, in the war department bureau of public relations, was announced today by Secretary Henry L. Stimson. Stimson said at his press conference that Swope will not be on full time duty, but will be available on call from Gen. Surles. Swope has worked on several leading newspapers. He was a correspondent with the German armies in 1914-1916, and also at the peace conference in Paris.

SPEEDY, SILENT CAR GIVES TREAT TO WEARY RIDER

Madison Street Blocked by Double Parking.

(This is the fifth article of a series telling experiences of a Tribune reporter making a survey of Chicago's street car service under the new 8 cent fare.)

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

After three days of bouncing around on 25 to 37 year old street cars you decide to give yourself a treat. You go for a ride on one of the 83 strapless, streamlined Madison street cars. You board No. 7033, purchased at $15,500 in 1937, at Jefferson street [600 west]. It's only 10:11 a. m. and already the big green and white car is crowded, but you manage to wedge into a seat at the rear.

The first thing you notice is the speed. Without half trying, the motorman from a standing start beats out a 1941 auto in a pickup race.

You notice something else different about this car. It's virtually silent. You listen for the usual anvil-like clanging of iron against iron, but you don't hear it. Then you recall having read that the wheels and undercarriages of these cars are mounted on rubber.

Gong Makes Most of Noise.

Quietly you sail past Halsted street, past the 10 cent whisky signs in the saloons, and the cage hotels that advertise free tub baths with a night's lodging.

The only sounds you hear, besides the motorman beating a tattoo on the gong for double parked trucks, are the hissing of the brakes at the corners and the soft swishing of the automatic doors as they slide open and shut.

A dozen passengers get off at Western avenue, and there are plenty of seats now. At Pulaski road the street widens and the motorman goes for blocks without using the gong. You get off at Central avenue [5600 west] at 10:39 a. m.—50 blocks, or six and one-quarter miles, in 28 minutes.

Gets a Shaking Up.

You transfer to a northbound Central avenue trolley bus at 10:41. It is No. 78, a 1931 model, and it's crowded. After a few blocks you realize that you're back to normal or a bit worse.

The pavement is smooth, but the bus bounces and rattles. When you cross east and west street car tracks the bus shakes and trembles, the windows shudder, wood and tin creak, and you feel sure that every seam in the bus is splitting. The jarring reminds you of those electric vibrators barbers put on your head; in this case, however, you vibrate all over.

At one point the motorman adjusts the quivering rear vision mirror which has jarred out of place. At Diversey avenue the bus is half empty. "Guess the passengers couldn't stand any more of it," you mutter.

You get off at Milwaukee and Foster avenues, the end of the line, at 11:08—riding 52 blocks, or four and one-half miles, in 27 minutes.

[According to the official riding time schedule of the Chicago Surface Lines, street cars are supposed to average from 10 to 12 miles an hour, buses close to 15 miles an hour. In these cases the Madison car averaged about 13.4 miles an hour and the Central bus 14.4 miles an hour.]

Double Parking Again.

At 11:14 you board Milwaukee-Downtown car No. 529. This car was constructed in 1909 and rebuilt in 1921. Milwaukee avenue, slanting thru the northwest side in a short-cut to the loop, is as clogged with double parkers and truck traffic as lower Madison street. The car, which is only half to three-quarters filled during the entire distance, sways and rocks.

Between Division street and Chicago avenue the sides of the street are blocked off for construction work and you pick up a little speed. At Chicago avenue the motorman begins clanging the gong again for trucks in his way.

The car turns into Washington street and the wheels shriek. The lights go on and you plunge down the tunnel under the river. At the bottom the car stops and the motor strains as it begins the uphill climb. Finally you see daylight again. You are at La Salle street at 12:05. Riding time, 51 minutes for a ride of slightly less than eight and one-quarter miles, or about six minutes a mile.

BERWYN SCHOOL TRUSTEE NAMED IN BRIBERY BILL

Ernest Holub, a member of Berwyn school board No. 98, was reported named in a true bill voted by the grand jury yesterday on charges of accepting bribes to obtain school teaching positions for two women. Holub, who lives at 1410 South Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, has denied the accusation.

The true bill was based on the complaint of Miss Vera Prochaska, 310 Southcote road, Riverside, who asserted in an affidavit that she gave Holub $150 during the 1938 Christmas holidays to get her a job. Another former teacher, Mrs. Helen Sholod Thomas, 1905 Wenonah avenue, Berwyn, charged she paid $150 to Holub for her job.

MORE SUMMER RADIO SHOWS TO BE READY SOON

The long Tuesday night comedy list is breaking up. Bob Burns is gone already and his place has been taken by a war program titled the Nature of the Enemy. Red Skelton yielded his spot to Tommy Dorsey's band.

Bob Hope is thru for the season and A Date with Judy goes into his period next Tuesday. Fibber McGee and Molly will yield to Meredith Willson's music, with comments by John Nesbitt, on June 30. Duffy's Tavern is to disappear and that will leave Tuesday night without much comedy.

There are some comedy replacements at other spots. Edna Mae Oliver will go into the Jack Benny period with a comedy serial, "The Private Life of Josephine Tuttle" on July 7. W-G-N has launched a new comedy serial, "Château Hogan," aired also over Mutual, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesdays.

142 SINGLE MEN DROPPED FROM RELIEF ROLLS

Eighty-two single men formerly on relief have found jobs and 142 have been dropped from the rolls since the Chicago Welfare administration began its program last month to encourage unmarried men to support themselves, George J. Klupar, Chicago welfare commissioner, announced yesterday. Approximately 1,700 men have been notified to find employment. The CWA will assist men in seeking work and will provide meals and beds in the city lodging house for those seeking employment.

GIVE UP FAIRS TO CUT TRAVEL, EASTMAN ASKS

Includes Conventions; '42 Vacations O. K.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, today appealed to the public to defer until after the war all state and county fairs, and all meetings, conventions, and group tours that would involve mass movements. He said the purpose of his request is to conserve railroad, bus, and automobile facilities for transportation essential to war and to the civilian wartime economy.

Eastman approved 1942 vacations but recommended that they should be planned so as not to overload railroads and buses. He added that private passenger cars should not be used for extensive pleasure tours.

"If the American people will voluntarily impose certain restrictions upon their travel such as are here indicated," Eastman said, referring to his written statement, "there is good reason to hope that no drastic control over travel will be necessary."

Tells of Travel Burden.

The statement outlined the burden that has been placed upon railroads and bus lines by troop movements and by the reduction in private automobile operations—a 50 per cent increase in passenger volume since last year—and enumerated four Office of Defense Transportation requests for voluntary restrictions on travel. They are:

"1. Defer all meetings, conventions, and tours of groups not closely related to the furtherance of the war effort, since such mass movements interfere with regularly scheduled traffic and frequently require the use of extra equipment.

"In the case of meetings closely related to the war effort, attendance should be skeletonized along the lines of the splendid example set by the American Legion in its forthcoming convention.

Cautions Farmers on Tires.

"2. Postpone all state and county fairs. Farmers should not be encouraged to use, for nonessential purposes such as these, the tires which are so necessary to their livelihood and so necessary to provide a continuing food supply. Nor should they transfer the burden of such travel to public carriers.

"3. Vacations are desirable from the standpoint of public health, efficiency, and morale, and vacation business has furnished a means of livelihood to many people in various parts of the country. Clearly, however, private passenger cars should not now be used for extensive vacation travel, and if such travel should be concentrated in large volume on the railroad and bus lines during the summer months, there is danger of serious congestion."

Ask Staggered Vacations.

The statement suggested that employers should stagger the vacations of employés thruout the year. It also asked that employés leave and return from vacations during the middle of the week, to curb week-end congestion.

Eastman's statement added:

"4. Do not travel, aside from vacations, for mere pleasure or when travel can readily be avoided. The railroad and bus lines have taken commendable action in eliminating inducement fares, advertising intended to stimulate travel, excursions, and the operation of special trains to recreational events and meetings."

HOUSE ADOPTS BILL TO DEFER SOLDIER DEBTS

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Legislation designed to protect the civil rights of service men while they are in the armed forces was passed unanimously today by the house and sent to the senate.

A highly technical measure, it won house approval after brief debate and an explanation by Rep. John J. Sparkman [D., Ala.] that its primary purpose was to "give relief to the boy who is called into service" and to afford him a "reasonable time" in which to adjust his financial position after his return to civilian life.

Under the bill's provisions the government guarantees the payment of premiums on private life insurance policies purchased by a service man up to $10,000, giving the purchaser four years after his discharge to liquidate the premiums that have accumulated in his absence.

It relieves a service man of liability for payments under leases after he is called into service, and limits to 6 per cent the interest that may be charged on an obligation incurred prior to entering the service, regardless of whether higher rates were agreed to in the original contract.

Bridges Given More Time to Remain in Washington

San Francisco, Cal., June 18 [Special].—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure today extended until July 5 the period during which Harry R. Bridges, recently ordered deported as an alien Communist, may be absent from the jurisdiction of the federal District court of northern California. Bridges, who is free under $3,000 bond pending habeas corpus proceedings, was permitted to go to Washington early this month under instructions to be back here by next Sunday. A spokesman said Bridges was conferring with government officials in connection with the war effort.

NAZIS FIND WAR BOTTLENECK IN TRANSPORTATION

Neglected Railroads Under Big Strain.

BERNE, Switzerland, June 18 (AP).—Failure of German transportation to keep pace with the reich's expanding frontiers has created a bottleneck in Germany's war economy which her own experts declare exceeds in urgency the labor and raw materials problems.

[Louis P. Lochner, former chief of the Associated Press Berlin bureau, recently blamed Germany's transportation difficulties on the fact that Adolf Hitler neglected railways to build superhighways.]

Rolling stock of the reich, as well as that of other European countries, literally is having its wheels run off in the Nazi effort to meet transportation demands. Freight cars and locomotives of the occupied countries are seized while steps are being taken to get more in neighboring countries.

Swiss Also Coöperate.

Italy has been called for aid while, the Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuericher Zeitung said, "Switzerland also is coöperating in a certain measure so that the problem would not become worse."

The state secretary of the reich traffic ministry, who was called from the eastern front to help solve the difficulties, declared in a recent interview that enlargement and renovation of railroad yards could not keep step with the expanding railroad system.

War needs are always given the right of way, and passenger traffic has been throttled both in Germany and Italy with soldiers' leaves curtailed.

Turn to Waterways.

In an effort to relieve the railroad load, the Nazis are turning to waterways as much as possible. The state secretary of the traffic ministry said the 1941 increase in the use of waterways over the previous year was 25,000,000 tons, or 20 per cent. But even the waterways are jammed.

Ruse, a northern Bulgarian town on the Danube, is jammed with boats because of the lack of railway facilities, it was reported. Danube traffic in 1941 was nearly 4,000,000 tons, up 1,000,000 over the first World war. Much of this was by oil tankers.

Firemen Bring West Coast Ark to a Blazing Finish

Olympia, Wash., June 18 (AP).—William Greenwood's ark suffered a different fate than its Biblical predecessor. With city firemen conducting a cleanup drive, Greenwood, 70 years old, watched his ark go up in smoke as part of the drive. He built it 22 years ago to meet future "floods."

Skipper of Marblehead Nominated for Promotion

Executor Testifies

White Plains, N. Y., June 18 (AP).—Walter D. Fletcher, an executor of the will by which the late Mrs. Anna H. Paton left a large part of her $1,300,000 estate to Dr. Henry Darlington, Episcopal rector, testified today that the widow was entirely rational and not "unduly influenced" by any one when she ordered the will changed from time to time.

Relatives of Mrs. Paton are seeking to break the will, charging an illicit love affair between the pastor and wealthy widow. Proponents of the will said the charges were "conjured up."

Explaining he prepared the will, Fletcher testified in surrogate's court that he was sure Mrs. Paton was under no restraint at any time, and he exhibited various notes he said he had received from Mrs. Paton directing him as to changes.

Mrs. Elijah H. Siter, widow of Mrs. Paton's brother, and her two daughters, Mrs. Mary Owen and Mrs. Elizabeth Pemberton, all of Philadelphia, are the contestants. The will, the last of 14 made by Mrs. Paton, bequeathed them $5,000 each.

SEEK TRANSPORT PLAN BASED ON NECESSITY ONLY

Use of local transportation facilities must be governed by necessity only.

That was the theme of a meeting of 25 representatives of local governmental agencies yesterday in the office of Philip Harrington, city commissioner of subways and superhighways. Last week Harrington was named administrator for the conservation of vital war transportation in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Merrill C. Knox, transportation engineer for the Illinois Commerce commission, who is now serving as a regional consultant for the Office of Defense Transportation, told the group that unnecessary use of private automobiles must stop if war workers are to have transportation facilities.

Harrington announced formation of an organization for war transportation conservation. One branch, headed by Charles E. De Leuw, traction engineer, will deal with mass transportation facilities, and the other, headed by James E. Bulger, vice president of the Chicago Motor club, with private automobiles.

BILLION A WEEK! THAT'S PACE OF WAR SPENDING

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Budget Director Harold D. Smith revealed today that government war expenditures have climbed to approximately $1,000,000,000 per week.

The accelerated war production pace, Smith said, "assures our hitting on the nose our estimate of $28,000,000,000 of war expenditures for the fiscal year which ends this month."

He said the pace also made more probable his estimate that $70,000,000,000 would be spent for war in the coming fiscal year.

Treasury expenditures for war purposes alone, Smith explained, have climbed steadily from $409,400,000 in the week before Pearl Harbor to $944,100,000 last week.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

BATTLESHIPS ARE OUT.

The house naval affairs committee has approved an appropriation of 8½ billion dollars for ship construction. At last—at long last—the battleship is out. Scarce materials and the time of skilled workmen are still being wasted on the completion of some of the big battle wagons and heavy cruisers already started, but in future the shipyards are to be put to better uses. The plans for a series of 60,000 ton battleships are to gather dust. Some of the cruisers already laid down are to be converted into airplane carriers and a fleet of new carriers is to be given first priority.

That is as it should be, of course, but the naval administration deserves anything but credit for changing direction at this late date. The burocrats who were supposed to be in closest touch with developments in naval warfare kept their minds shut to the lessons of the war in European waters and only now have come to concede the truth of what airmen have been saying for years and laymen have long understood.

Gen. Mitchell was court martialed for advocating 15 years ago what is now the official policy. Rickenbacker, Al Williams, and Lindbergh were consigned to the doghouse. Airmen like De Seversky were regarded as cranks and nuisances. Yet they were right and so, too, were the many laymen who saw the light long before the burocracy awoke from its long sleep.

These remarks are not made from hindsight, as our readers know. Writing on Sept. 22, 1941, nearly three months before Pearl Harbor, we said: "What we need is an air navy. . . . The money being spent on the expansion of an old-fashioned navy is for much the most part being thrown into the ocean. Hundreds of thousands of tons of steel needed for other kinds of armament are being squandered. A modern navy is an air navy, operating from land bases and airplane carriers. Such a navy will destroy any surface fleet. . . ."

A few weeks earlier, on Sept. 10, we said: "Increasingly planes are taking control of the sea. . . . The old men who direct our navy may not appreciate this. If so, it is to be hoped most fervently that they learn it before some great naval catastrophe drives the fact home." The great naval catastrophe of Pearl Harbor came three months later, and even that didn't drive the lesson home. Months later the battleships still had first priority on materials and labor. Aluminum needed for airplanes was being used to build chairs for use on battleships.

Six months ago, on Dec. 19, THE TRIBUNE spoke of "the passing of the battleship as a ship of war and the creation of the airplane carrier as the mistress of the seas." Two days later: "We need a lot of airplane carriers in a hurry." But only now has the naval burocracy come around.

Sometimes readers complain of repetition in editorial comment. Here is a demonstration of the need for repetition. It takes a lot of pounding to drive sense into some heads.

BUILDING DEPARTMENTS AND BUILDING RACKETS.

The effectiveness of City Architect Paul Gerhardt Jr. in his new post as city building commissioner should be measured very quickly by the extent to which Mr. Gerhardt undertakes the badly needed house cleaning in the building department.

It is a rather sad commentary on Chicago government that it required the alleged sabotage of defense housing construction by the department to bring about a change in its directors, inasmuch as the same sort of sabotage has been going on against every other type of construction for decades, if not without protest at least without effective remedy. The building department and the city building code, which is one of the worst instruments of racketeering in the country, have naturally been Siamese twins. Not only has the department had a large voice in shaping the code, but it has been the administrator of the multitude of provisions that were designed, not for the protection of the occupants of buildings, but to serve various special interests at public expense.

Mr. Gerhardt is said to possess executive talents. He will need them, along with firm backing from the mayor, if he is to clean up the department entrusted to him. Perhaps it is not too optimistic to hope that under his guidance and advice the city council may eventually clean out of the building code many of those provisions which make it so readily useful to racketeers. The amendments sponsored by the Federal Housing administration to liberalize construction restrictions, adopted by the city council under pressure of the war emergency, are at least a step in the right direction. When the benefits which they confer are generally realized it is to be hoped that the reform will be made permanent and be expanded.

Richard E. Schmidt, the retiring building commissioner, now in his 77th year, has had a long and distinguished career in Chicago both as an architect and as a public servant. It is not for lack of effort on his part that he was not more successful in ending abuses long entrenched in the department when he took it over.

POLITICS IN GEORGIA.

The attorney general of Georgia holds in an opinion that schools used by white children cannot be used to train Negroes for places in war industry even when the white children are on vacation. The training program is sponsored by the federal department of education, but the attorney general asserts that "equitable opportunities" as sought by the department for all citizens, white or black, is a "variable term," and that Georgia is one of the variations. In other words, Georgia is not to be bound by any ideas held by the federal government that the colored man should have a chance to improve his economic status.

This stand will hardly come as a surprise to any one who has observed the demagogic governor, Eugene Talmadge, trying to make political capital out of the race question. The attorney general wants to run for the governorship also, and he apparently feels that the only way he can compete with Talmadge is to become the same kind of rabble rouser. A shortage of trained war workers undoubtedly is developing in the south, as it is elsewhere, but rather than give the Negro a chance politicians of this stripe would let production fall off.

If the four freedoms are good for export they should be equally serviceable at home. The President's committee on fair employment practices may consider the situation in Georgia as deserving of investigation. In doing so the committee will have the active support of many of the state's most distinguished white men and women, if one may judge from the indignation aroused by Gov. Talmadge's acts of intolerance.

THE FORTITUDE OF THE BRITISH PEOPLE.

Two years ago the people of the British Isles faced the most appalling danger which could threaten a country. Every other threat in their national experience was dwarfed in comparison with this peril. Suddenly they had found themselves confronting a military machine which seemed irresistible and an enemy with a savage and ruthless government.

The British army had lost all its equipment in Flanders and, disorganized, was back from Dunkirk shattered by defeat. The men had crossed the channel in 1939 singing, "Roll Out the Barrel" and "We'll Hang Our Washing on the Siegfried Line." It was no fault of theirs that they thought they were to take up World War II. where World War I. had left off.

In June, 1940, everything on the European continental front had collapsed. It could do the people no good just then to ask why so many mistakes had been made. Holland and Belgium had gone, France had gone, and the world was tumbling down. When in mid-June, 1940, Marshal Petain was ready to take on his shoulders the consequences of his country's greatest military humiliation, the British people apparently had only 20 miles of water between them and the swift conqueror.

We have seen in recent months how little the British fleet might have availed to stop an invasion across the narrow waters if the fleet had been the only obstacle. German bombers might have destroyed any warships caught in the water lanes.

In July, Hitler, having visited the tomb of Napoleon to satisfy his vanity, offered Britain terms. "I see no reason why this war should go on," he said, July 19, 1940, in a long harangue in which he distributed credit and praise to the men to whom he attributed the astonishing victories which had put western Europe at his feet. That offer was rejected as scornfully as if Great Britain had an army with which to resist the invader if he could land.

Then Goering and his air force received the assignment which he had anticipated as certain of success. That was to turn the full force of German air power loose for the annihilation of British cities, ports, industries, transportation, and population. Goering had threatened the British with this total destruction, but two things had been left out of his calculations. One was the British air force and the other was the fortitude of the British people.

From August to the end of October, Goering lost 2,300 planes and, altho the destruction by bombing had been great, the German losses scared the Nazis. Maj. De Seversky is of the opinion that if Goering had not lost his courage he might have been on the point of getting a dividend on his expenditures. The major is also of the opinion that the superiority of the British fighting planes over the German was the key to the Nazi defeat in what was called the battle of Britain.

The British people took their part in the defense by enduring a casualty list which in 11 months was larger than the military losses in killed and wounded in 21 months. That fortitude helped to save the island fortress, and it is to that fortitude that tribute should be paid. There was nothing in military successes elsewhere to sustain the morale. There was only a record of reverses which realized Mr. Churchill's warning of blood, sweat, and tears.

Brighter days seem in store for the British people. Air supremacy is gradually becoming theirs. Altho a brave front was maintained, no one evades the fact now that two years ago Great Britain was in desperate straits, and the gauleiter and Himmler's agents were not very far away.

THE NEW SUPREME COURT.

The two new members of the Illinois Supreme court, Mr. Justice William J. Fulton of Sycamore and Mr. Justice Charles H. Thompson of Harrisburg, have taken their places on the bench. The ceremony was a simple one. After Chief Justice Loren E. Murphy had administered the oath of office the dean of the court, Mr. Justice Clyde Stone, spoke briefly.

The majority of the court for the first time since 1933, he said, is composed of Republicans, but, he added, "it doesn't make any difference whether the members of this court are Republicans or Democrats. That is the thing that will maintain public confidence in our courts."

The sentiment was a fitting one. It would be unfortunate, indeed, if political considerations were to guide our courts, and in particular our highest courts, in the decision of litigation. The loyalty of our judges must be to the Constitutions—federal and state—and to the laws. Only so can the independence of the courts be preserved and only independent courts can keep a free people free.

The people of Illinois may congratulate themselves on the fact that the judges of their Supreme court are men who are determined to maintain the traditions of the bench.

WOULD WE HAVE AN AMERICAN GOEBBELS?

[Arkansas Gazette.]

Sen. Guffey of Pennsylvania declares that congress will not and should not tolerate press criticism that "evidences a design to undermine public confidence in representative government."

But who would say whether certain criticism of congress evidenced a design to undermine public confidence in representative government? Somewhere there would have to be a Joe Goebbels in the government to make this decision. Apparently to be safe a newspaper would have to submit its criticism in advance to a Washington Joe Goebbels in order to find whether it "evidenced design" to undermine public confidence in representative government.

And what about criticism of congress and the administration coming, not from the public press, but from inside congress? Sen. Guffey trod softly on that delicate ground, declaring that he meant no reflection on "sincere isolationist congressmen who have loyally and patriotically supported the war effort" since Pearl Harbor. But suppose some sincere isolationist or pacifist in congress had kept on opposing war after Pearl Harbor. What would Sen. Guffey do? Let him talk, or fit him with a muzzle of censorship?

CLUB LIFE IN THE AWFUL '80s.

The Owl club of Chicago, a forgotten organization of men-about-town in the 1880s, was discussed in this column recently. Its annals are few; its records have vanished, but it often entertained visiting celebrities of the theatrical and literary world. Franklin Meine, diligent researcher into the lore of Mark Twain, has come across an unpublished letter of Twain's in which he spoke of his reception by the Owls, in nocturnal conclave assembled in their rooms over McVicker's theater.

A rare book called "The Sturla-Stiles Tragedy," by O. E. Turner, published in 1883, devotes a chapter to the Owl club and its raffish reputation. Here is a passage which gives the lowdown on the Owls:

"We find on entering the first floor of the club an elegant reception room. Our feet sink ankle deep in the rich Turkish carpet which covers its floor. Its furniture is upholstered with the richest of crimson velvet, and its mirrored walls repeat and magnify its elegance and, if our vanity is not gratified by beholding in every direction a full reflection of ourself, we can only find relief by turning our eyes toward the ceiling, from which hangs a chandelier embellished by crystal of the most magnificent description, and of such quality and so arranged that its fine prismatic effect is never lost to the beholder.

"The next room is set apart for social entertainment of a colloquial character. The carpet of this room is scarcely less rich or its furniture less elegant, tho of a more sober hue. Upon the walls of this room are hung magnificent original paintings of the old masters; resting conspicuously in the foreground, upon an easel, is a portrait of George Washington. In the rear is a storeroom for cigars, wine closets, etc.

"Upstairs are billiard, pool, card, and poker rooms. In this club, from time to time during the first and second years of its existence, the sons of rich men enrolled their names as members. They were men who consorted with prostitutes, gambled, wore diamonds, and drank champagne. From this time the reputable element diminished in numbers, and the hiatus thus made in the club was filled with men with whom the organizers of the club would not associate in darkness and much less in daylight. Thus about two years ago a large number of the dissipated and abandoned class of men, without heads to understand or hearts to feel or appreciate the difference between virtue and prostitution, had become members of the club. This class of men soon attracted another class who were further advanced than themselves in the qualities which distinguish the libertine and debauchee. These persons were, in the main, sons of rich men, prominent lawyers, and others of national reputation; 20 were sons of well known and opulent members of the Board of Trade."

THE BUSY BUS DRIVER.

(Men About Town.)

The driver of a bus must be
A man of perspicuity,
A virtuoso of the road
Who smiles no matter what the load.
He must see clearly after dark
(Or else get lost in Lincoln park);
He has to steer with skill and care,
Keep right on time, but musn't speed,
And pass out transfers people need.
On signal he's prepared to stop
And wait for slowpokes up on top.
He must keep cool and never ram
Some dope who starts a traffic jam;
He must be stanch, and courteous,

Old Bifocal's got me!

I had thought the change would be dreadful, but it is really a great relief to me—that I don't need trifocals. I am as pleased as a girl at her first party, and it is no end of fun.

I wonder why newspapers are built so long. I have to start with the top of the paper and ooze it up as I read, until I get to the bottom, when it topples over on to the neck of the person in the seat ahead. I wonder how this difficulty could be solved. Let's see. I could stand up when reading the top of the paper and gradually sit down until I was completely seated when reading the bottom part. This would be a bit odd and every one would ask me, "Why do you do that?" and I would have a sign made to hang on my back, reading, "I'm breaking in my new bifocals."

Or I could sit upright for the top part of the newspaper and then gradually slide down in the seat until I came to the bottom, placing my heels on the shoulders of the person in the seat ahead, which would keep the paper out of his neck, if he did not mind my heels, and why should he? Mayoe I could cross my ankles in back of my neck, like I used to do when I was very young, so young that I can't remember ever doing it. This would do away with my lap, which is in the way now.

Ah, me, there is a most delightful spot in bifocals, and that's the place betwixt and between the focals and the bi's. I look right between the two of them, and then, by Allah, I see double. Isn't it intoxicating? Roy Engel.

THE BROOKFIELD BOSWELL.

If I were wise, I should desist
From adding verses to this list.
My zoo friends don't mind in the least
When foibles of each bird and beast
Are turned to tales, where folks may find
A moral good for humankind.
But I've just read in vast alarm
How Aesop long since came to harm.
His fables had a moral, too,
But when his labors all were thru
His neighbors met, andquickasthis,
They tossed him off a precipice!

THE "LIFT" WE GET FROM VITAMIN C.

SO MUCH has been said about vitamins that many of us are rather bored with the subject. On the other hand, these food accessories are highly important. For the most part, they are readily available and it is easy to obtain the proper quota.

FRESH FRUITS and VEGETABLES

It has now been shown that low levels of vitamin C [absorbic acid] will definitely retard recovery from illness. There is reason to believe that those who obtain too little will exhibit less resistance—with more frequent colds and infections.

Not long ago an experiment was conducted in an English school upon 1,500 students whose ages ranged from 15 to 20 years. The most common indispositions were tonsilitis and nasal irritations. There was not much difference in the physical reserve of the boys. A certain percentage was allowed to remain on routine menus. An equal number received reinforcement with C. Sickness occurred nearly as frequently in both groups.

But when it came to convalescence a striking change was observed. For example, among those who were adequately fed, the stay in the hospital was reduced by a third, and there were fewer complications. This was particularly noticeable in severe throat ailments. The conclusion seems warranted that there is something in a well balanced vitamin regimen which is protective and which enables the body to spring back to normal more quickly.

There is no doubt that many individuals live on diets which are somewhat low in C. The chances are that the intake is nearly sufficient, but not quite. Gross symptoms of disease of the mucous membranes, therefore, do not appear. But providing larger quantities of C enhances well-being and the power to repel many minor ailments which otherwise would be encountered.

How much we can accomplish in the prevention of rheumatic fever is not clear. It can be said, however, that acute bouts with this disorder are usually preceded by trouble within the respiratory tract or the throat. The very presence of growing bacteria depletes our storehouses of C, thus allowing microbes greater freedom to disport themselves. Furthermore, with youngsters who are "shooting up" the skeleton will not develop perfectly if the supply over weeks or months is much less than normal.

We all know the remedy—an orange a day or its equivalent. Grapefruit, tomatoes, and many types of fresh fruit may be substituted. One precaution should be observed—namely, do not overcook green vegetables. C may be destroyed in this fashion. We can make sure that air is excluded in the process and that the products of the garden are not steamed to death. Neither should the cooking water be thrown away, as the liquid contains a high concentration of needed elements.

Recently British authorities have turned to rose hips [ripened fruit of the rose bush] as a source of vitamin C. At any rate, they may be supplied whenever oranges are not procurable. Two hundred tons have been processed in British factories. An excellent plan is to convert them into sirup, which youngsters "go for."

STANLEY JOHNSTON'S STORIES.

Hanover, Pa., June 14.—Referring to your copyrighted articles by Stanley Johnston, on the Coral sea action, may I here add my thanks and appreciation to the many you must receive for such a splendid contribution to a news hungry America.

With the numerous advances by the enemy and so much to think about, these articles by Mr. Johnston really go down easy and need no wrencher. That is the way we want the news, and that is the way we'll give it to Hitler and the Japs—straight from the shoulder.

R. B. GARRETT.

Green Bay, Wis., June 15.—I want to express my appreciation of the action of your paper in making available to other newspapers the stories of Stanley Johnston. I think this was a splendid gesture on your part, as the story is stimulating.

I have been interested in Mr. Johnston's welfare since he left his hotel room in Dover so abruptly two years ago. I would like to extend my felicitations to him on his most recent escape.

What Mr. Johnston must have gone thru to get that story to me this morning staggers my imagination. That he could keep his wits about him while going thru that experience shows what newspaper training will do. Incidentally, it probably shows that many have capacities for great things if the opportunity presents itself, but it takes guts!

FORGED TAGS.

Chicago, June 16.—I think the character I encountered last Saturday night should be brought to light.

While changing cars at 79th and Stony Island, last Saturday night, I was accosted by a woman who represented herself as a saleswoman for the Salvation Army doughnut day and asked if I wasn't going to buy a doughnut. When I asked how it happened that she was selling them on Saturday night when Doughnut day wasn't until Tuesday, she said they had been told they could sell them ahead of time because it might rain on Tuesday, and besides, they had so much to do. Altho doubtful of her, I bought one.

Today I have discovered the tag she sold me was not the official tag being sold by the Salvation Army, but evidently a copy of last year's tag. Apparently this woman has a very profitable little racket, for while telling a friend of mine about my experience, she told of a similar one which occurred to her at 71st and Stony Island the Saturday before Poppy day.

UNMARRIED FAMILY HEADS.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 15.—According to the senate approved pay allotment bill for soldiers' dependents, married men with families are to have "priorities." Why is this so? The unmarried young man who must support his "father's family," who has done so for years, is more worthy of deferment than is the married man. His has been and is a heavy lot. Not only is he the provider, but the moral adviser who takes the place that an older, mature father would otherwise take. His are many responsibilities and worries. A. O. JOHNSON.

A FEW MORE FREEDOMS.

Wichita, Kas., June 9.—It is related that when William Lloyd Garrison advised Henry George that he was in complete accord with Mr. George's interpretation of political economy he added, "But I do not think that this will cure all the ills which afflict society." "Nor do I," replied Henry George, "but freedom will!" Mr. George probably had in mind the freedom which would come with international free trade and, more important, the freedom to own land by the payment of ground rent but without having to pay tribute to any landlord, in that way putting an end to the twin evils of land monopoly and land speculation. No doubt he had in mind other forms of needed freedom, but it is important to observe that in recent years and particularly during the Roosevelt dynasty a multitude of new measures which violate the rights of the individual have been imposed upon the public, making the call for freedom even more urgent than it was a generation ago. Among these is the right of a young man to go to work at an early age, without permission of any labor union and without restriction by the government as to hours of labor, minimum wages or the penalizing of employer for working him more than 40 hours a week. Then there is a cry for freedom from the burdensome taxes made necessary in times of peace by socialistic experiments involving huge subsidies to farmers for raising and not raising certain crops, the regimentation of young men in CCC camps, the sending of youths to college, the building of model villages, and the establishment of government insurance and other departments of business in competition with private enterprises, the creation of a multitude of governmental bureaus and the maintenance of a corrupt spoils system. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. The nation must awake!

NO AXIS PLANES OR SHIPS.

Cleveland Heights, O., June 14.—In the coming peace with victory let us remember the power of plane and ship and plan now to prevent our enemies from again using these as weapons against us. Let us have these rights for 60 years, so that at least three generations shall not have visited upon them the horrors brought on us by conquest-minded people.

PARKING METERS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, June 15.—Every one knows how Chicago's yachtsmen have helped and are helping the war effort. We have given up our boats fit for war service. We are now engaged every day in helping the navy train midshipmen for service at sea. Yachting is not just an expensive sport.

Now we find we are being the guinea pigs for the Chicago park district's idea of an experiment. The only parking meters in Chicago, so far as we can discover, have been installed on Armory drive from the foot of Randolph street to the foot of Monroe. Almost nobody uses this street but yachtsmen and naval personnel.

To make it worse, the meters call for 25 cents every three hours, with no lower or intermediate rates. This is not only outrageous discrimination against those who use the water front as a parking place while they are out in their own boats training middies every day, but it is an unconscionable parking rate. Whose idea was this anyway, and why are we the . . . SUCKERS?

Further, assuming the above to be true, my residence, automobile, business equipment, etc., all having been purchased in my wife's name, and my checking account in her name, but subject to checks signed with her name and my initials, [2] could any of the above described property be levied upon in case of a judgment against me personally on an obligation incurred by me personally?

W. A.

1. No, for two reasons. First, both spouses are, by Illinois statute, liable for family expenses and hence family expense creditors could reach assets appearing to be owned by your wife. Second, if it is understood that your wife is holding the assets for you and if your creditors could prove this fact, then they could reach your beneficial interest.
2. Yes, depending on the facts.

FIRST ROUNDUP IN RUBBER DRIVE TOTALS 405 TONS

Chicago Area Expected to Yield 2,000 Tons.

Four hundred and five tons of scrap rubber lay at collection points thruout the Chicago area last night, which ended the fourth day of the local rubber salvage drive. William L. McFetridge, Chicago salvage director for the Office of Civilian Defense, said the figure represented the quantity of rubber which has been transported from filling stations to the collection points by Standard, Sinclair, Shell, and Phillips oil company trucks.

At this rate, McFetridge estimated, the collection will total more than 2,000 tons by the time the campaign ends on June 30. Many filling stations have not had their piles of scrap rubber collected yet, he said.

Two Brokers to Buy Scrap.

McFetridge also disclosed that two scrap rubber brokers have been appointed to purchase the rubber at the collection points in this area for the new Rubber Recovery corporation and ship it to Akron, O., for processing. They are the Muehlstein and Loewenthal companies.

Among the day's developments in the scrap rubber drive was the finding of another "rubber lode" on 32d place just east of Justine street. The weedy vacant lot, formerly the site of a Carnegie-Illinois steel plant, was found to contain a mine of old rubber—in long strips, in solid tires, and in inner tubes.

The rush was led by Patrick Murphy, 3300 South Justine street, and his relatives. Altogether 25,000 pounds was carted to a filling station at 3235 South Ashland avenue, by the end of the day. Further progress at this rubber mine will be reported at 10:25 a. m. today over W-G-N.

Find Some Scrap Isn't Rubber.

The salvage department of the OCD also reported several filling station operators lost enthusiasm for the campaign yesterday when they discovered that some of the "rubber" they had purchased only looked like rubber. They were told by the scrap rubber collectors they had been paying a cent a pound for plastic materials, imitation rubber raincoats, and other things which resembled rubber.

The OCD announced that it will give miniature gold, silver, and bronze [noncritical metals] medals to individuals and members of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and other junior organizations who can show slips from filling station attendants to whom they turned in rubber.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club and chairman of the coördinating committee of the campaign, announced that 1,600 motorists already have agreed to act as members of the committee to stir up interest in the campaign.

WEEKLY RECORD NEAR IN SALVAGE OF KITCHEN OILS

Chicago housewives thus far this week have turned in to butchers approximately 80,000 pounds of fats and greases salvaged from cooking, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, head of the women's division of the household fats conservation drive, reported yesterday. She said collections may exceed 100,000 pounds and set a new weekly record.

Fats and oil collections in the Chicago area have been about 70,000 pounds a week recently, salvage officials said. The drive will be spurred next week as a nation-wide campaign gets under way.

Mrs. Kelly emphasized that butcher shops are the only authorized receiving depots for household fats and oils. She advised housewives to have all grease accumulated in cooking, strain it, pour it into suitable containers, and sell it to their butchers for 1 cent a pound. No house to house collection will be made.

DOES ARMY BURN OLD TIRES? ASKS SENATOR CAPPER

Washington, D. C., June 18 [Special].—Sen. Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] today sought a statement of the war department's policy on disposition of tires no longer usable on army motor vehicles. His action was prompted by several letters he received from Kansas concerning a report that condemned tires were burned at Fort Riley, Kas.

An article in the Topeka State Journal said that a Topekan who saw a cloud of smoke over the Fort Riley reservation inquired of an army officer as to its meaning and was told: "A big pile of condemned tires is being burned. The army doesn't dare sell anything, so we burn old tires."

Officers in the army's services of supply said they had no first hand report that used rubber equipment was being burned and knew of no such instances.

NAVY AWARDS GO TO 71 BOYS FOR PLANE BUILDING

Navy awards were presented yesterday to 71 boys from 60 Chicago public high schools and lower vocational schools for their work on model airplanes. The ceremony was held in the mayor's office and the awards were made by Controler Robert B. Upham in place of the mayor, who is ill.

Dr. Louis V. Newkirk, director of industrial arts in the schools, said 11,000 model airplanes have been completed and sent to the navy for use in teaching recognition of the different types of enemy and united nations planes.

Army Saves Steel by Use of Wood for Truck Bodies

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The army estimated today that 275,000 tons of steel—enough to build 30 large cargo ships, would be saved annually by a new policy of using wood instead of steel on all cargo body trucks of 1½ ton size and larger. The conservation measure was one of many put into effect to save every possible pound of such critical materials as rubber, steel, nickel, copper, and aluminum without loss of quality or military efficiency.

MUNDT DEMANDS END OF DALLYING IN RUBBER CRISIS

Hits 'Synthetic Experts' in Plea for Administrator.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 18.—Synthetic experts on rubber were condemned by Rep. Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.] in the house today in a speech supporting his bill to create a federal rubber administrator to end the "dodging, ducking, and dallying" by officials now sharing responsibility for the government's efforts to relieve the shortage of this critical war material.

"Let us set up an authority to get action," the congressman declared. "The President, Leon Henderson, Jesse Jones, Donald Nelson, and Harold Ickes have other important work to do.

"For weeks and weeks," Mundt said, "congress and the country have been treated to the sorry spectacle of high administration officials engaging in interdepartmental feuds. We have heard charges and countercharges, but still continuing is a delay in putting American resources to work in the production of synthetic rubber.

Conclusions on Problem.

"We have heard experts on synthetic rubber and synthetic experts on rubber testifying to a variety of conclusions. Out of it all certain deductions seem inevitable:

"1. Somebody in the administration has bungled badly in failing to provide in advance a rubber stockpile necessary to meet American demands. After all, it is elemental logic to know that an adequate stockpile of raw materials is a prime essential in functioning as the arsenal of democracy.

Two Sources of Product.

"2. Synthetic rubber can now be produced from both petroleum and agricultural products. The country is more interested in getting production started from both sources than it is in the efforts of southern petroleum interests to prevent or minimize production of synthetic rubber from farm products.

"3. A single rubber administrator is needed to put a definite end to buck passing, to fix full responsibility for rubber development, and to get action now in producing the needed rubber for American military and civilian needs."

THREE $100 FINES CLOSE BORRELLI SLUGGING TRIALS

Prosecution of the Keeshin-Borrelli conspiracy cases was brought to a close yesterday when three minor defendants were fined $100 each by Judge Julius H. Miner in Criminal court on findings of guilt. They are James McNally, 46 years old, Peter La Barbara, 37, and Lawrence Roches.

On Wednesday Judge Miner sentenced Bruce [Bud] Borrelli, son of Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli, to a year in the county jail and fined him $1,000 for the goon slugging Jan. 6 of John Gottlieb, head of a trucking company. This was the second such jail sentence imposed on Borrelli on slugging charges.

John L. Keeshin, wealthy head of the Keeshin Motor service, who was indicted with Borrelli in both cases, was freed Wednesday in the Gottlieb case on motion of the state. Keeshin previously had been acquitted by a jury on a charge of conspiracy to have his own employés slugged when Borrelli refused to testify as a state's witness.

ICKES DECLARES PUBLIC IGNORES 'BUY COAL NOW'

Washington, D. C., June 18 [Special].—Despite the government's repeated urging that all consumers buy coal now, they are not protecting themselves against a coal shortage, Fuel Coördinator Harold L. Ickes said today.

He warned that householders who do not fill their coal bins now are tempting the possibility of having heatless houses next winter "with fuel not to be had."

Ickes' aides already are at work on an emergency coal allocation program against the possibility that the war haulage burden on transportation systems may cause coal shortages.

RENEW FIGHT AGAINST RENT CEILING TODAY

Representatives of the Chicago Real Estate board will meet today with John C. Weigel, regional administrator of the OPA, in a fresh effort to persuade the price administration official that federal rent regulation is unnecessary in Chicago.

Unless the city's landlords comply voluntarily, a rent administrator will be appointed to enforce the recommendation from Leon Henderson, national head of the OPA, that the renting rate of every dwelling unit in Chicago and a number of suburban communities be fixed at the rate in force March 1.

Weigel agreed to a conference with Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, yesterday. Downie requested it as a means of replying to a report from Ald. Arthur G. Lindell's prices and rents committee, repeating charges that rents had been raised 9 to 15 per cent when new leases were signed May 1.

Landlords Want 4½% Increase.

Henderson's March 1 rate recommendation was issued April 28. It becomes effective as an order July 1. So far, few landlords have returned rent rates to the March 1 level, and the real estate men are fighting for a 4½ per cent increase over that rate, arguing that operating costs have risen in recent times.

"Without interference from the city rent committee," Downie said, "our problems may be settled satisfactorily."

He said a survey by his board showed rent increases had averaged 5.7 per cent in May 1 leases. The board contends federal regulation is unwarranted because no housing shortage exists, but on the contrary, the Chicago occupancy rate has fallen from 99.1 to 98.6 per cent in the last six months. He estimated there are 10,000 vacant dwelling units in the city.

Fear Stringent Rules.

Federal rent control will mean burdening landlords with complex report forms, Downie said. Each landlord, under the system, will be required to report the rent paid on March 1 for each of his dwellings. Services such as decorating provided tenants under the March 1 ceiling rule would have to equal such services given prior to enforcement of the order, and owners would be required to answer tenant complaints filed with the administrator.

In consenting to the conference to be held totday, Weigel said he hoped the real estate board would accept the ceiling voluntarily. The deadline for this is June 28.

New York landlords convinced the OPA they were complying with the rent ceiling, and no local administrator has been appointed there.

In South Bend, Ind., among the first 20 cities, of which Chicago is one, to be declared defense rental areas, an administrator is in control. The ceiling there is as of April 1, and rent reductions ranged from $5 to $10 per month.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BAR COMMITTEE URGES 10% CUT IN PEGGED LEVIES

Cites Alarming Increases in Local Taxes.

A reduction of at least 10 per cent, or $12,000,000 a year, in the "pegged" tax levies of Chicago's local governments was urged yesterday by the taxation committee of the Chicago Bar association in its annual report.

The report, made public by Lawrence C. Mills, committee chairman, asserted that one of the chief causes of nonpayment of taxes has been the continued increase in taxes, reflecting "total failure" of local officials to recognize the need for reducing public expenditures.

Federal Taxes Increasing.

"The serious drain of these constant increases in local taxes has become particularly alarming," the report declared, "since the entry of the United States into the war, requiring vast increases in federal taxation for the support of our armed forces.

"Because it is apparent that no serious effort to reduce local taxes is being made by local tax levying bodies, the only solution is thru direct percentage cuts in pegged levies by which the legislature has authorized the raising of definite sums thru taxation."

Mills recalled that the Civic federation recently estimated the 1942 property tax rate for Chicago at $10.12 per $100 of assessed value, an all time high for the third consecutive year.

Other Proposals Listed.

The committee also recommended:

1. Increased efforts by local officials to clean up unpaid taxes and special assessments thru tax foreclosures.

2. Review of the practice by the county assessor of valuing old and obsolete buildings at an arbitrary minimum percentage of reproduction cost.

3. Review of the assessor's practice of assessing cash at 4 per cent of its face value and stocks and bonds at not more than 10 per cent.

4. Amendment of tax foreclosure laws so that the charge for redeeming a property sold at foreclosure would be 6 per cent for the first six months or less, and 6 per cent a year thereafter. The present charge is ½ of 1 per cent a month.

STATE STREET'S CHAMP DAD TO GET GIFTS TODAY

State street merchants will honor their own Father's day champion today aboard the "U. S. S. I Will," the mock battleship in the Congress street plaza of Grant park.

He is Loren Lukey, 7313 Stewart avenue. He was selected as State street's Father's day champion by the State Street council because he has four sons in the nation's armed forces. Two are in the navy and the other two are in the coast guard.

According to David Mayer Jr., chairman of the council, the selection of Lukey is of dual significance—in honor of Father's day Sunday and in support of the navy's campaign for 10,000 recruits here by July 4. The merchants will shower Lukey and his sons with gifts. The ceremony is scheduled for 10 a. m.

2 CIVIC AGENCIES HIT REFUSALS TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Two civic agencies moved yesterday to end the obstruction of justice to which Judge John Sbarbaro pointed Wednesday in Criminal court after witnesses in his court refused to repeat grand jury testimony, which had resulted in policy racket indictments, because they would incriminate themselves. The case then collapsed.

Judge Sbarbaro called this "a shocking spectacle" and recommended that the legislature take action to end the abuse. Yesterday it was learned that the Chicago Crime commission is already working on projected legislation, while the incoming president of the Chicago Bar association, Harry N. Gottlieb, said that he would call the attention of the association's board of managers to the problem.

"We have given this matter attention," said Bertram J. Cahn, president of the crime commission, "and already have a committee working on bills which we propose to submit to the next regular session of the legislature in 1943. We understand that both the judges and the public want it. The same situation exists in connection with perjury cases and we plan to include it."

G. O. P. IN INDIANA ADOPTS A 'WIN WAR' PLATFORM

Warns Voters Burocracy Must Be Curbed.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—Indiana Republicans declared today that the first and foremost job is to win the war decisively in an all out effort by all Americans, and said that unless New Deal burocracy is curbed, labor, business, and the farmer after the war will be regimented out of the American way of life.

Sen. R. E. Willis [top] and Secretary of State J. M. Tucker.

The platform adopted by the state convention, and echoed in keynote speeches by Sen. Raymond E. Willis and Secretary of State James M. Tucker, held that the first task is to win the war, to force unconditional surrender by our enemies.

It said that after winning the war, restoration of free enterprise must be insured.

Platform of Nationalism.

The platform, which was read to the delegates by Don B. Irwin of Frankfort, former state chairman, sounded the note of nationalism. It pledged itself to all endeavors for successful prosecution of the war, and insisted that problems after the war should be met in a way to continue representative democratic government in America.

Wendell Willkie, 1940 nominee for the Presidency, was not mentioned in the platform, altho he is an Indiana man. Leaders point out that the Indiana GOP has not accepted him as titular leader of the party.

The platform does not embrace the Willkie postwar internationalism views. Instead it declares that during the war conditions are changing so rapidly that no man or group is wise enough to formulate a program for some unknown time in the future.

Dislike Outside Advice.

This platform did not go as far as the declaration of the Republican national committee in Chicago concerning postwar policy. Leaders here say Indiana Republicans traditionally don't like advice from outside.

Efforts to smear members of congress who were opposed to intervention before Pearl Harbor were assailed in the convention. Indiana members of both houses voted against interventionist measures before Pearl Harbor but voted for national defense bills. The statement of doctrine by the Indiana Republicans says the two party system is a bulwark of democracy, that constructive criticism is a patriotic duty. It says:

"The tolerance of unconscionable profiteering and wasteful expenditures in war efforts when our soldiers received only $21 a month has been a national disgrace."

Hit U. S. Supplies to Japs.

"Our heroes at Wake, Guam, Bataan, and Corregidor met death by bombs made of American scrap iron, from planes driven with American gasoline, all sold with the sanction of the New Deal.

"Before Pearl Harbor we had ample time to produce sufficient planes to have saved the Philippines.

"The loss of rubber supply now threatens our transportation system and war production. A vacillating labor policy lost us 11 million man-days in defense in 1941. Our shipping bottleneck is critical because the administration has too long failed to get production of new ships.

"For 18 months the New Deal choked our arms production with red tape, selfishness, greed, personal ambition, political favoritism, and lack of responsible authority. There can be no social gains if national security is lost. We deplore the New Deal policy of placing votes before victory."

Calls for Sacrifice.

American business must sacrifice and surrender peacetime rights to win the war, the platform says, but free enterprise must be restored to insure a victory that has not been fought in vain.

In the only battle of the day, Rue J. Alexander of Pine Village won the nomination for secretary of state over James M. Knapp of Hagerstown. Knapp was backed by Homer E. Capehart and Lieut. Gov. Charles M. Dawson. Alexander was supported by State Chairman Ralph E. Gales, R. Lowell McDaniel, Burrell E. Wright, and the organization.

THE QUESTION.

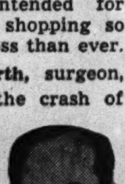
Did you ever suffer a loss that made you wiser?

WHERE ASKED.

Uptown Bank building, 4753 Broadway.

THE ANSWERS.

Mary Lawler, statistical clerk, Addison road, Elmhurst—People told me it was a bad idea to carry too much cash around, but I never took it seriously until the day I had my purse snatched with the newly cashed pay check. It was intended for Christmas shopping so I felt worse about the loss than ever.



Dr. Walter S. Stewerth, surgeon, 2417 Lunt avenue—In the crash of 1929, I lost one huge lump sum of money because it was invested in one place. I'm wiser to the extent that never again shall I put all my eggs in one basket. Now I know it is wiser to spread investments among different securities.

Milton Kelly, tool maker, 2542 Prairie avenue, Evanston—The cost of carelessness was brought home to me when I misplaced a valuable precision instrument. It was a total loss, because I've never seen it since. I've taken much better care of all the other tools since my favorite one disappeared.

William H. Thompson, attendant in United States Marine hospital, 3535 Fremont street—Years ago we disregarded the seriousness of a small scratch. It resulted in a serious infection and finally the death of my mother. It was a sad blow, and I'm sure that ever since that the slightest scratch or wound has been given all possible attention in my work.

A. H. Alpfeld, retired tailor, 4069 Kenmore avenue—All those who have suffered defeats in an election know the feeling of loss associated with it. I was one of those losers once and was made wiser to the degree that I knew better than to run for the same office again. The voters didn't think my qualifications as good as I did.

Mrs. Gussie Silverman, housewife, 4157 Clarendon avenue—I thought nothing of carrying my folding money loose in the coin purse until one day I put it down in a phone booth and forgot about it. There was a $20 bill in it and that was a loss that taught me the safest place for bills was in the bill fold.

NEW STATIONERY WILL SPEED MAIL FOR SERVICE MEN

Special V-mail stationery, a combination letter and envelope designed to speed delivery to men in the armed forces, will be available at all postal stations tomorrow, Ernest J. Kruetgen, postmaster, said yesterday.

Many of the V-mail letters addressed to men on foreign soil will be photographed mechanically on 16 mm. microfilm. After the letters reach their destination, 4 by 5½ inch photographs of the letters will be handed to the service men. When convenient, however, V-mail will be forwarded in its original form.

After the initial distribution by postoffices, arrangements will be made with stationers and other business establishments to issue V-mail, Kruetgen said.

SUPER SOLDIERS WILL FIGHT WITH NO HOLDS BARRED

Fort Lewis, Wash., June 18 (AP).—A superfighter from the combat engineers is being trained by the army to become one of the most heavily armed soldiers in the world—even more versatile than the British commando.

If a soldier of the mikado's army sees a black-faced, knife-wielding warrior jump out of the jungle one day, he probably won't have time to realize he is about to become a victim of an American Pioneer, the name of the new superfighter.

Even Uses Knives.

The hard-bitten Pioneer will be called upon for the initial work of a battle or campaign. He is taught to fight with machetes and wicked, curved bush knives, tommy guns, and rifles.

The Pioneers are armed with rifles, tommy guns, .30 and .50 caliber machine guns, 37 millimeter cannon, axes, bolo knives, machetes, saws, TNT, and other explosives.

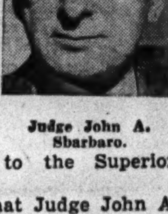
Officers training the Pioneers here said that as the most heavily armed soldier in the army, the Pioneer would be sent into enemy territory to establish bridgeheads, to demolish enemy installations, and to prepare paths for the infantry advance.

Methods to Fit Terrain.

The Pioneers vary their type of fighting to the terrain. At night they rub black mud on their faces and hands. In the day they stick ferns, grass, or brush fragments into their collars and under their hats to blend themselves with the surroundings.

Officers said the Pioneers were not expected to use the wicked machetes, bolo and bush knives, unless they had to. But ask a Pioneer which he would use—his knife or his rifle—if he ran into a few Japs in the brush.

JUDGE SBARBARO SLATED TO HEAD CRIMINAL COURT



Judge John A. Sbarbaro.

Judges of the Superior court will hold their annual meeting today to make assignments to the various branches and also to name the chief justice of the Criminal court. The chief justiceship is alternated yearly between the Superior and the Circuit courts, and the position for the 1942-'43 term, starting in September, goes to the Superior court.

It is reported that Judge John A. Sbarbaro, now sitting in the Criminal court, is to be honored with the post by his fellow judges. Judge Sbarbaro was born in Chicago, and begun practicing law here in 1921.

As an assistant state's attorney he helped solve the Loeb-Leopold murder case. Later Judge Sbarbaro served six years on the Municipal court bench. He has been a Superior court judge since 1939. He is a Republican, and if he is elevated he will be the first Republican to be chief justice in many years.

Don't Let Summer Sun Kill Your Hair

Your hair-growing structure is delicate and may react unfavorably to over-exposure to the hot rays of the mid-day summer sun. You owe it to yourself, therefore, to learn how you can help, rather than harm your hair, during the summer months.

Twenty years of success endows The Thomas' with the necessary skill and ability to correctly advise you. Consult a Thomas expert today (without charge, in private). He'll tell you when and how to expose your hair to the summer sun; when to wear a hat; what to do about excessive perspiration on the scalp—about salt-water bathing and shower baths. He'll show you, too, how the reliable, proved Thomas method removes dandruff scales, and how it relieves the itch which local excrement may cause. Remember—consultation and advice without charge!

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military services, both in the daily columns and personally, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

Several inquiries have been received from men soon to be inducted who wish to know the new procedure for obtaining extra time after induction. Upon being inducted a man may make one of two requests: [1] He may request to be sent immediately to an army reception center, or [2] he may request a transfer to the enlisted reserve corps. If he should request the latter he will be permitted to return home and will be ordered to report for military duty on a date approximately two weeks after induction. Due to the immediate need for men in the army, Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois director of selective service, said it is hoped requests will not be made for a transfer to the enlisted reserve corps unless a draftee's personal affairs make such a request absolutely necessary.

Mrs. J. G. writes: "My husband has been taken into the army and I would like to know what provisions have been made for a wife and child. Does the government take the money from the husband's pay and send it to the wife or does he send as much as he likes?"

ANSWER: Until such time as the dependency bill is passed and goes into effect—it is not expected to go into effect before November following its passage—any allotment you might receive would have to come from your husband. He may allot any amount he desires.

V. K. asks: "If a man is given a 4-F classification following his physical examination at the induction station, how long will it be before he is called for another examination? If he is rejected again can he join some other branch of military service?"

ANSWER: Deferred classifications—such as a 4-F—are not given for longer than a six months period. At the end of that time the man will be considered for reclassification. If the condition which was responsible for the deferred classification has not been corrected or improved, the registrant will again be classified to 4-F. The registrant's physical defect would prevent his enlisting for any type of military service.

E. L. writes: "I am 18 years old and wear glasses, but my eyesight rating is 15/20 without glasses. Am I eligible to enlist in the marine corps?"

ANSWER: Yes. You meet the minimum vision requirements of the marine corps.

D. K. writes: "I have been planning all my life to enter the army air corps and have been studying all thru high school and college toward that end. Now I have found that I am slightly color blind and have defective vision in one eye. I cannot be a pilot. Will that also prevent my being a navigator?"

ANSWER: The requirements for pilot, navigator, and bombardier are the same. Altho you are not qualified for training as an aviation cadet, your college education may have equipped you for training as a ground officer in the air corps. The physical requirements are not as rigid as those for aviation cadets.

To B. D.: It would not be possible for you to enlist in the marine corps before your 17th birthday.

"The Girl Who Stood Alone"

By Roy Vickers

Copyright: 1942: By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Just preceding the present war, the lawn mower company in London, where June Clayton works as secretary, has become an armament factory. Thru her failure to destroy some spoiled sheets of a confidential report, the report is stolen by Henry and Jacob Ferrer, who plan to sell it to Germany. Jacob escapes with the report, but Henry is arrested and claims June aided them. Glenday, of the British secret service, convinced of June's innocence, promises to shield her if she will work for him. She quarrels with her fiancé Ralph Eddis, because she cannot explain her new work, and soon finds herself more in love with Glenday than Ralph. Glenday orders her to cultivate Rawlings, a German spy in charge of sabotage, and she is forced to go on many dangerous jobs with him in order to uncover his organization. Pretending to be an Irish-American girl, who did a little spying for the Ferrers in exchange for small pay, Rawlings believes her, and falling in love with her gives her a great deal of confidential information which she turns over to Glenday. She also manages to outwit Jacob Ferrer and force him to give her the stolen report. She tries to resign from the service at this time for she hates having to pretend to return Rawlings' love. But Glenday makes her see how much the service needs her to help in uncovering the sabotage ring. She consents to stay with Glenday if he will promise personal safety to Rawlings. Rawlings asks her to marry him, and Glenday insists on her engagement to him. But June is terrified when Rawlings wants to be married immediately. He introduces her to his mother, also a spy, but as one by one Rawlings' men are uncovered, his mother gets suspicious of June. War is declared and June promises to make a trip with Rawlings to Newcastle on one last job before their wedding the next day. Rawlings' mother tells her son the police are looking for him and she gets on the train in his stead. She accuses June of being in the British secret service and June is forced to admit it, but is relieved to know that Rawlings does not yet suspect her. June manages to send a message to Glenday from the train and Rawlings' mother is arrested when they reach Newcastle. She tells Rawlings of the arrest and he realizes he will have to get out of England immediately. June knows that the last of Rawlings' men have been caught, and police are out to get him. Glenday tells June that he will be shot if he attempts to leave by airplane, but keeping his promise about Rawlings' personal safety, Glenday gives her the name of a cargo boat Rawlings can escape to Greece on. She tells Rawlings of this plan and he agrees on condition she go with him and marry him on the boat. She consents but plans to get off the boat before it sails. As Rawlings is forced to stay in hiding until sailing time, he asks June to get rooms at a hotel under a false name and take him some clothes there. When he goes to the hotel, he discovers June's purse opened on the dressing table. Looking in it, he sees her secret service identification card and realizes he has been fooled. He decides to make her confess.

INSTALMENT XLVII.

CAUGHT.

"There was Wirtz," Frank's tone became menacing. "You went to see him—and he was arrested."

"Must you put it like that, Frank?" It was a last desperate attempt by June to suggest that she feared nothing.

"My mother is the next one to go—while she is with you on a train."

"What do you mean by that?" she challenged. His eyes were glassy, just like the eyes of a drunkard, but he was as sober as herself.

"Last of all—Nefussy. No—not last of all! Last of all—me!"

"Am I!" he said coldly. "We'll see. I want to ask you a question, June."

She stood rigid while, with maddening slowness, he drew the revolver from his armpit holster. He got up from the couch, stood level with her, the revolver pointed at her heart.

"Are you a double, June?"

So everything was over now—including life. There was no longer any sense in lying and evading.

"I have been a double, but I'm not now."

"You are Glenday's girl?"

"I worked under Glenday."

Again there broke from him that sound that was like a cough.

"If you had not confessed the truth, I would have shot you then." He put the revolver back in its holster. "And now that you're safe—laugh! Go on, laugh at me for the fool you've made me. Laugh at the wreckage of my career!"

"Must you hate me, Frank? Can't you see that I have done nothing for my country that you haven't done for yours."

"I've danced, but I've never kissed in order to send a girl to the scaffold."

"You can't accuse me of that. Just try and figure out why you're here now, Frank. Again I ask, why weren't you arrested when you met me this afternoon in Regent's park?"

He blinked, glanced at the parcels that were piled up in a corner of the room.

"Yes—there's only one explanation of that," he said thoughtfully. "You were sent to vamp me and you fell for me. You went on with the work, but you refused to betray me personally. I've known such cases before."

"That's perfectly true. That night you told me you loved me—after that I refused to go on with the work. Then Dornham happened. And Glenday made me see that I must go on and stop you from doing so much harm. But I bargained that nothing I did must imperil you personally. Glenday did his utmost to keep his word to me, but he doesn't run Scotland yard. Besides, France demanded extradition."

He believed her—and at least his personal pride was soothed. But his voice was hard as he answered:

"You're an ornament to the British secret service. As one agent to another, I take off my hat." The unconscious echo of his mother's words rasped her nerves. "You are an extremely attractive woman but—no longer so to me. Tonight I'm going to take my chance at Laybourne. I believe you will not betray me."

"You can't go to Laybourne." She hesitated and added: "Glenday gave me the tip that it's watched."

"That's very unconvincing, my dear."

"Why should I lie to you now?" she countered.

"Because you're in love with me and you think you can marry me and get back by being with me for weeks on this cargo boat. Do you think I don't know that nature has made me attractive to women! I'm sorry to disappoint you, but there will be no marriage tomorrow. And now that we are telling each other the whole truth for the very first time, I may as well tell you that I never intended to go thru a ceremony so long as I could keep on stalling you."

The agony she'd suffered, wondering how she could keep stalling him! And all her planning to vanish from London on the day he'd set for the wedding!

"Since honest confession is good for the soul, Frank, really to tell you the whole truth I'll have to admit I never meant to marry you either . . ."

"See who that is!" he ordered in an undertone.

June went to the door and he followed her. He was standing behind her when she opened it—to Detective Segrove.

"I'm sorry, but we've come for Rawlings."

"He's not here," said June.

"He is here. Will you stand away from the door, please—you'd better wait in the corridor. If he shoots we shall shoot back—and there are 22 of us."

Then Rawlings' voice:

"Keep still, Segrove." Behind June, Rawlings had gripped a handful of her dress. "You can't shoot me without killing the girl, but I can easily shoot you. Just stay where you are. Come along, June."

He pulled her slowly backwards toward the dressing room. Then he released her, slammed the door, and locked it.

"Stand back from the door, all of you. He's taking the fire escape and that's covered."

Segrove seized June, forced her to the floor behind the couch as there came the sound of two shots from the dressing room. A third, a fourth—a fusillade—and then a shout:

"All correct, sir—no more shooting."

June remained unnoticed behind the couch while wounded men were removed, and officials passed in and out of the suite. The communicating door was open and she gathered that Frank was in the bedroom. Then, a voice, obviously that of a doctor.

"It's no use moving him. He'll be dead in a few minutes."

Three days after the death of Frank Rawlings, spy and saboteur, Sir William Maenton, head of the secret service, received a call in person from June Clayton.

"You were good enough to say, Sir William, that I could come to you if I wanted help. I am taking you at your word. I want to know if you can procure the release of Baroness Rallendorf—Rawlings' mother?"

Sir William's smile vanished.

"Excuse me, Sir William, but it is. I have been in and out of the secret service and I have done things that no woman ought to do. But nothing is on my conscience except the arrest of the baroness—which was made at my request. That will be a scar on my memory all my life."

A nice, unspoiled girl, thought Sir William! Not at all the kind of woman that generally drifted into the service. And for that reason she was a confounded nuisance.

"I will do what I can—but I don't care to interfere with Glenday. We'd better see what he thinks."

In the act of picking up the telephone he stopped.

"O, I was forgetting! He has applied for a month's leave, to be followed by foreign service. And I believe he's gone to the Highlands for his leave. Annoying! Very nice fellow Glenday, don't you think? To come back to the matter of the baroness. The only evidence against her, if I remember rightly, is a film. Just a minute."

For the second time he picked up the telephone, but this time he spoke into it.

"Miss Flinders. . . . Have you, at your place, that film in re Baroness Rallendorf? . . . Well, I want it. . . . No. I'll send Miss Clayton for it. . . .

"There now, Miss Clayton," he chuckled. "You go and fetch that film. Bring it here to me. Be very careful with it. If you have any accident with it—if it catches fire—if it is stolen—if you were to drop it into the Thames—I should be very cross indeed and would promptly dismiss you from the service."

"Thank you, Sir William," smiled June. "I'm ever so grateful."

A SPINACH LOAF SUGGESTED FOR SUMMER MEAL

Even in warm weather a hot main dish for lunch is a good idea and it would be hard to find a better one than a vegetable loaf. This spinach loaf for instance is a delicious affair that will set mouths to watering. Serve it with a tomato, mushroom, or egg sauce.

Spinach Loaf.

1¼ cups cooked, chopped spinach
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 cup grated cheese
1 teaspoon of salt
1 egg, well beaten
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar

Combine spinach, bread crumbs, and cheese. Add well beaten egg and seasonings, mixing well. Add lemon juice and turn into buttered loaf pan. Set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate [350 degrees] oven for 25 to 30 mintues or until set. Unmold and pour tomato, mushroom, or egg sauce over loaf.

Here Are Some Pointers on Making Green Salads

What makes a good green salad? Greens that are crisp, cold, and well washed, but dry. Wash the greens well, sorting them over carefully. Then dry on towel. Wrap in the same towel and place in the refrigerator until ready to use. Have the salad plates well chilled, since this also helps to improve the salad, and do not cut the greens until ready for use.

Try Salt on Fruits.

Salt isn't a substitute for sugar, but use it on fruits and see if it doesn't touch up the fruit's own sweetness.

Fare Carefully Prepared, Tasty and Nutritious.

BY KAY FLETCHER.

Mothers may rest assured their boys in the navy are getting plenty to eat and the right kind of food. A trip thru the galley at the Chicago navy pier demonstrated this.

Going thru chilly meat chambers and rooms full of cleaned potatoes and onions and past the bakery and the vegetable and stew coppers to the long line of ranges sizzling with steaks, everything appeared clean and orderly. The white-clad bakers, cooks, and stewards have a huge job to do, and when the food is finally dished up in the compartmented trays, it's appetizing and shows the results of careful preparation.

Scrupulous Care Used.

A copy of orders to commissary officers, commissary steward, bakers, and cooks gives an idea of how scrupulous they must be to maintain a clean galley and pure foods. Meats and vegetables are refrigerated until used; foods with a strong odor, such as onions, are stored away from other foods, and pork is cooked thoroly to prevent trichinosis.

Cooks and bakers maintain cleanliness by dressing in clean whites and aprons and washing their hands with soap and hot water and rinsing them in a disinfectant solution. Refrigerators and meat processing equipment are disinfected twice a week, and the galley, bakery, and butcher shop floors and tables, pots, and other utensils are similarly disinfected.

Guard Against Pests.

A careful watch is kept for pests such as rats, roaches, flies, mice, and weevils in the storerooms and galleys.

To insure its being appetizing, food is prepared a short enough time before serving so that it will not dry out. Thirty minutes is the maximum time food is permitted to remain in the steam table before serving.

It's amazing to see the quantities of food handled during the day to feed the men. Numerous huge dishpans were filled with cubed fresh meat ready for chop suey. Great halves of beef hung in long lines in the refrigerated room.

The coppers for cooking vegetables and stews resemble giant kettle drums, and the dippers for serving are large enough for the ordinary homemaker's mixing bowl. Liquids in which vegetables are cooked are piped off for soup, since valuable vitamins are thus saved.

Reminiscent of Bunyan.

The magnitude of the whole galley setup was reminiscent of the legendary Paul Bunyan's lumber camp kitchen, where hot cakes were fastened to the colored boys' feet so that they might skate down the length of the griddles to grease them.

In the bakery the men were rolling out pie dough for the numerous pans, filling them with pineapple from a great oblong container called a dough trough.

I ate with the men, too, just to see how the food actually tasted, and it was good food, seasoned properly. The menu, which included steak, potatoes and gravy, mixed corn and peas, coleslaw, two slices of whole wheat bread, butter, butter cake, and coffee, was well balanced. The food was dished out on clean trays, which have divisions to separate different foods, and I noticed an ensign inspecting trays and cups to see they were clean before being filled.

This is navy month, you know, and if your son is one of the great number who will be enlisting soon, you can be sure he will be fed according to the latest dietary standards and that he will get plenty to eat.

HAM AND SWEETS ROLL TASTY AND INEXPENSIVE DISH

A ham and sweet potato roll is one of those good to eat and good to look at combinations that hostesses seek. In addition it's an inexpensive dish.

Ham and Sweets Roll.

- ¾ pound ground smoked ham
- ½ pound ground pork
- ½ cup cracker crumbs
- 1 egg
- ¾ cup milk
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups mashed sweet potatoes

Have butcher grind meats together. Add cracker crumbs, egg, milk, and pepper to meat and mix well. Spread mixture out on waxed paper to sheet about 6 by 10 inches and ½ inch in thickness. Season sweet potatoes to taste and spread over meat. Roll up like jelly roll. Place seam side down in lightly greased pan and bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven for 1½ hours.

VARIETY IS SPICE OF SALADS, TOO; SOME GOOD TIPS

Utilize Different Greens and Ingredients.

Better than sulphur and molasses as a tonic are crisp, healthful salads. Plain family salads need attention. Vary them as you do the rest of the meal. For one thing utilize different greens, used as garnish. There are a number of them besides lettuce, such as escarole, chicory, romaine, and watercress. Vary the ingredients, too.

Keep a store of celery on hand to put in salads. This egg salad combines celery and olives and is colorful.

Egg Salad.

[Serves six.]

- 4 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- 1 cup diced celery
- ⅓ cup chopped stuffed olives
- ⅓ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Paprika
- Lettuce

Combine all except last two ingredients. Place on crisp lettuce cups and sprinkle with paprika. Top with a sprig of parsley.

Here's a Quick One.

Avocado Salad.

[Serves six.]

- 2 medium sized avocados
- 1 No. 1 can jellied cranberry sauce
- Chicory
- Fruit dressing

Cut avocados lengthwise and remove stone. Peel off pliant outer covering. Slice halves lengthwise in six thin slices each. Slice jellied cranberry sauce in one-half inch strips as long as avocado slices. Arrange slices of avocado and cranberry alternately on crisp beds of chicory. Serve with fruit dressing.

For a good store of salad information you can obtain our booklet, "Everyday Adventures in Salads," at Tribune Public Service offices for 3 cents or for 5 cents by mail.

All year 'round the Army Gets MEAT

TYPICAL ARMY MEAL
America's men in uniform eat better than any other armed forces in the world. Here is a typical "weekday" dinner just as it is served at army camps. Note generous slices of good roast pork, centerpiece of a completely balanced meal, which includes sweet potatoes, spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, bread, butter, apple pie à-la-mode and coffee.

So do the Navy and Marine Corps!

Experts have carefully balanced their meals with everything needed for adequate nutrition, including meat in liberal amounts.

MEAT is not included in army rations by mere accident, but represents years of experience in troop feeding by the Quartermaster Corps.

Liberal meat rations are maintained, in summer as in winter. The army knows that nutritional needs don't go on vacation in warm weather.

Women feeding their "men at work" this all-important summer may well take a tip from army meal planners—they know.

The rays of the summer sun will provide you with more vitamin D—but will not compensate for an otherwise unbalanced or insufficient diet.

Your family as well as the army needs a regular daily restocking of proteins, B vitamins and minerals (iron, copper and phosphorus), even when the mercury rises.

Ask your meat-man about summer meat ideas—you will find he has many thrifty suggestions among them.

Sally Appeals in Behalf of Two Worthy and Needy Families

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Mrs. H. has been a good mother to her three children, in spite of the fact the entire family has had many setbacks. The father is crippled and unemployable, and there is an elderly grandparent in the home. Last winter, because a relief check was delayed, the family was evicted, and many belongings were ruined by rain and snow. They finally found temporary quarters in two furnished rooms. They have now found an empty flat, and are anxious to improve it a little. Their greatest needs are curtains, bedding, and rugs, altho almost any other item of furniture will be welcome. The address is north and west of the loop.

Mr. and Mrs. L. are both elderly and ill. They are now receiving relief, but are badly in need of several items of furniture which the worker is unable to supply. If any reader has a single bed and springs, a chest of drawers or a small dresser, small rugs, or an ice box, their small home could be made much more comfortable. Transportation can be arranged, but since funds are scarce, articles from the near north or west side would be most acceptable, in order to save on cartage costs.

Prodigal Sons of Austin High Back in Honor

Three prodigal sons will attend the Austin High school prom tonight at the Stevens hotel. After 20 years all has been forgiven.

In 1922 five Austin High students, ranging from 14 to 17 years old, organized a jazz band. It brought them a career, but it caused them a lot of trouble with their teachers.

They ditched school, hid in the back room of the corner candy store and practiced for hours at a time. They played a wild kind of jazz that Austin, and many other respectable neighborhoods, had never heard before. The boys called themselves the Austin High School Gang, and later their music was to go down in the books of the jazz critics as the Chicago style.

The Gang put on long pants—ordinarily you didn't wear them so young in those days. Instead of doing their home work at night they sneaked off to the south side black and tan cabarets and stood around the bandstands listening to the great Louis Armstrong, Jimmy Noone, and other colored jazzmen who had come up from the Mississippi river boats.

Week-ends the Gang played at parties and fraternity dances, sometimes getting as much as $2 per man, but most of the time they played for nothing. Naturally the Gang didn't have much time for school. Each member was expelled at least twice.

There was Bud Freeman, the saxophone player, who was kicked out five times. Today he leads his own orchestra. There was Jim Lonnigan, who slapped the bass fiddle. Today he plays it—tho without slapping it—in the Chicago Symphony orchestra. There were the McPartland brothers, Dick and Jim, and there was Frank Teschmaker, the clarinetist who was killed several years later in an auto crash.

Tonight Freeman, Dick McPartland, and Lonnigan will be back together again playing for the 1942 senior prom, beating out the same kind of jazz they played 20 years ago. But more than that—and here's the prodigal son touch—they will be awarded the Austin "A," the high school equivalent of an honorary college degree.

And so for the occasion tonight the orchestra will be called the Austin High School Gang Summa Cum Laude orchestra, proving 20 years can make a lot of difference.

Hoover Warns All Sides Must Unite in Peace

New York, June 18 [Special].—Former President Herbert Hoover warns the United States against unprepared participation in another peace conference in his book, "The Problems of Lasting Peace," written with Hugh Gibson, former ambassador to Belgium, which is to appear tomorrow.

Published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., the book is designed "to stimulate popular thinking to the end that opinion so formed may function as a guide for those who will ultimately shape the pattern of international relations."

The authors describe peace as consisting of two parts. The first, which the authors term the foundation, is to allay destructive dynamic forces and strengthen constructive forces. The second is the building of a superstructure of international coöperation.

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson review arguments for and against coöperative peace organizations such as the League of Nations, councils of nations, federations of nations, and Pax Americana. These plans, they assert, must be debated further in hope of making any acceptable.

They trace attempts at world peace from the Treaty of Westphalia in 1648 to the Treaty of Versailles in 1919, and offer an appraisal of the elements in the foundation of international peace.

They reject the proposition that world wars are created by perverse men or perverse nations. They contend that seven dynamic forces produce war or peace and trace the history of these forces, showing how they have periodically resulted in war and revolution. They assert that any proposed international superstructure will fall unless the forces tending toward war are allied in the peace making and hold that the League of Nations was foredoomed because of the weak foundations laid for it by the Versailles treaty.

Mr. Hoover was food administrator during the last war and was in charge of European relief work. Mr. Gibson, a career diplomat, was one of Mr. Hoover's chief aids in European war relief.

Women in War Work

The problems and opportunities for Negro women in war industries were discussed yesterday at the second of a series of meetings of the Woman's division of the Chicago Urban league. Prof. John I. Yellott used the subject, "The First Front," for his lecture, which was the principal address at the session on the 23d floor of 185 North Wabash avenue.

Prof. Yellott, who is chairman of the defense training program of the Illinois Institute of Technology, discussed the problem of racial discrimination in giving employment. He told the Negro women and the white women working with them that there are two solutions to placing the Negro trained for industry—[1] to cease training her if she cannot be placed, or [2] to use every device to find acceptable positions for those Negroes who complete their training courses satisfactorily. Discarding the first course and urging the second, Prof. Yellott set forth the weapons of the battle.

He said that first, the law is on the side of the Negro worker—"explicitly in Illinois house bill No. 621, and implicitly in every defense contract which has been signed since the date of the President's proclamation, June 25, 1941."

Next, said Mr. Yellott, there is the purpose for which we fight as stated by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles on Memorial day—"Our victory must bring in its train the liberation of all peoples. Discrimination between people because of their race, creed, or color must be abolished . . . the principles of the Atlantic charter must be guaranteed to the world as a whole—in all oceans and in all continents."

The third point Mr. Yellott emphasized was the power of the press in publishing the uncomplimentary findings of the President's committee on fair employment practices and thereby to criticize both corporations and labor unions.

The fourth point of hope in the fight, as outlined by the speaker, is the sense of fairness of the American people "who are beginning to realize that we have no room in America for second class citizens, that the Negro who risks his life on Bataan, at Pearl Harbor, or in India is entitled to any job for which his ability fits him, and his wife is likewise entitled to positions other than menial domestic tasks."

The 13 million Negroes in the United States make them the largest minority group in this country, Mr. Yellott asserted. The vast increase in industrial output, coupled with the establishment of fighting forces totaling 10 million men, will force industry to tap the reservoir of employés these Negroes represent, he said, as another point.

Additional hope for the Negro lies in the fact that the new industrial training techniques are removing his hitherto unsolved problem of how to learn to do a job, said Mr. Yellott as still another point. War industry is going to expand from 7 to 17 million by the end of 1942, he said, and many of these new workers will be Negro men and women.

Further, he asserted, labor unions are coöperating to break down barriers, and the selective service questionnaires will provide the United States employment service with an up to date inventory of skills so that qualified Negroes will have greater opportunities.

Finally, Mr. Yellott said, there is the important President's executive order 8802, "reaffirming the policy of full participation in the defense program, regardless of race, creed, color, or national origin, and directing certain action in furtherance of said policy."

"The contention that white men and women will not work alongside of Negroes has proved to be a problem to be solved by education and a firm stand from plant management," Mr. Yellott asserted.

A real impediment to Negroes in industry is the matter of obtaining birth certificates, he said, since there is a dearth of such records in southern towns particularly. He suggested that the Urban league might provide valuable legal assistance to Negroes in solving this problem.

The housing situation is another barrier to Negroes' employment, said Mr. Yellott, particularly in war industries in sparsely settled areas.

In concluding he asserted: "The situation may be summed up thus: Prejudice, ignorance, unwillingness to accept responsibility for potentially difficult situations, and the universal human tendency to compromise rather than to strike out boldly—these are the major factors which keep Negroes from equitable participation in industry."

Miss Sara Southall, a member of the industrial relations staff of the International Harvester company, advised the Urban league members to aid the drive for employment in war industries, but at the same time to keep a longtime community pattern in mind. The war industry may be over after the war, but the Negro will continue to need and to want work, she said. She also asked members to keep the problem on a broad front, to remember the minority question as a whole.

Dr. Anna Johnson Julian, who conducted the session, was elected president of the auxiliary.

Among the guests was Dr. James M. Yard, executive secretary of the Chicago Council of Jews and Christians. He attended the session in behalf of the Fair Employment Practices office which, he said, should open early next week at 166 West Jackson boulevard. He said that volunteer office help would be needed, that there would be no racial discrimination, and that he'd be glad to hear from applicants at his office at 203 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Andrew MacLeish of Glencoe attended the meeting as a representative of the Chicago Woman's club and to announce the club's program for Negroes for next year. This includes trying to improve housing and to supply space for girls' clubs. However, Mrs. MacLeish deviated from her announcement long enough to read Pearl Buck's letter to Negroes and to ask the Negro women to be patient a while longer as their white friends fought on. She said: "If democracy loses in this battle, you will go back to slavery. But your white friends will pay with their lives."

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Naval Reserve Students' Wives to Be Greeted at Tea Monday

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE wives of the 130 student officers at the naval reserve training school at Northwestern university are to have a royal welcome to Chicago at a tea next Monday afternoon at the Fortnightly club. The party is being given to acquaint the young women with the many things of interest in Chicago, as the visitors have plenty of leisure time and not many friends here, as a rule. They don't see much of their husbands, of course, for the young men have only an hour free each day, tho they may go home on Saturday nights.

Welcoming the guests will be Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, representing the Chicago Art institute; Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, wife of the president of the Chicago Historical society; Mrs. Hermon D. Smith, for the Field museum, and Mrs. Frederic Woodward, wife of the vice president emeritus of the University of Chicago.

The only invitations to the tea are those posted on the bulletin boards of the school, thru the courtesy of its commanding officer, Capt. B. B. Wygant. Some of the women who will act as hostesses between 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock on Monday, all of whom are members of the Fortnightly, are Mrs. Wygant, Mrs. William T. Bacon, Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard, Miss Lilace Barnes, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. John Broeksmit, Mrs. William S. Elliott, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Mrs. Albert L. Hopkins, Mrs. Denison B. Hull, Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, and Mrs. Philip W. Moore. The Ballards' son, Ensign Ted Ballard, is teaching at the school.

Debutante Group to Help at Hadley School Benefit.

The Ballards' youngest daughter, Miss Mary Ballard, hasn't made up her mind yet whether she will have a debut party this year, but she is taking part in the debutante festivities, and has organized a small debutante committee to assist at the Hadley School for the Blind benefit golf tournament a week from Sunday at the Skokie Country club. Miss Ballard and her committee, which is composed of Debutantes Judy Adams, Cherry Boyd, Polly Goodrich, and Nancy Graff, will entertain some midshipmen from Abbott hall at luncheon before the matches. The party will be given in the Ballards' Winnetka home.

A slightly older group, the young marrieds who are on the school's junior auxiliary, some of the trustees, and the golfing stars who are to play that Sunday will have luncheon at the Northbrook home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Boyd Jones. The same sort of a gay luncheon was held before the matches last year, with beer and a buffet, and proved a great success. Tickets to see Tommy Armour, Dick Metz, Patty Berg, and Georgia Tainter may be obtained from the school or at the club, and play will start at 2 o'clock.

Patricia Wiman Making Debut at Party Tonight.

The Charles D. Wimans are planning the same sort of parties for their debutante daughter, Patricia, as they gave for her older sister, Miss Mary Jane Wiman, two seasons ago, except that this year the events will be far simpler and more informal. There will be a dinner-dance at the Saddle and Cylce club tonight and a tea at the Wimans' Moline home on Monday, with a small dinner-dance there next Wednesday.

The debutante will have a number of house guests for the Moline parties, among them her Foxcroft classmate, Miss Blissy King, who also is a bud of the season. Miss Wiman plans to enter either the Massachusetts Institute of Technology or Leland Stanford university next fall. The Wimans will not be going to their Santa Barbara, Cal., home this summer. Because Mr. Wiman is traveling back and forth to Washington, D. C., his family will remain in the midwest.

Here for the parties in Chicago and Moline are the debutante's Foxcroft classmates, Miss Anne Heard of Washington, Miss Anne Ordway of Battle Creek, and Miss Peggy Dunne, a Bennington college friend of the elder Miss Wiman, whose home was in Shanghai, China. No plans have been made yet for the marriage of Miss Mary Jane Wiman and William M. Brinton.

Maj. John F. L. Seitz Here on Short Leave.

One of the most interesting jobs of the war has been given to Maj. John F. L. Seitz, who weathered the trials of Honolulu's attack, and who has been assigned to general staff duty in Washington. He is in Chicago on a short leave, with orders to report to Washington on Monday.

Mrs. Seitz, the former Helen Hardenbergh, and their children were evacuated from Honolulu a few months ago. Mrs. Seitz has taken a house in Lake Forest for the summer, and her mother, Mrs. Raymond W. Hardenbergh, will bring the children

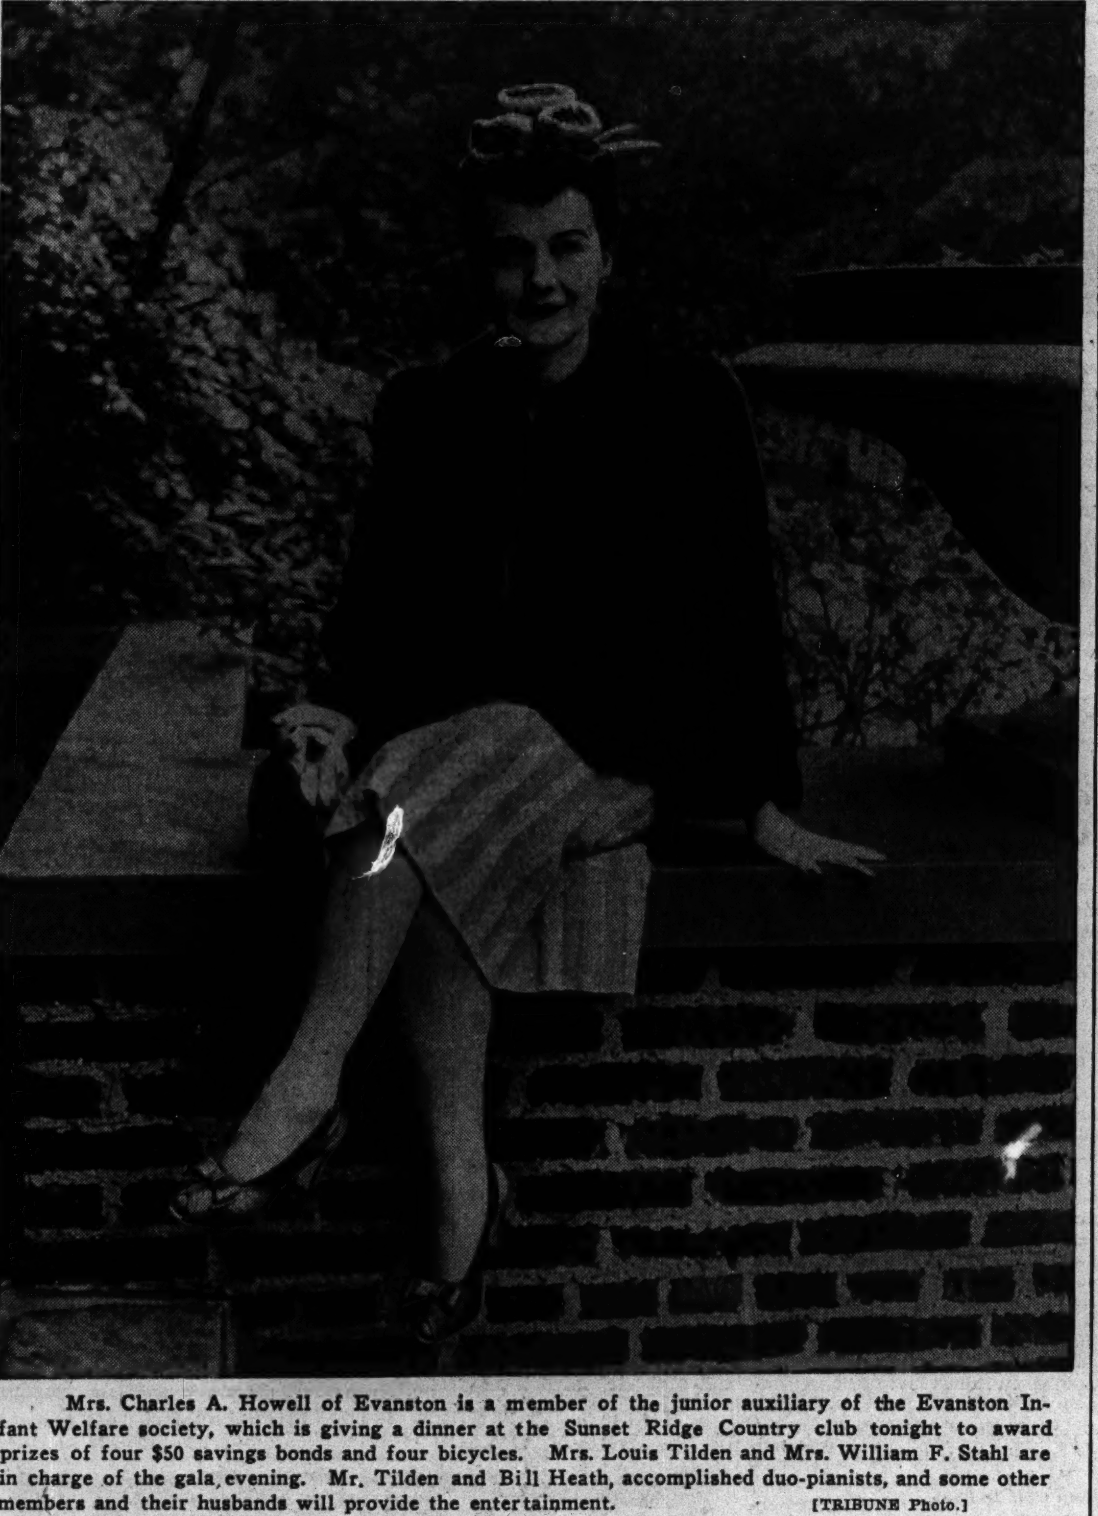
Infant Welfare Auxiliary Is Giving Dinner



Mrs. Charles A. Howell of Evanston is a member of the junior auxiliary of the Evanston Infant Welfare society, which is giving a dinner at the Sunset Ridge Country club tonight to award prizes of four $50 savings bonds and four bicycles. Mrs. Louis Tilden and Mrs. William F. Stahl are in charge of the gala evening. Mr. Tilden and Bill Heath, accomplished duo-pianists, and some other members and their husbands will provide the entertainment. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Some of the most attractive place mats for the informal summer luncheon or breakfast table are of cork, so they are sturdy and heat resistant. Their tops, tho, look exactly like linen and it's only when you turn them over that you realize they are of cork. One of the prettiest types comes in a soft blue with a wreath of field flowers in natural colors as the design. Of course, to clean these mats you simply wipe them off with a damp cloth. They are sold by the piece and are not at all expensive.

Degrees to Be Given to 744 Candidates at U. of Chicago Today

Degrees will be awarded to 744 candidates at the 209th convocation of the University of Chicago, to be held today in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel on the campus. The 349 advanced degrees will be presented by President Robert Maynard Hutchins in the morning and the 375 bachelors' degrees in the afternoon.

Among the candidates are 48 who have completed medical courses at Rush Medical college. That institution is no longer connected with the university, but it was arranged that those who were students at the time of the separation should get University of Chicago degrees. The present class is the last of these.

The university announced that 61 per cent of the men receiving degrees already are in the armed forces or will enter immediately, and 25 per cent more will engage in nonmilitary war service.

Current Events Meeting.

Thru the Looking Glass

In the new, simplified conception of beauty cleanliness is recognized as the first concern. Ask the workers! Cleanliness, as one of the defense workers told us the other day, is their idea of "oomph."

The good shampoo rates high as a necessity nowdays. More girls are "doing" their own hair, and if work is dirty, it needs doing oftener. They ask of a shampoo that it be efficient, beautifying and inexpensive.

There's a new one out that fills all those requirements. It's a neutral product, efficient in even the hardest water, that cleanses hair exquisitely without disturbing texture or luster to the slightest degree. While it removes grime perfectly, it doesn't dry the hair in the least; neither does it leave it with sticky film.

The hair should be thoroly dampened before the first application is worked in; you'll find, on this first shampooing, especiallly if the hair is extremely oily or soiled, that you won't work up much lather. Don't let this disturb you. Rinse this out, apply a second application—and you'll have plenty of lather that will float off all the grime and the loose dandruff and the scalp excretions that combine to make hair dirty and dingy.

Rinsing is easy and the final effect, with hair so clean it squeaks, is exactly what you want. Best of all, your hair isn't completely unmanageable—literally washed out—as it is when you've had the bad luck to use a harsh shampoo.

Dad Day Gifts of Distinction Fill the Shops

BY REA SEEGER.

Most of the dads are going around this week with a hopeful gleam in the eye, wishfully planning on some loot next Sunday, the one day of the year when dad is really head of the family. For gosh sakes don't let them down. There's no excuse to present anything ordinary, anything that isn't tops, for the promotionists have learned from past years' experience and have really rounded up some knockout finds. Stuff that will probably make the fathers groggy with surprise.

If you must give him ties, spend enough and select the finds that are equal to the high hat label of cravats. There are some, dozens of them, one collection, for instance, designed by a genius. Both amusing and decorative original designs are featured, plus plenty of unusual color contrasts. The silks are luxury, the price per tie or cravat a bit staggering, but Dad's day only comes once a year and remember the times you've chiseled fur jackets and other luxuries out of him without protest.

There are all kinds of snazzy new sports clothes from the real silk, handsome natural colored shantung shirts, pale beige colored lounging robes, smooth, impeccably tailored gabardine shirts, scarfs, swim and sun shorts, sweaters, weighing less than nothing, hand knit of fine imported wools, to socks in fine lisle or Angora.

New this year are some rather exciting western leather belts, hand carved and hand tooled. Both styles are effective accents with sports or daytime clothes.

Good looking masculine jewelry will be welcomed if it's suitably massive. Hot weather Panama hats, soft, pliable, and air conditioned, are exceptional finds for around the $5 limit and if you only have a single dollar to spend for the best man in the world, give him the clever, new, hardy perennial boutonniere for his lapel. It's the masculine version of the patriotic war savings stamp bouquet, six cellophane protected pink stamps arranged around a center of red white and blue tufted felt.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

Wartime Crops.

Over luncheon at the Pump room the other day, friends of Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, back home on a visit from the Harris farm near Leesburg, Va., were enchanted with her account of how the crop picture has changed to keep pace with wartime requirements. Mr. Harris is experimenting, in a modest way, with growing medicinal herbs, which are becoming quite scarce due to the stoppage of imports. Their son-in-law and daughter, the James H. Symingtons, who have a farm near by, have right-about-faced and, instead of raising peaches and sweet corn, have planted more than 300 acres in popcorn of high nutritional value, which in its final state will provide stamina and vitamins for the men in the armed forces.

It's Dynamite.

In re the following sentence from an announcement of a horse show to be held on June 28 at the Louis F. Swifts' Galloping Hills farm, for the benefit of the Chicago Maternity center, H. K. comments that we seem to be getting back to the days of the good old mountain country.

"Mrs. Swift is supplying their white mule for one of the mounts."

Lady Speakers, Please Note.

The president of one of Chicago's largest corporations has enlisted our aid in a plea to urge women speakers to wear hats that provide visibility. He says:

"Far be it from me to attempt to influence women as to what they should wear, but when they address large meetings they put themselves in a position where they ought to conform to certain simple rules. Of course at formal banquets they appear without hats, but at informal midday and evening affairs they naturally wear hats. But may I suggest that when a hat is worn it be either a turban or off-the-face type so that the audience will, in addition to hearing the speaker, get a good view of her countenance? In the professional fields—theater, opera, the movies, and so forth, close attention is paid to the point mentioned above."

He Married an Angel.

The following is part of newspaper account of the wedding of a friend of Lucy L. Bachelder's to an ensign in the navy air corps, as reported by the society editor of the paper in a small town in New Mexico, where the ceremony took place.

"The bride wore a white wool dress with hat to match, white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The only ornaments worn were a watch, a family heirloom dating back three generations, and a pair of wings, the gift of the bridegroom."

Well, Well.

A career girl who knows her statistics informs us that beef provides us with more than meat for food and glands for medicinal purposes. The tails, she says, also play a prominent part in the war effort, as they're used for insulation, for parachute seats, and as filling for mattresses used in the navy.

By the Way.

The junkman's horse seen on the north side, jauntily wearing a worn but handsome linen and lace tablecloth as a fly duster. . . . The bird cage atop a pile of salvage on North Whipple street, bearing a placard saying, "Give the Japs the Bird." . . . The young couple who park their baby in a little hanging seat fastened to the fence on the tennis court at Lunt and Glenwood avenues, then enjoy a game of tennis with no worries. . . . Groucho Marx's comment on the radio that monogamy and monotony are synonymous. . . . The little girl who told her mother that the war would be over soon because the stars had foretold it and the chiropodists agreed.

Citizen School Diplomas Given to Nearly 1,000

Nearly 1,000 men and women, representing 58 enemy and allied nations, yesterday afternoon received precitizenship study certificates at the Chicago public school adult education division commencement exercises in the Field museum.

"Tho you come from enemy countries," said Fred J. Schlotfeldt of the department of immigration and registration, "you will be treated like an American if your loyalty is proven." Mr. Schlotfeldt urged that every person in the group continue to study the American way of living.

Three different types of certificates were awarded the students from 350 study classes in parks, schools, industries, and social centers thruout the city: First certificates to those who, thru the classes, learned to read and write in a limited way; second certificates to those adept at reading and writing, and eighth grade certificates to students who had completed the equivalent of an elementary school education.

The ages ranged from 17 to 90, most of the students being in the older groups. Many of the women who received certificates have resided in America for a score or more years, but, because they were busy rearing large families, they hitherto were unable to study for citizenship.

Mrs. Anna Diacchetti, 118 North Pulaski road, has been in the United States for 32 years, during which time she reared 12 children. Her eldest son, Tom, is serving in the army, as is another son, Sarto. Mrs. Diacchetti's husband, Paul, is a citizen, and she said "Now my children are old enough for me to have time to study."

Royalty was represented in the class by Miss Meriam Shalam, who is a granddaughter of former Pasha Ahmid Shalam of Egypt. The pasha's son visited England many years ago, where he met and married Meriam's mother, who was an English opera singer. Miss Shalam resides at 503 North Clark street.

Poland led every other country in the number of citizens representing it at the exercises. One Polish student, Mrs. Catherine Kopp, 313 North Fairfield avenue, was bursting with American patriotism and wanted to prove her loyalty. However, a rigidly planned program left no place for her little speech and singing of "America"—which she planned to end by ringing a dinner bell at the words, "let freedom ring."

Wise Parents Know Child's Friendships

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The zoo is always fascinating, because you never know, unless you follow those zoo news stories in the papers, what baby animals you may see, a wabbly soft-eyed fawn, a baby giraffe on stilts, a parade of bits of yellow fluff following a proud mother duck, or more arresting than these cubs of some of the "big cats."

The lioness sat majestically in the corner of her big cage. She had three cubs, perhaps two or three months old. They lay asleep near her. The crowd stood patiently looking at them, hoping something would happen soon.

At last one of the babies woke up, wabbled to his feet and went on a tour of the cage, sniffing at this, biting at that, and lingering in a corner, followed by the quiet gaze of his mother.

Then back he came and walked up between her front paws. Of course nothing happened to him in that little pilgrimage. But did his mother let it go at that? Did she take a chance? She did not.

She smelled that cub over, every inch of him. From his head to his tail and back, giving him an occasional lick with her big tongue. Then, satisfied, when she saw him settled at her side, she went to sleep again.

I wonder how many of us do as much! O, well, physically, yes. But how many of us who are parents try to find out whether all is well with our children when they've been away? How many of us know where our children are and with whom they are when they're not with us? Not just as far as the little children are concerned. It's easier to keep track of them but not so simple when they're older.

We can't always govern every influence that will play upon our children, but we should know what those influences are and do our best to make the most of the best ones and to neutralize the others.

Such an idea might be thought, by some people with a "survival of the fittest" philosophy, to be the notion of theorists or coddling mothers. But it isn't. It's the practical experience of all those who deal with average children, as well as the firm belief of those men who have delinquent boys come under their notice, that mothers and fathers should know where their children are, with whom they are, and what are their activities.

For instance, a prominent Chicago judge, who has had 20,000 delinquent youths appear before him, said: "Another deterrent to misbehavior is the careful observation of a boy's companions and the places he frequents."

And I'd like to add another remark he made, altho it isn't relevant to this subject, except as it helps in every dealing with children: "Boys detest being driven, but they always are eager to follow a capable leader. Therefore, the boy's supervision must take the form of suggestion, play and leadership, presented in such a way that the boy coöperates in his own welfare." Fathers and older brothers, as well as scout leaders and teachers, take notice.

How can the teacher help the self-effacing child? What can be done for the left handed boy or girl? Parents and teachers alike will welcome "Talks with Teachers," new 28 page booklet by Gladys Huntington Bevans. Looking at Hollywood . . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., June 18.—Watching them make pictures: One of the most colorful sets I've lamped in a coon's age was for "Gentleman Jim Corbett." Scene was laid on the San Francisco waterfront before the turn of the century, when Gentleman Jim, in the person of Errol Flynn, did one of his famous battles, and the waterfront was lined with not only plug-uglies but the élite, including their ladies, all done up in feather boas [no, I did not say boa constrictors!]. In those days a fight like that was illegal. . . . It was going full tilt when Director Raoul Walsh, looking like a pirate with that black patch over one eye, and with a voice like a machine gun, gave instructions to the policemen: "Go in there, boys. You've all got clubs, you know what to do with 'em. Remember, this was in the good old days before anybody had lace on their panties. Don't smash any skulls, but clear the decks!" That's all they needed. . . . After it was over, Errol Flynn, filling those fighting tights out sumptuously, pulled a honey of a gag. He got Sailor Vincent to stage a falling fit at my feet, with half a dozen bystanders helping the poor guy up. And when he was up he said to me, "Hey! You tripped me!" . . . It was like the good old days when we used to have fun. Everybody thought up pranks, and if we didn't feel in the mood of the picture, we'd take half a day off and pull gags on each other. But now, when things move fast, to have one pulled on you without halting the scene was a bit of all right. I'll give Errol an "A" mark for that one.

They Call It Love.

Bramwell Fletcher is sporting a broken finger which he's none too proud of. . . . I hear it was given him by his lady love, Diana Barrymore. The other day Diana chased him all over the set of "Love and Kisses, Caroline"—not for love and kisses, but because she wanted to hit him. Just being kittenish! It interfered with the scene, so Bob Cummings caught her and gave her a good sound spanking, which delighted everybody on the set except the youngest member of the Royal Family. . . . It's good sense that Maureen O'Hara wouldn't allow pictures taken of her Cape Cod home she's just completed. And the reason was that since she's been here, she's noticed so many times that when they take pictures of the newlyweds' homes the divorce is just around the corner.

Bramwell Fletcher.

We Knew It.

They've tagged "Elmer the Great" on Elmer Davis since he's got that job, in spite of the fact that was the name of a baseball player. The person who conceived the idea of putting Mr. Davis in that position is great. We all know Elmer is. . . . Vitality wins—always! Betty Hutton's being rushed thru "Star Spangled Rhythm" so she can star in Preston Sturges' next, which he's writing for her. The idea's so new he hasn't even got a word for it—but I'll bet the Greeks had! . . . I hear the army turned down an applicant because his Seeing Eye dog had flat feet. Yet they took one of my helpers, Spec McClure, when he's blind as a bat without his glasses. And we're both proud of it.

Dear Perplexed Writes——

"We've had a controversy about how to address Korda since his knighthood. Should it be 'Sir Alex'—or 'Alexander'—or 'Sir Alexander Korda'?" O, dearie me! We were perplexed 25 years ago when Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree arrived here for pictures. The big boys had no idea what to call him, so sent a covey of cowboys to the station, and when he got off the train they pulled their horses to salute on their back legs, threw their hats in the air, and yelled in chorus, "Welcome, Sir Tree!" And he never was called anything else here.

A New Experiment.

Pauline Lord is being brought out from New York to play Spencer Tracy's mother in "Keeper of the Flame" with Katharine Hepburn, and Director George Cukor is trying a new experiment. In this, Hepburn will play not herself but a very serious and rather tragic part, with no comedy whatever. . . . Miriam Hopkins is hoping Katie will be herself and begin signing checks, 'cause she's been living in Miriam's house for three weeks and the first month's rent hasn't yet come in. 'Tis strange, but the richer we become the more careless we seem to be about those little matters.

Pauline Lord.

Not South American Way.

Carmen Miranda, because her tires are almost gone, bought a bicycle a few days ago, and, lo and behold, rode onto the lot the other morning to start work on "Springtime in the Rockies," fell off the bike, bruised her legs so badly she'll be bedded for several days. And Charlotte Greenwood suggests the picture be renamed "Lost Time on the Rocks." . . . I'm very fond of Gene Autry, but I don't think it's advancing our war effort to have Gene dramatize the stories of our new heroes, Doolittle and Wheless, and play both characters himself. However, I could be wrong.

I'll Take Vanilla.

When Don Ameche started his eighth year at Twentieth Century he was given a party by the cast of "Girl Trouble." The director presented him with a chocolate-covered doughnut and seven candles, Joan Bennett gave him a toy telephone, and on the card, "What would we ever have done without you?" Billie Burke gave him the book, "Ramona," and Frank Craven a hitching post. . . . Both Gene Lockhart and Frank Loesser wrote a song called "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," but it's Frank's which is being used for "Star Spangled Rhythm." . . . Bill Perlberg claims fan letters are rolling in telling him how to cast "The Song of Bernadette"—and so far Michele Morgan leads the pack.

Good Morning!

[Reading time, 30 seconds.]

KIND: Farce comedy with music. Caricature of the Ziegfeld operetta from which it was adapted.

STORY: Two down-at-the-heel-ers, Abbott and Costello, land in Rio, become house detectives in a ritzy hotel owned by the sweet singing Rita Winslow, foil a spy plot, and foster a romance. The last is between said Rita and a caroling Richardo Montera, who returns to his native haunts to sing for a fiesta.

ACTING: The comedians are characteristically funny—only some of their laugh sequences are drawn out to a long, thin rat-tail. . . . Kathryn Grayson and John Carroll act and sing pleasingly, and other rôles are smoothly portrayed.

DIRECTION: Okey save for long windedness.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SETS, SOUND, Etc.: Satisfactory.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: The audience of which I was one laffed and laffed.

See you tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Woodford of Hinsdale are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Jean Louise, to Ensign Horace S. Greene, U. S. N. R., son of Mrs. John T. Greene of Providence, R. I. Miss Woodford was graduated from Northwestern university this month. Ensign Greene is a graduate of Bowdoin and received his commission at the naval training school at Northwestern university.

News of the marriage last May 9 in Montgomery, Ala., of Miss Blair Porter and Edward Richardson Bacon III. is revealed in announcements of the marriage from Miss Porter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Porter of Kenilworth. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bacon Jr. of Briar place, is in training with the air force. His bride has returned to Kenilworth temporarily.

The junior John Wings and their Evanston friends who met the Wings' Chilean visitor, George Delano, this week, regretfully sped him on his way to Hollywood yesterday, and hope to entertain for him again next winter. The Wings met Mr. Delano when they were exchange students at the university in Santiago, Chile, right after their marriage.

Mercy Hospital Auxiliary to Have Luncheon Today

The Mercy Hospital auxiliary will close the season with a buffet luncheon meeting at 1 o'clock today in the roof solarium of the institution at 2537 South Prairie avenue. Miss Aileen McBrian, director of social service in the hospital's free dispensary, will speak.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Steel Salvage in the Office.

Now it's steel salvage inside the office! Women in many offices, including those at Illinois Institute of Technology, are not only saving steel—they are making sure their future typewriter ribbons will be wound on steel rings by saving all rings which are returned to the typewriter company to use again.

Deliver Us, Please!

Irritants—

The mind-changer, the fingerer, the haggler, the priorities protestor . . . the friend of the management. . . .

Gratitude.

A letter from Mrs. Whiting on behalf of the auxiliary board of the Children's Memorial hospital: "I think you will be interested and gratified to hear of the wonderful results of the June 1 article in White Collar Girl. Over 70 women, all experienced and of the very highest caliber, have already started work in the hospital. Some are doing clerical work, some recreational work with the children, one in the pharmacy, and others in various departments. The auxiliary feels it is a particularly generous contribution in as much as all these women have regular jobs and are giving up their evenings to do this splendid work."

Notes.

On the Memo Pad: Sunday is Father's day and the real meaning only now becomes apparent as it comes toward the end of "Send a Child to Camp Week"—June 15 to 22—and father can now relax. . . . A group of business men are betting lump sugar at lunch and taking it home to the missus. . . . A Chicago advertising woman, eastward bound for a fashion clinic, will go to Canada to look over 10,000 antique toys conditional to bringing them to Chicago. . . . A Chicago hotel housekeeper meets philosophically the problem of departing maids. "Always let them go glad," she advises. "Tell them you hope they will enjoy their new position." . . . There are 1,075 stars on the Chicago and North Western service flag, which was dedicated in the North Western station in Chicago with pretty Mary Cooper officiating, chosen by her co-workers, as "Miss North Western." . . . Bosses who close their desks and enlist rate more poetry [from their stenos] than this column can publish.

Solution.

The answer to yesterday's mathematical problem: There were 78 children, 19 women, and 3 men who bought the 100 tickets amounting to $1.

Never Wail if Your Stature Is Diminutive

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We have a pseudo-pathetic letter from a young woman who claims life holds nothing for her because she reaches only 4 feet 11 inches skyward, which she thinks isn't skyward at all.

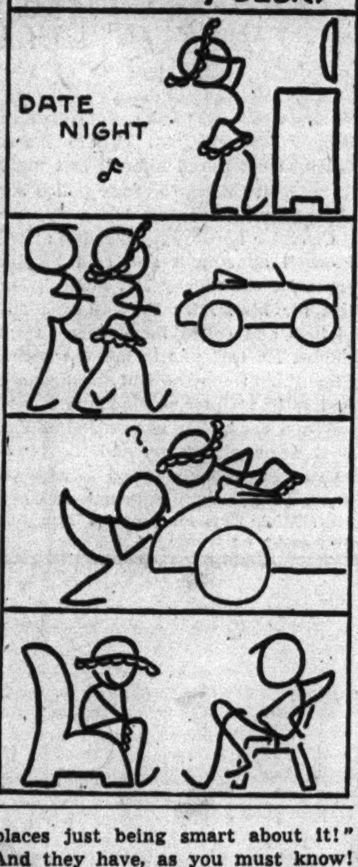
"Picture how short that is!" the girl begs, "and you can see how timid, frightened, self-conscious, and infantile looking I am, and what an inferiority complex I suffer. The embarrassments short girls suffer in company with persons of normal height are terrible. I have tried everything for height, but no luck. Aren't there some gland tablets I could take? I stopped growing at 12, altho my family is all of average height. It is maddening what this does to one, casting a gloom over everything. Otherwise, I would be attractive looking, I know. I have especially nice hair and good skin and teeth."

Tush, tush, young woman! It's your state of mind that has become static, not your height. We mean it's the mind that's bothering more than the other. Granted, you will not get a job as a 5 foot 8 or 9 dress model, but you could capitalize that stature you have and rise to new heights without benefit of "gland tablet," [if any].

There are few of us women so fortunate as not to be nursing a private grief about something we call a liability. So, don't think you belong to any isolated group. If your hair is attractive, your skin, your teeth, and therefore, your smile, you're three up on a good many of your sex. What you need, young woman, is a different point of view which you can get standing right where you are. You can say: "All right, I'm short, but lots of short women got to high places just being smart about it!" And they have, as you must know!

Instead of going around humbly apologetic about what you deem your meager inches, stand up to life with a grin, showing your precious pearls, making your hair an even more gorgeous asset, and your pretty skin, too. Don't be guilty ever of inviting sympathy for your height! There it is, and it's up to you to dignify it by refusing to call attention to it with walls of any kind. Heels, of course, you wear and probably do your hair high. But these things aren't as helpful as what goes on in your pretty head about yourself and swearing you won't be downed.

Dear Diary BY BECKY



Man in Love Isn't Stingy, Doris Advises

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Can you tell what kind of man he really is by the way he spends his money?" asks a young woman who has reason to make the inquiry.

Yes, we think you can tell a great deal about a man by the way he spends [and saves] money.

Our correspondent, the young woman, explains that her boy friend is not stingy; he seems to spend his money only on things that are unnecessary. For example, he will give a stranger $50 and will spend 10, 15, or even 20 dollars treating his friends to drinks.

"It isn't that I want him to spend that money on me," the girl continues, "but as he does have it, I would appreciate it if he would surprise me once in a while with flowers, or a little gadget that would be cute or some little item that needn't cost over a dollar. He never does. I have been going with him for three years and he tells me that he loves me and wants to marry me, but I have never known him to do one generous thing for me. We even eat in the cheapest places, altho he may just have lent some one 10 or more dollars.

"I don't want you to think I am selfish, Miss Blake. I don't want him to spend money on me, but I hate to see him throwing it away on others who care nothing for him. I think he is only thoughtless. But don't you think that, if a man really loves a girl, he gives her more than kisses and words?"

Yes, you have something there, young woman! If a man loves a girl he would want her to have the best within his range of supply. He wouldn't act the big showoff, endowing others just to hear their applause on what a great guy he is. That's what he'd want the girl he loves to give him.

However, your fault may be that you don't ask enough from him. When you give your heart to that type of person, you'd better make him realize you're no softie who'll stand for the cheap eating places and the giftless birthdays and Christmases. We think, perhaps you'd better put this chap on a training course before you materialize an altar date with him.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

A team should not "hang" one trick short of game when the bidding has disclosed that there must be a fair play for game. This, however, applies to noncompetitive bidding situations, in which there has been no warning of a bad break of cards. Notice how North and South earned a top score on the following duplicate hand:

South, dealer.
Match-point duplicate.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ J 8 5
♦ A

WEST
♠ J
♥ Q 7 4 3

EAST
♠ Q 10 9 8 4 3
♥ 10 6
♦ Q 8 5 4
♣ 8

SOUTH
♠ 7
♥ A K 9 2
♦ K J 10 7 2
♣ J 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	2 clubs	2 spades	Double
3 diamonds	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

Normally, when one partner holds three honor tricks and a fair fit for the other's bid suit [as was the case with North], it is automatic for a game contract to be reached. Indeed, it probably would have been reached in this deal, also, had it not been for the helpful warnings from both opponents. Of course there was no doubt as to the correctness of North's two spade bid over West's two clubs, but when East promptly [but injudiciously] doubled, both North and South sat up and took notice. There is such a thing as a keen "ear for bidding" and there was something about this bidding that sounded ominous. Thus, after South rescued with three diamonds, North did not make the bid which his honor cards and distribution really warranted. His return to three hearts was merely a "preference"; a jump to four hearts would be justified on North's holding under most circumstances.

North's restraint was duly echoed by South. Technically speaking, many experts would consider the bidding sequence to that point forcing on South, but this South player was not interested in technicalities. He felt that the play of the hand would offer great difficulties and that he would be lucky to make even three hearts.

He was quite right. As a matter of fact, he went down one trick. But the 100 point penalty he paid was small compared with the penalties incurred by all the other North-South teams, and the result was top on the board for this North-South.

JURY SPLIT, 10-2, IN TENNESSEE SHERIFF KILLING

Child Bride Witness Freed After Months in Jail.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Morristown, Tenn., June 18.—The jury trying J. A. [Buddy] Sherman for the murder of Sheriff Henry Clay Walker of Hamblen county was locked up for the night at 9 o'clock tonight, unable to agree after almost seven hours of deliberation.

The jurors reported to Judge Shelburne Ferguson that they were divided numerically 10 to 2, but gave no indication as to whether the majority were for acquittal or conviction. They predicted the trial would end in disagreement. The prosecutor had asked the death penalty.

Mrs. Cecil Chamberlin, the child bride emeritus, who was state's star witness, was released from custody this afternoon. She had been held in jail here for 2½ months to insure her appearance, as she had disappeared before and was found in Baltimore, Md. Legal experts said the state would have difficulty without her in event of a jury disagreement and a second trial.

Child Brides Become Friends.

She was the second child bride to figure in a murder trial here in two days. The first, Mattie Pearl Manning, 14 years old, was convicted Tuesday and sentenced to 20 years in prison for the murder of her husband, Daymon W. Manning. Buddy Sherman went on trial the next day.

Mrs. Chamberlin is now 25, according to her attorney, Herman Conway Smith. She has been a close friend of Mattie Pearl in jail. Mrs. Chamberlin, married when she was 12, said today that Mattie Pearl is a lovely girl who married too young.

Walker, whose official title was high sheriff, was shot to death April 7, 1941, on the outskirts of town.

The sheriff had gone to Mrs. Chamberlin's home in response to a telephone call from her second husband, after the Chamberlins had a tiff. Mrs. Chamberlin angered by her husband's call, asked the sheriff to take her back to town. She thus became an eyewitness to the shooting, since Buddy shot the sheriff when the sheriff stopped to search his car.

Defendant Remains on Cot.

Buddy, who had sought to postpone the trial on the ground of illness, was wheeled in for the second day on a cot. His orchid blanket was too warm in the scorching courtroom, however, and he threw it back while he testified in a reclining position.

Questioned by Ray Jenkins of the defense counsel, Buddy told the jurors that Sheriff Walker trapped him the night of the shooting by driving up behind his parked car. There was no clear explanation of why he could not have driven forward, if he wished to get away.

Freeman Perry, a Negro who was riding with him, ventured the opinion that they might have been on a dead-end street. But tho Perry lives on the street, he wasn't even certain of its name.

Whatever the circumstances, Buddy pictured himself a a man relatively unarmed when the sheriff approached to search his car for liquor. The only protection Buddy had was a shotgun and a pistol, both loaded.

Accounts Conflict.

He said the sheriff seized the shotgun and pointed it at him with one hand while covering him with a pistol in the other. This was in conflict with previous testimony by Mrs. Chamberlin. She had told the jurors she had seen no guns in the sheriff's hands at the time.

Buddy testified that he shot two or three times after the sheriff began beating him on the head with the revolver. The sheriff then shot once, according to the defendant, and Buddy shot two or three times again.

Buddy, a husky figure of a man, said he had been afraid of the sheriff for some time. The sheriff once broke up a pingpong game in which Buddy was playing, as Buddy told it, by pointing a gun at him. And twice, he said, the sheriff had followed his car a block or two.

Other witnesses had pictured the sheriff as a little man, none too frightening in appearance. Mrs. Chamberlin, indeed, testified when asked how tall he was: "He was a kind of low fellow."

Perry testified that he had not lingered when the shooting began.

"I took off for home," he explained. "I was out of hearing," he said when asked if he had heard the last shots.

BOY BURGLAR, 13, BLAMED FOR FIRE IN LOOTED HOME

William Heirens, 13 year old son of a steel plant police sergeant who confessed to 11 burglaries in the Town Hall district, yesterday was identified by a building custodian as having looted one home and then set fire to it.

The boy was taken to the apartment of Abe Greenblatt, 3744½ Pine Grove avenue, by Lieut. William Drury of the Town Hall station. The Greenblatt apartment was looted two months ago and gutted by fire which caused $1,500 damage.

The janitor, Anton Steiner, 3740 Pine Grove avenue, told police he had seen the Heirens boy running out of the apartment shortly before the fire was discovered. The boy confessed to having burglarized the flat, but told police the fire was accidental.

BREAK ARSENAL 'STRIKE' AGAINST HIRING NEGROES

Detroit, Mich., June 18 (AP).—Officials of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] late tonight reported that an unauthorized work stoppage which interrupted production at the Hudson naval ordnance arsenal had been "broken."

UAW-CIO President R. J. Thomas, intervening after being flown from Washington, said "every step possible" would be taken to prevent recurrence of the stoppage which resulted when several thousand day shift employés, protesting the employment of eight Negroes to operate machines formerly used by white workers, ceased work.

Thomas, who had denounced the stoppage as a "flagrant violation" of the union constitution and ordered workers to return to their jobs "at once" or face expulsion, said union leaders would be at the gates tomorrow when the day shift reported.

JOAN FARWELL'S TENACITY PUTS THIEF IN CELL

Because of the tenacity of Joan Farwell, 15 year old daughter of John V. Farwell, 999 Lake Shore drive, Homer Chevrier, 31, of 516 North Clark street found himself last night in an East Chicago avenue police cell charged with larceny.

Chevrier appeared yesterday at the Farwell apartment and said he had come for the money Mr. Farwell had left for him. Miss Farwell was suspicious and called her father on the phone. He told her to get the police. Meantime the man had disappeared, and so had a pair of binoculars.

When the police arrived, Miss Farwell went with them and the binoculars were quickly found in a pawnshop. In a nearby saloon was Chevrier. Miss Farwell pointed him out, and away he went.

PULLMAN AGREES WITH CAR MEN TO END PLANT TIEUP

Bowing to an army ultimatum to return to work or lose a big government contract, company and union officials agreed last night on the basis for a resumption of railway freight car construction at the Michigan City, Ind., plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. Union officials indicated that the plant, closed by a labor dispute since Monday, would resume operations next Monday.

Maj. H. J. Hocker of the army engineers' office in Chicago, threatened Wednesday to turn the car building contract over to other manufacturers if the dispute were not settled by Monday.

The basis for settlement was an agreement to extend the company-union contract for 60 days from the start of the plant tieup, the union meanwhile pressing its demands for increased wages before the War Labor board.

Union officials urged acceptance of the proposal at a rank and file union meeting called for tonight in Michigan City and indicated their belief the members would back the action.

Fish's County Declines to Indorse Candidate

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 18 (AP).—The Dutchess county Republican committee refused to indorse Rep. Hamilton Fish for reëlection to represent New York's 26th congressional district tonight for the first time in the 20 years Fish has served in congress. The committee decided to indorse no candidate, but did support Thomas E. Dewey for governor. Fish, representative of President Roosevelt's home district, previously received indorsement of two other counties, Putnam and Orange.

TOOLS STOLEN FROM PLANT.

Tools valued at $73 were stolen from the North American Manufacturing company, 1411 Carroll avenue, Patrick Muldoney, manager, reported yesterday to police.

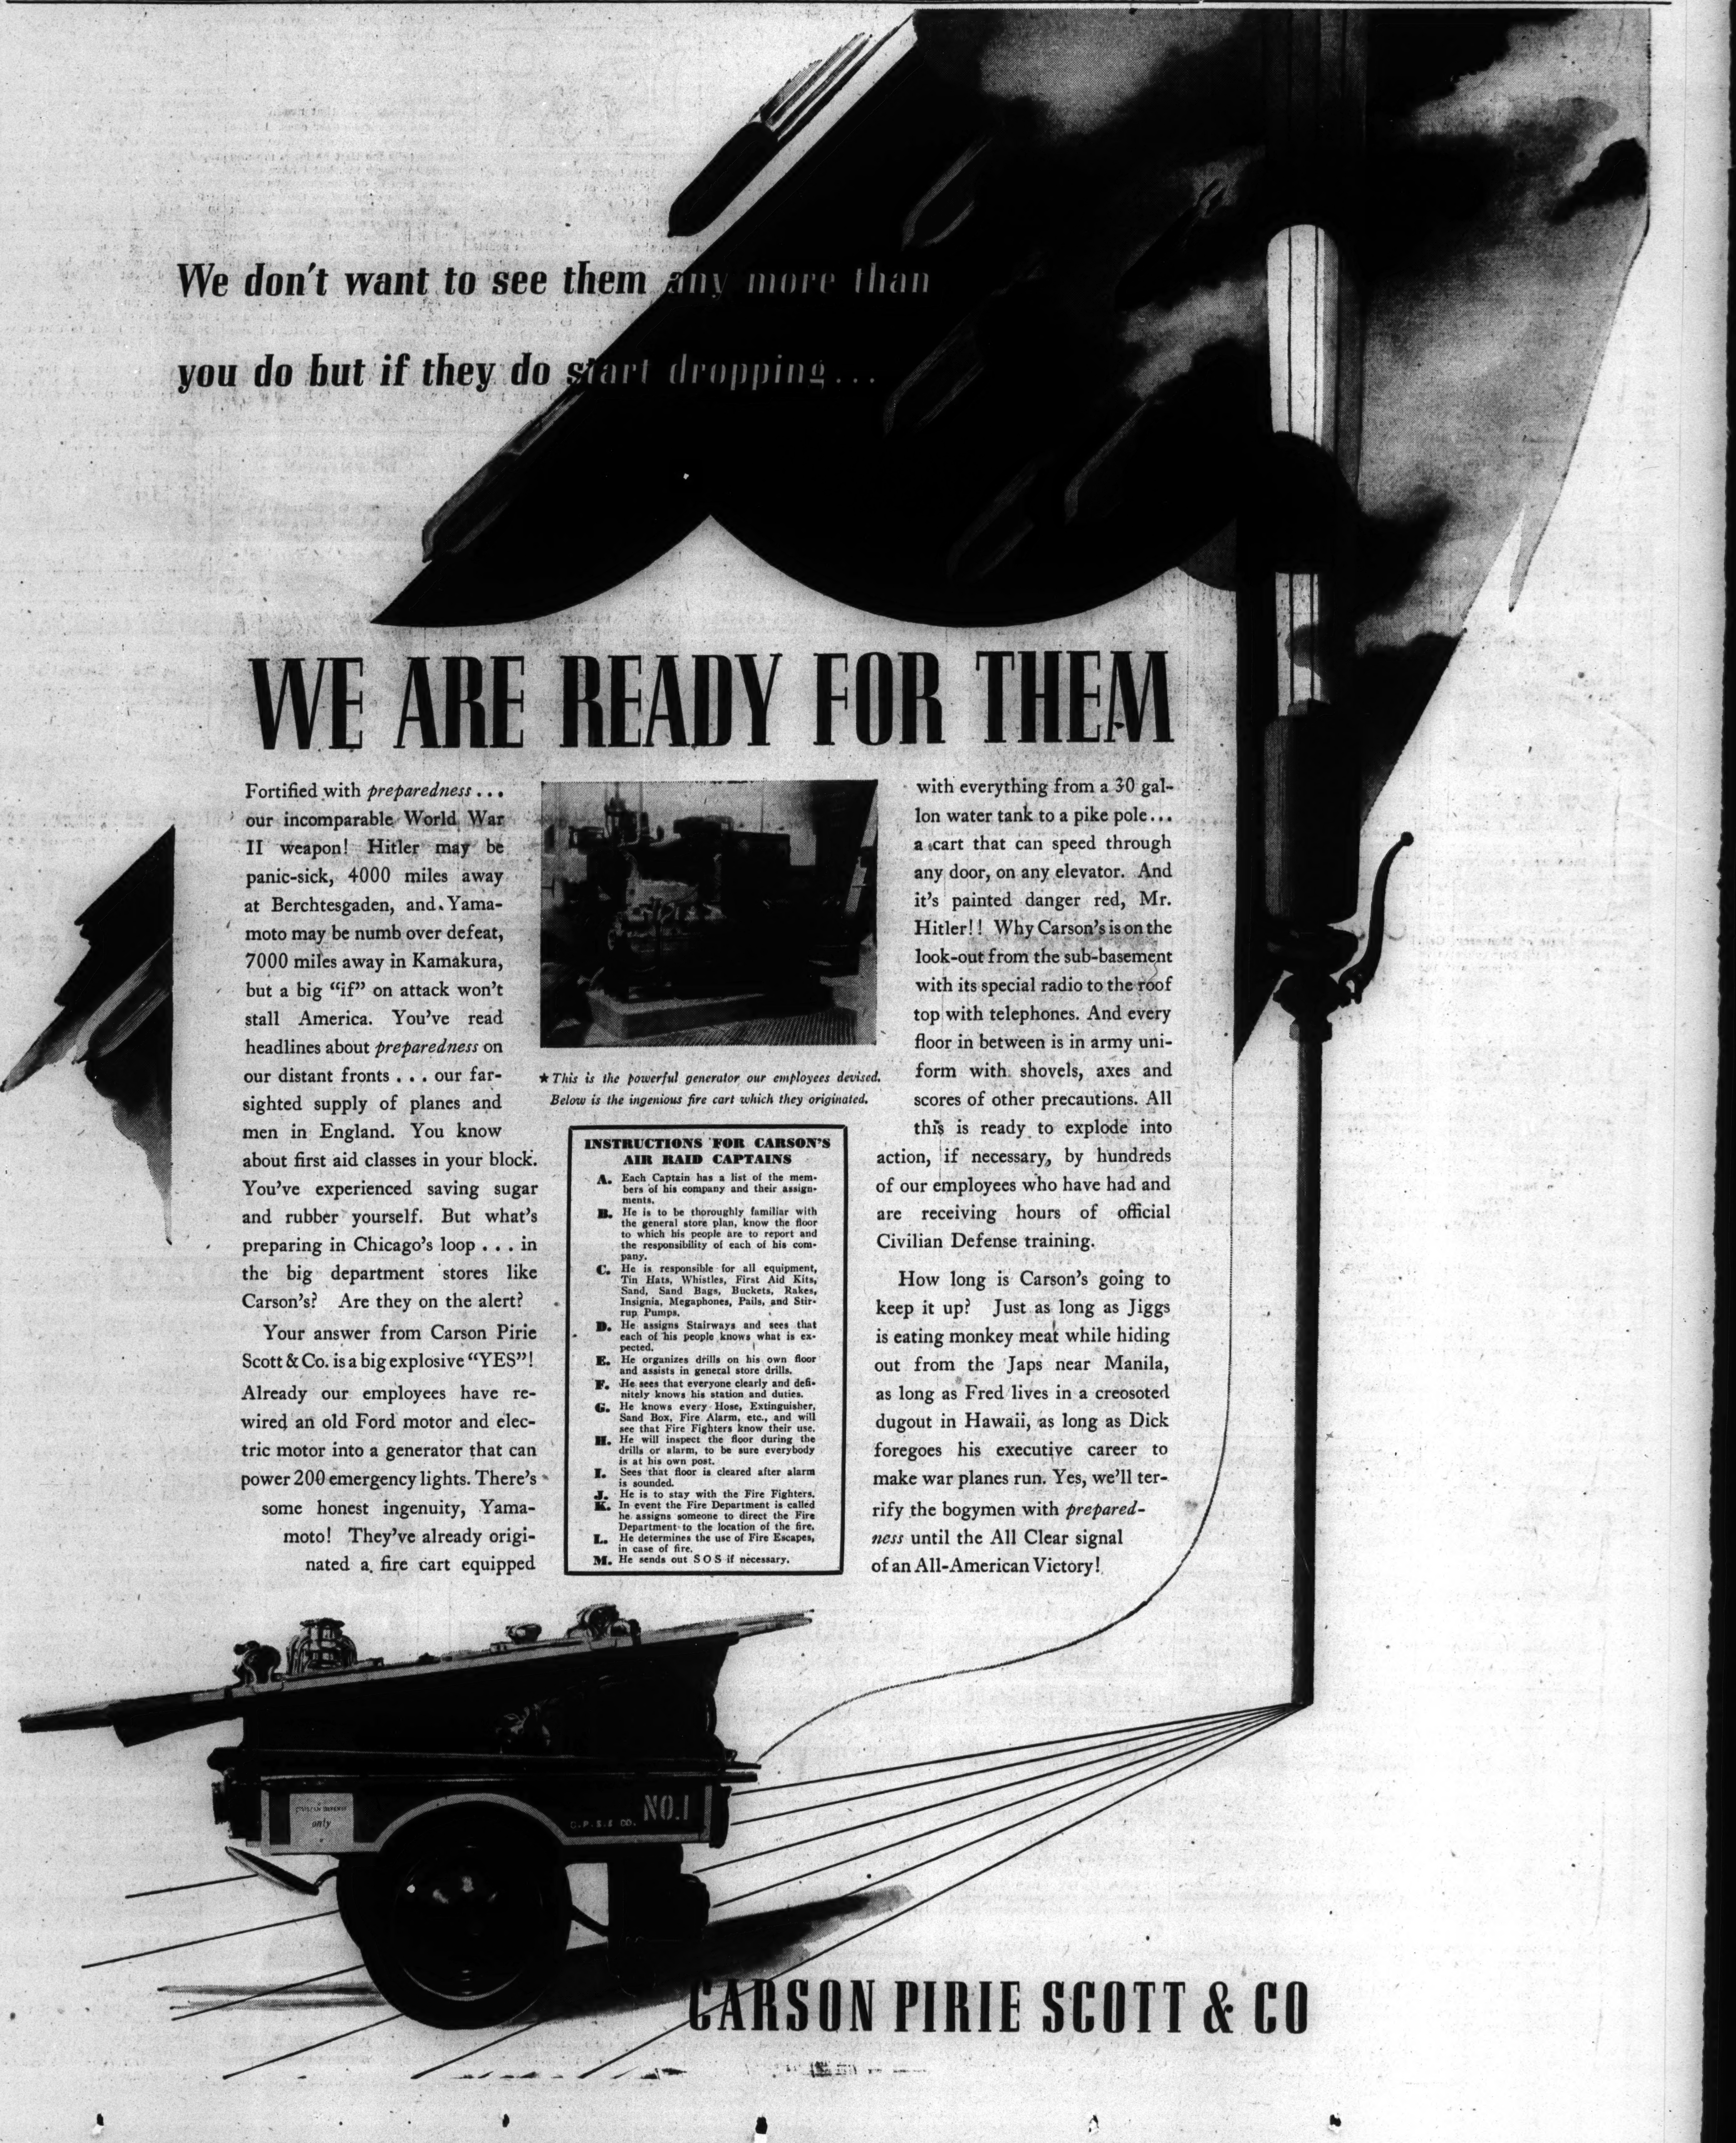
......almost every whitefish lover in the town ......who's ever eaten whitefish here...... or talked to folks who have......

For each we'll set a grand big tender flank of whitefish on to broil......until it's brown and crisp around the edges.....until its juice is a glistening yellow buttery puddle on the plate.....and the fragrant steam writes smiles on all the faces of the folks who come......

.....for Broiled Whitefish.....at HENRICI'S.

HENRICI'S
CHICAGO'S MOST FAMOUS RESTAURANT
on Randolph between Clark and Dearborn



We don't want to see them any more than you do but if they do start dropping...

WE ARE READY FOR THEM

Fortified with preparedness... our incomparable World War II weapon! Hitler may be panic-sick, 4000 miles away at Berchtesgaden, and Yamamoto may be numb over defeat, 7000 miles away in Kamakura, but a big "if" on attack won't stall America. You've read headlines about preparedness on our distant fronts . . . our far-sighted supply of planes and men in England. You know about first aid classes in your block. You've experienced saving sugar and rubber yourself. But what's preparing in Chicago's loop . . . in the big department stores like Carson's? Are they on the alert?

Your answer from Carson Pirie Scott & Co. is a big explosive "YES"! Already our employees have rewired an old Ford motor and electric motor into a generator that can power 200 emergency lights. There's some honest ingenuity, Yamamoto! They've already originated a fire cart equipped with everything from a 30 gallon water tank to a pike pole... a cart that can speed through any door, on any elevator. And it's painted danger red, Mr. Hitler!! Why Carson's is on the look-out from the sub-basement with its special radio to the roof top with telephones. And every floor in between is in army uniform with shovels, axes and scores of other precautions. All this is ready to explode into action, if necessary, by hundreds of our employees who have had and are receiving hours of official Civilian Defense training.

How long is Carson's going to keep it up? Just as long as Jiggs is eating monkey meat while hiding out from the Japs near Manila, as long as Fred lives in a creosoted dugout in Hawaii, as long as Dick foregoes his executive career to make war planes run. Yes, we'll terrify the bogymen with preparedness until the All Clear signal of an All-American Victory!

MIKE TURNESA TIES CRISMAN FOR HALE AMERICA LEAD

EACH 7 UNDER PAR WITH 65S IN FIRST ROUND

Five Deadlocked for Second.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A couple of golfing citizens named Otey and Mike yesterday came out of the first round of the Hale America National Open Golf tournament at the Ridgemoor Country club to take the opening lead with scores of 65, seven under par. When you mention Mike around most golf courses, the regulars instantly think of Mike Turnesa of the Elmsford, N. Y., Turnesas, and the same it was who arrived late in the afternoon with a 34 and 31 for his fancy performance.

But that Otey, that's different. Otey is Otey Crisman, an amiable 150 pounder from Selma, Ala., who posted a 34 and a 31 in the sixth finishing threesome of the weirdest day of scoring American golf competition ever has seen. The blackhaired little southerner could have been mistaken for one of the 6,500 spectators who traipsed after the field in this biggest of all war relief shows. But there it was, a shiny 65 that seemed destined to stand up all thru the wild round until Signor Turnesa admitted that he, too, had done likewise.

63 Equal or Better Par.

If you don't believe that Ridgemoor's 6,519 yards were subjected, as anticipated, to a merciless cuffing by the bulk of the field, consider that 63 of the 96 starters equaled or bettered the northwest course's par of 36—36—72, and 49 of them, better than half of the company, broke par.

Forgetting the 31s, 5 under par, made by Crisman and Turnesa on the back nine, there were a few front side efforts worthy of mention. Among them were a 30 by Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, who rimmed the ninth cup in search of a 29; a 31 by George Schneiter, Ogden, Utah, pro, and a 32 by Lawson Little of Monterey, Cal., who started out with four consecutive birdies against the two birds and one eagle made by Mangrum on the first three.

If this scoring is maintained thruout the next three days, in each of which 18 holes will be played, it may well be that the recognized 72 hole mark in major competition, a 264 by Craig Wood in the Metropolitan Open, will be embarrassed. The 65s shot by Leaders Crisman and Turnesa, recorded in this war year substitute for the National Open tournament, never have been equaled. The best previous assaults on par in the show conducted by the United States Golf association have been six 66s, made by Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Tom Creavy, Johnny Goodman, Jimmy Thomson, and Clayton Heafner.

Five in Tie with 67s.

Following Otey and Mike into today's second round, which will tee off at 9:30 o'clock, will be a batch of five 67s. These include Little and Mangrum; Harry Cooper of St. Paul, recent PGA medalist; Al Brosch of Farmingdale, N. Y., and Mike Sipula of Ottawa, Ill., who duplicated Little's card of 32—35—67.

The 68 delegation is headed by Wilford Wehrle, one time Western Amateur and Chicago District champion from Racine, Wis., who needed only two pars for a 66, but took three from the edge of the 17th and was bunkered in the trap fronting the 18th. His total was matched by Dick Metz of Oak Park; Hermon Barron, Western titleholder from White Plains, N. Y.; Jimmy Demaret, the 1940 Masters' and Western Open winner, and George Schneiter, who is a member of the P. G. A.'s national committee.

Among the 69s were such famed names as Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, Colo., National P. G. A. president; Byron Nelson of Toledo, O.; Denny Shute of Chicago, former Brit-

Order Louis to Fort Riley for Training

New York, June 18 (AP).—Orders have been issued for the transfer of Corp. Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, to Fort Riley, Kas., the army information office of the 2d corps area said today. Louis is to leave for his new assignment tomorrow morning. The army office refused to speculate as to what his new assignment would be.

Announcement of Louis' transfer came shortly after Secretary of War Stimson had said the champion would make no more public appearances, except for the armed forces, until he had completed his basic military training.

Louis was scheduled to appear in an exhibition tomorrow night at Camp Upton on Long Island.

Inducted into the army on Jan 14, Louis spent several months at Camp Upton, but recently he has been attached to the army's special services division in New York City.

STIMSON ISSUES ORDER

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Prospects of another title fight by Corp. Joe Louis Barrow faded into the indefinite future today as the army decreed that the heavyweight champion must complete his basic military training forthwith.

Secretary of War Stimson announced that Louis had been ordered to a replacement training center and added that until his period of intensive soldiering there was completed, "appearances other than those strictly in behalf of the armed forces will not be undertaken."

Normally, basic training requires 13 weeks, but Louis is credited with having met some of the requirements since he was inducted into the army more than four months ago.

Discussion Must Wait.

Stimson said that "presumably" the question whether Louis would be permitted to defend his title—either for his own profit or for benefit of army relief funds—would be considered after he is finished with the next stage of his military career.

"The many public appearances made by Louis since his induction have made it impossible for him to be accorded the same privileges of training that are available to other soldiers," the secretary of war said, reading from a statement. "That is unfair to him and to the army."

Ignore Jacobs' Plea.

Stimson's newly announced policy appeared to leave the way open for Louis to continue exhibitions he has been giving recently in army camps.

A plea by Mike Jacobs, promoter of many of the champion's title bouts, that Louis be permitted to fight to raise funds for a $116,000 income tax payment due June 15 was ignored.

ALL-STAR BENEFIT FOOTBALL FUND REACHES $14,000

W. D. Monroe Is Third to Contribute $2,000.

BY ARCH WARD.

You have heard of New York's famous "400." Well, Chicagoland, that vast expanse west of Cleveland and east of Shangri-La, soon will have an equally celebrated "1,000."

The midwestern honor roll will be comprised of sportsmen who are contributing in units of $100 to Army Emergency relief thru the medium of the ninth annual All-Star football game, scheduled for Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 28.

Donations this morning total $14,000. This pertains only to the special $100,000 campaign for Army Emergency relief. It has nothing to do with the sale of standard priced tickets—$4.40, $3.30, $2.20, and $1.10—which is breaking all records for football's most spectacular attraction. Profits of the normal sale will be divided equally between navy relief and army relief.

Orders from All Over.

Officials in the ticket office of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the game, predict that all seats between the goal lines will be sold by July 4, almost eight weeks in advance. Orders are coming from all over the United States. In yesterday's mailbag was an application for four seats from Joe E. Brown, movie comedian, who forwarded his check from Brentwood Heights, Cal.

Walter D. Monroe, president of the Chicago Steel Service company, was the biggest contributor to the $100,000 Army Emergency relief drive yesterday. His check was for $2,000. Mr. Monroe will receive 20 tickets on the 50 yard line from Chicago Tribune Charities in appreciation of his donation.

Evansville Man Lends a Hand.

Out of town fans are rallying to the cause in increasing numbers. The second largest contribution yesterday was from Ray Ryan, president of the Ryan Oil company of Evansville, Ind. His check was for $400.

Checks for $200 each were received from Albert Mitchell, the Answer Man of radio fame; Edward F. Mulhern, vice president of the Birtman Electric company; Edward J. Quinn, resident partner Murphy, Lanier and Quinn, and A. C. Allyn, president of A. C. Allyn & Co. There were $100 contributions from James W. Kennedy, treasurer of the West Side Ignition Service, and John W. Clarke, president of John W. Clarke, Inc.

Meanwhile, inquiries are coming daily from last year's collegiate gridiron headliners as to their prospects of getting into the game against the Chicago Bears. Many of them now are serving their country in the army, navy, or marines. One letter yesterday was from a famous line man who is a member of a submarine crew.

Walter D. Monroe, Chicago	$2,000
Stuyvesant Peabody, Chicago	2,000

In the WAKE of the NEWS

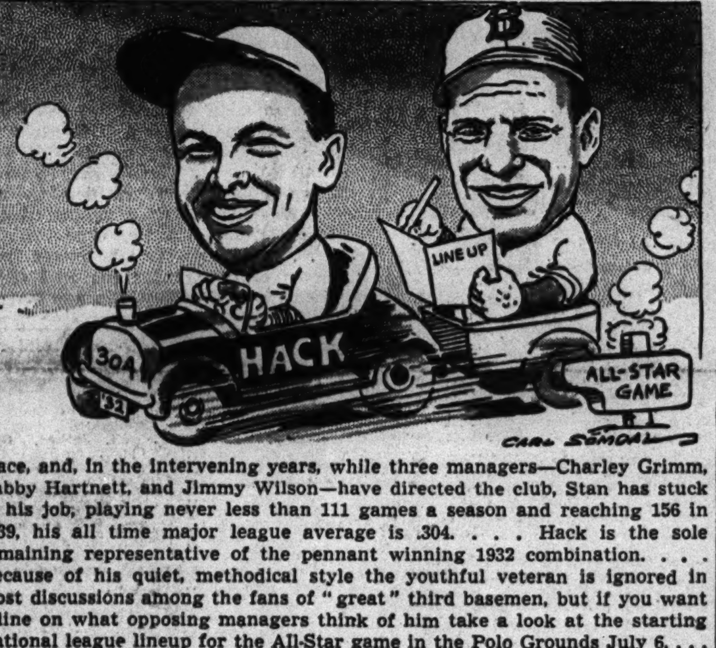
BY ARCH WARD.

WHILE other scriveners are extolling the deeds of the Bonhams, the Dickeys, the Reisers, and the Camillis of the pennant bound Yankees and Dodgers, may we set aside a few lines in praise of the forgotten man of baseball—Stanley Hack of the in and out Cubs? . . . Here is a player whose very consistency every day of every season has robbed him of the notice he would have received were he as spectacular as some of his league rivals. . . . As Al Smith would say, let's look at the record: Hack, a callow rookie, came to the north siders in 1932. . . . Appearing in 72 games, he batted only .236. . . . In 1933 he was sent to Albany, where he batted .299 in 137 contests and, returning to the Cubs at the fag end of the campaign, he slugged at a .350 pace for 20 games. . . . In 1934 he won a regular place, and, in the intervening years, while three managers—Charley Grimm, Gabby Hartnett, and Jimmy Wilson—have directed the club, Stan has stuck to his job, playing never less than 111 games a season and reaching 156 in 1939, his all time major league average is .304. . . . Hack is the sole remaining representative of the pennant winning 1932 combination. . . . Because of his quiet, methodical style the youthful veteran is ignored in most discussions among the fans of "great" third basemen, but if you want a line on what opposing managers think of him take a look at the starting National league lineup for the All-Star game in the Polo Grounds July 6. . . . The chances are 1,000 to 1 that the first name on the list will be Stanley Hack, Chicago, 3b. . . . Leo Durocher, pilot of the senior leaguers, is no dummy. . . .



The famous boardwalk in Atlantic City will be the scene of the national 30 meter walking championship event on July 10. . . . Over a six mile course the leading steppers of the country will heel and toe it for the regulation 18¾ miles the race calls for. . . . Chicago walkers invited to compete include J. Lyman Bingham, Jack B. Nisberg, and Michael Riban Jr. . . . Johnny Sullivan, the young infielder who made his major league debut with the Senators last week, is the idol of the younger lads in Homewood, a suburb of Chicago. . . . He coaches their lightweight basketball team and plays a brilliant game with the senior quintet. . . . He was captain of a team in the Homewood Community Basketball league last winter.

Out of the Depths.

Out of the depths of grief and care
A profound joy is born;
Every sorrow we have to bear
Will vanish some bright morn.

To know the worth of a peaceful life
We must bear the toils of war;
But the cross we carry in all our strife
Just makes us better by far.

And so from the depths of sorrow,
From the heartache and the pain;
A beautiful bright tomorrow
Will come to us all again.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics fiddled around for a lot of scoreless innings yesterday, then concentrated on some scoring. The Sox scored two runs in the sixth inning, one in the seventh and four in the eighth. The A's scored two in the eighth. So that made the Sox win the odd game in the three game series by 7 to 2. The Sox and A's traded places in the American league standings, the Chicagoans again soaring to sixth.

Buck Ross, starting and winning pitcher, didn't toss a hit to the A's in the first four innings and faced the minimum of a dozen batsmen. He weakened in the eighth, when the A's made two runs and were stopped with the tying run on third. Buck retired for a pinch batter in the latter half of the eighth, the pinch batter being Leo Wells, who singled with the bases loaded and drove in two runs to ease the situation materially.

Kolloway Lends a Hand.

Jack Knott held the Sox to four hits in the first five innings, but the Chicagoans broke thru in the sixth after Luke Appling had opened up with a single. Don Kolloway, who made a double and two singles during the game, elected to sacrifice at this juncture, after which Taft Wright walked. Appling and Wright advanced on a wild pitch and Joe Kuhel rolled a single past Dick Siebert, Appling scoring and Wright stopping at third. Kennedy, who also had a couple of singles, chose this spot to knock a double, Wright scoring.

Knott was pretty much to blame for the winning run scored by the Sox in the seventh. He passed Wally Moses and Appling, and Kolloway singled to score Moses.

Athletics Fight Back.

The As gave the Sox a scare in the eighth. Dick Siebert dumped a double in short left, the third Philadelphia hit, to get the eighth under way. Buddy Blair grounded to Kolloway, and Hal Wagner, batting for Jack Eschen, fouled to Tresh, but Bob Swift walked, and Mike Kreevich, batting for Knott, singled to right, scoring Siebert. Elmer Valo also singled, putting Kreevich on third with the tying run. Then Bill Knickerbocker flied to Hoag.

Alvis Shirley and Herman Besse both had their troubles in the Chicago eighth, in which the Sox made four runs. Hitting in this inning consisted of singles by Kennedy, Wells, and Kolloway.

WALKER HURT, TWO BANISHED IN FREE FOR ALL

Brooklyn Increases Lead to 5½ Games.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 18.—The so-called daffy Dodgers tonight let loose their first response to the rapidly growing pennant threat of the St. Louis Cardinals. Rushing from behind in the late innings, the pacemaking champions rendered the Gas House Gang helpless, 5 to 2, in a battle enlivened by a genuine free-for-all that sent two principals away under orders from the umpires and another with an injury. The triumph drove the Cardinals back to a point five and one-half games from the top.

The Cards' challenge was hurled directly at old Larry French, and the Cub alumnus answered without a quiver. The second placers had him on the defensive for a time, once by 2 to 0, but the titleholders lifted him into a tie in the sixth—the same inning in which the free-for-all sideshow broke out. Then they gave Larry the winning run in the eighth, but just for good measure he, himself, blasted a two bagger that sent two more of his pals over the pan in a din of 21,229 Brooklyn voices.

Marion Fights Back.

The rollicking incident that had the premises in a turmoil for a few minutes in the sixth came when Joe Medwick, having been given a pass by Max Lanier, tried to sneak down to second on a short passed ball. Walker Cooper threw him out, but Ducky went in with one foot high, apparently aiming to kick the ball from the grasp of Martin Marion, the Cards' shortstop. By way of retaliating, Marion took a gentle poke at Medwick while he was on the ground.

Medwick jumped up, but before he could charge Marion he discovered a more aggressive foe in Frankie Crespi. The pair went to the ground with fists aflying and help soon arrived from all directions. Some of the athletes merely wanted to enjoy a ringside view. Others dived into the pile of scrambled white and gray uniforms. Who hit whom, nobody knows, but the only casualty was Dixie Walker, one of those who had dived into the squirming mass. Walker was forced to retire, and the umpires took care of Crespi and Medwick.

A Walk Starts Trouble.

John Beazley, who helped Lanier out of the tying sixth, walked Dolph Camilli with one out in the eighth, and the champions promptly put on the pressure. Johnny Rizzo, who took Medwick's place, shot a single into center, sending Camilli to third. Billy Herman, whose hit had aided in the tying run, laid down a squeeze bunt which he beat out, Camilli scoring. Owen forced Rizzo at third, and then French, who had stopped the challengers on three hits in the last six innings, whistled his double over the head of Enos Slaughter to complete the route and also simplify his fifth victory against no defeats.

Lanier took it upon himself to make arrangements for the Cards' 2 to 0 lead in the third. He led off with a single and was bunted to second by Crespi. Terry Moore singled to right, but Lanier was satisfied to halt at third. Slaughter pushed a single past Camilli to send Lanier across the plate. Moore tore for third and, when Walker's throw skipped past Arky Vaughan, decided it was an invitation to continue moving. Vaughan recovered the ball and rifled it to Mickey Owen to kill off Moore at the plate.

Dodgers Get One.

The Dodgers used three hits in the third inning venture that produced their first run. Owen led off with a single, but was forced by French. Reese singled to left and Vaughan pasted a single into center, French scoring.

After the sixth inning jamboree had been settled Camilli walked and Rizzo fouled to Johnny Hopp. Herman got into the drive for the tying run by singling to center, Camilli taking third. Owen singled to right, Camilli scoring and Herman hiking to third. Beazley came to Lanier's aid and halted the uprising on French's pop to Hopp. Score:

MIKE TURNESA, CRISMAN TIE IN HALE AMERICA

Shoot 65s, 7 Under Par, in First Round.

Among the lads who failed to take any scoring divots in the common hysteria of the day were five 72 shooters—Craig Wood, winner of last year's National Open; Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., leading money winner among the pros the last three years; Henry Picard of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., 1941 trans-Mississippi winner.

Bobby Jones Shoots 70.

Of major interest, of course, was the work of a gent who played with Wood and Dudley in the penultimate threesome of the day. That would be Capt. Robert T. Jones Jr. of the army aviation corps, making his first Chicago appearance in 14 years and his first in medal play competition since his 1930 grand slam. The captain reported a 70, two under, but was more interested in enjoying himself than stressing the fact that he played none too well and wound up with a brace of 35s.

Crisman leases and operates the Riverside Golf club in Selma. Twenty-eight years old, he has been a pro for six years, but aside from qualifying for the last three National Opens, he never has scored any outstanding victories. Otey whose name derives from a family name dating back to Scotland, drove up from Selma in a vehicle equipped with four recapped tires, and the front pair are cracked, but he aims to linger and go for a few more 65s before he worries about them.

Mike Turnesa, one of New York's illustrious fairway family, always has been regarded as one of the best swingers in the game altho he, like Crisman, never has clicked in a big one. The 33 year old Mike, fourth in the tribe that includes six professionals and Amateur Willie, is professional at the Elmsford Country club.

Par—Out	455	344	434—36
Crisman—Out	445	334	434—34
Par—In	434	455	433—36—72
Crisman—In	423	344	443—31—65

THE LOCKER ROOM

JAMES WILFRED STEVENSON THOMSON, that broth of a lad who has been known to whack a golf ball a furlong or two, yesterday gave a demonstration not only of his driving prowess, but also took the accuracy contest that featured the extra-tournament activities in the Hale America open at Ridgemoor. . . . Jimmy settled for a 73, eight shots off the pace, in the main ball game, then went over and batted three balls for a total of 873 yards and an average of 291. . . . His tee trio sailed 304, 282, and 287 yards, respectively. . . . Lawson Little, never accused of bunting with a driver, was second with an average of 276, and young Frank Stranahan, the sometime weight lifter, led the amateurs with 263. . . . The accuracy competition was conducted on the basis of the closest ball of three from a distance of 145 yards. . . . Thomson planted one of his four inches from the hole. . . . George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, was second, sending his iron 4 feet 5 inches past the flag. . . . Jimmy collected two $50 war bonds for his work. . . . At 5 o'clock this afternoon Horton Smith will be master of ceremonies for a shotmaking exhibition in which Capt. Bob Jones will take part. . . . Sam Byrd, the former New York Yankee outfielder, played with borrowed clubs. . . . Sam's own irons were ruled out by the committee because their markings did not coincide with USGA specifications after they were examined by a special micrometer-microscope. . . . He shot a par 72 with the borrowed tools.

Field Treats Gallery to Some Fine Sharpshooting.

The big gallery was treated to some remarkable sharpshooting by the field. . . . There was the case of Byron Nelson . . . In a trap at the 11th he blasted out and the ball fell dead two inches from the pin. . . . Jim Ferrier, the former Australian, now pro at Elmhurst, missed the green at the short 18th and his ball rolled behind some bushes near the clubhouse. . . . His recovery came within inches of the cup, and he got his par 3 to wind up with a 69. . . . When the boys began to give old man par a real shellacking, some wag remarked that he just heard that a competitor who rounded the first nine with a par 36 had picked up and withdrawn in disgust.

Chick Evans, another of golf's immortals, took time off from his chores in connection with next week's National Collegiate meet at South Bend to make his appearance in the Hale America. . . . The former National Open and Amateur champion is a firm believer in golf as a money raising medium for service organizations. . . . In World War I he raised thousands of dollars for the Red Cross with his golf exhibitions, and was instrumental in having the proceeds of the National Collegiates turned over to the same agency.

Ben Hogan, as Usual, Settled for Par Score.

Harry Cooper, the former Chicagoan, now of St. Paul, missed a three footer at the ninth, but came right back to sink his approach shot at the tenth for a birdie three. . . . It was one of the better shots of a day of spectacular shooting. . . . When Corp. Vic Ghezzi was unable to obtain leave from his army post, his place in the threesome of Ben Hogan and Tommy Armour was taken over by one of the real veterans of the tournament, Jock Hutchison, who was winning championships with regularity 20 years ago. . . . The amiable Scot was enjoying himself no end as his threesome attracted the biggest gallery of the day. . . . He responded with a fine gesture at the ninth where he put his approach six feet from the pin.

Bobby Jones produced one of the biggest collective gasps from the gallery at the 18th green when his 10 foot putt went into the cup, bounced out and then dropped again to give the Atlanta barrister a respectable 70. . . . Jones played in a threesome consisting of Craig Wood, the 1941 National Open champion, and Ed Dudley, the P. G. A. champion. . . . This trio attracted one of the biggest galleries of the day, and they did not disappoint their followers. . . . Dudley posted a 70 and Wood a 72. . . . The latter's score, while not the lowest of the day, was certainly one of the most consistent. . . . The veteran's card revealed 18 consecutive pars. . . . Ed Furgol, Birmingham, Mich., amateur, saved himself several strokes when he removed his shoes and socks and waded into the water at the 18th green to blast his ball onto terra firma.

WISHING, 30 TO 1, WINS FEATURE AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Forever Prince Trails by Head at 18-1.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

A pair of long shots—Wishing and Forever Prince—joined forces to overthrow the odds-on favorite, Polymelior, in a seven furlong allowance event which topped yesterday's program at Lincoln Fields.

Wishing, quoted at 30 to 1, and Forever Prince, an 18 to 1 investment, engaged in a neck and neck duel thru the stretch while Polymelior, moving up from away back, got as far as third place and then hung. Wishing went over the finish line leading Forever Prince by a head. Two lengths farther back came the weary favorite.

Worth Waiting For!

This was the first time that Wishing had been in the money in four starts this season. He made it worth while on this occasion, paying off at $62, $47, and $9.60. The place and show prices on Forever Prince also were substantial—$15.40 and $5.80.

The wise money went on a second time starter, Amble Tint, in the opening event. This juvenile colt had run fourth, beaten by only a length, in the one previous effort of his career earlier in the Lincoln Fields meeting. He also had some impressive workouts to his credit. Despite the fact that he was running against rivals of considerable experience, Amble Tint was backed down until he was the favorite at 8 to 5.

A Difficult Story.

Jockey Robert McRoberts put him over nicely. Rushing into the lead immediately after the break, Amble Tint held a narrow margin over Gabe and Wise Paisano in the early stages. Then he pulled away to a two length advantage in the stretch. He had to be roused again and ridden out in the last few yards when Queen's Risk closed well. The winner's margin was a length and a quarter. Wise Paisano was third.

There was another plunge on an inexperienced juvenile in the second race, but this time it didn't work out so well. The object of this betting drive was Burgoo Maid, a filly which never before had gone to the post. She was made the 9 to 5 favorite.

Burgoo Maid ran a good race, but the best she could do was take third place behind Hy Trite and Lissa. Lookout Rascal, winner of the third race, joined up with Hy Trite for a daily double worth $105.80.

TIGERS EDGE OUT YANKS AGAIN, 3-1, AND TAKE SERIES

Trucks Holds New York to Four Hits.

Detroit, Mich., June 18 (AP).—Virgil Trucks stopped the New York Yankees on four hits today as the Tigers won the series final, 3 to 1. Detroit took three of the four games from the league leaders.

Pinky Higgins hit the first of his two doubles off Spud Chandler to open the second inning. After two were out, Trucks was safe on Frank Crosetti's low throw. Higgins went to third on the error and scored on Billy Hitchcock's single.

The victory was Trucks' fifth against two defeats and Detroit's 6th in 10 games with the Yanks.

Hack Returns to Cubs for Giant Series

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 18.—When the Cubs return to work tomorrow—and it will be work because the program calls for a double header with the Giants—Stan Hack, who was detained in Chicago by a sore rib, will take his regular job at third base.

Manager Jim Wilson received word from headquarters today that the veteran had been patched up well enough to play and a new lineup was prepared immediately.

Stringer Back to Bench.

In the shuffle Lou Stringer landed back on the bench, and Rip Russell, who had been filling in at third for Hack, was moved over to second. Russell will continue to hold the cleanup spot in the batting order, followed by Bill Nicholson, Jim Foxx, Lou Novikoff, and Clyde McCullough. Hack will lead off, which is his usual rôle, with Len Merullo and Phil Cavarretta in between him and Russell.

Vern Olsen will southpaw to the Giants in the first game and in the second Les Fleming will make his first appearance since his recent one hit job against the Braves.

It's Passeau Tomorrow.

Wilson will be in fair-to-middling shape for Saturday's single match with the Giants. He will slip them Claude Passeau, who in Monday's twilight game in Brooklyn, registered his 10th 1942 decision by pouring whitewash on the champions. Bill Lee will be sufficiently rested for one of two games here Sunday, but the other battle provides a problem. The Cub boss will have to take a chance on Johnny Schmitz, Hiram Bithorn, or Jake Mooty.

70 Yachts in Michigan City Run Tomorrow

A fleet of at least 70 sailing yachts have been entered in the Columbia Yacht club's 51st annual race from Chicago to Michigan City, Ind., tomorrow, Rudy Oesting, race chairman, announced last night.

No time limit will be set on the 35 statute mile race, Oesting said. A combination of no wind and a time limit on the 50th anniversary race a year ago resulted in a no race decision for the record fleet of 115 yachts. Better weather is expected this year.

Four States Represented.

Among the entries are yachts from all four states, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan, bounding Lake Michigan. In addition to boats from all sailing clubs in Chicago, the Michigan City, Macatawa Bay, Racine, and Milwaukee yacht clubs will be represented.

The 98 foot motor sailer Four Winds, owned by L. D. Schreibner of the Columbia Yacht club, will carry a representative of the race committee across the lake to observe the fleet in competition.

Southern Cross, Robert P. Benedict Jr.'s 55 foot yawl, will defend the Commodore Nathaniel Rubinkam trophy for cruising division time prize honors. The trophy is a bronze cannon dating from 1896 when it was awarded the cutter Vanenna for winning the Michigan City race that year. Southern Cross will be one of the Jackson Park Yacht club craft in tomorrow's event.

Schnabel Defends Prize.

Ed Schnabel, crack R class skipper of the Chicago Yacht club, will defend the Universal [racing] division time prize, and Ariel trophy, awarded by Vice Comm. Malcolm D. Vail. Skipper Schnabel will sail his sloop Yankee, with which he won the Ariel trophy in 1939 as well as 1941.

Johnny Noonan's "Pepper."

It followed him to school—
Was the weather very hot
Or was the weather cool?

Five long years has "Pepper" come
To sit outside the door,
Awaiting the dismissal bell,
For the children forth to pour.

Johnny soon will graduate,
With honors, be it known,
He'll get a fine diploma—
Shouldn't "Pepper" get a bone?

If faithfulness in humans
Merits rich fruition,
Shouldn't loyalty in animals,
Too, gain recognition?

When they're passing 'round the ribbons
As graduation nears,
I move they tie a ribbon gay
Behind old "Pepper's" ears!

FLORIDA FIGHTS PROPOSED TAX ON RACE WAGERS

Tallahassee, Fla., June 18 (AP).—Gov. Spessard L. Holland said today that Florida would oppose the house ways and means committee's proposal for a 5 per cent tax on parimutuel wagering.

Florida now levies a 3 per cent tax on parimutuel betting at dog race tracks and a tax of 8 per cent on such wagering at horse tracks. The levy produces about $4,000,000 a year.

WITZLEB LEADS KREJCI, 1 UP, IN WESTERN JUNIOR

Final 18 Holes for Title to Be Played Today.

Billy Witzleb of Dixon built up a 1 up advantage over Jack Krejci of La Grange at the halfway mark in the 36 hole final of the Western Junior golf meet at Ridgemoor yesterday. The boys will tee off at 9 o'clock today in the final 18 holes.

Witzleb, who won the Illinois college conference title as a member of the Bradley Tech team this spring, gained the edge in yesterday's match by winning the last hole when his opponent's tee shot landed in the water and he took a 5 on the par 3 hole.

Match a See-Saw Affair.

Up until that time the match was a seesaw affair with neither boy ever holding more than a two hole margin. Krejci pulled into a 1 up lead at the turn which he reached in 38 while Witzleb took a 39.

The first three holes were halved and at the fourth Witzleb moved into the lead when his opponent was in the rough with his drive and failed to reach the green with his second shot. Krejci surrendered another hole at the fifth which he 3 putted for a 5.

Krejci Rallies to Take Lead

By winning three of the next four holes, Krejci moved in front for the first time. He topped his rally with a birdie 3 at the ninth where he knocked in a 15 foot putt. The match was evened at the 11th where Krejci's second shot landed in a trap and he settled for a bogie 5.

After Krejci won the 14th with a birdie 4, Witzleb made his bid by winning three of the last four holes to take a 1 up advantage at the 18th. Witzeb had a 79 and Krejci settled for an 80 for the 18 holes.

SKOKIE LAGOONS ARE IDEAL SPOT FOR SAIL BOATING

They're One of Country's Man-Made Preserves.

BY BOB BECKER.

For the outdoor fan who considers an expanse of water necessary to his outing, the Skokie lagoons development in the Cook county forest preserve system is an ideal playground. This recreational area of almost 1,300 acres between the Skokie highway and the west boundaries of Glencoe, Hubbard Woods, and Winnetka is unlike any other forest preserve that we have seen around Chicago, because right now, even in its unfinished state, it appeals primarily to fishermen and owners of small sailboats who want a body of water smaller than Lake Michigan on which to launch their little craft.

This playground, aptly named because it is right in the heart of part of the old Skokie marsh, is a man-made recreational area. In practically all of the other preserves in Cook county nature has been the architect in the creation of tall stands of beautiful timber, acres of wild flowers, winding streams and other natural assets which are so attractive to city dwellers. Development and maintenance of these wooded areas has called for comparatively few changes in the topography. But in the Skokie preserve, a big and almost treeless marsh has been converted into a network of open lagoons

Sailboat Owners Like It.

The forest preserve district bought the land and turned it over to the national park service for development. After many months of excavation and other work to completely change the character of the marsh, a new playground has come into existence. While it is true that the preserve looks barren compared to the heavily timbered play areas in other parts of the county, it's just what the sailboat owners like, for here is safe water and a chance to tack back and forth in their small craft.

More than 48,000 crappies, bluegills, and bass, all of fingerling size, have been stocked in the lagoons during the last seven years. In addition 200 large breeder bass were put into the Skokie waters in 1940, and groups of sportsmen from the north shore have obtained additional fish plantings from the state department of conservation.

Fishermen Are Hopeful.

When we walked around some of the largest water areas in the preserve we found many bank fishermen watching their bobbers and baited hooks. We didn't find anybody with a real string of fish but all of the patient anglers [especially the boys] still had hopes of catching at least a few crappies.

One 15 year old boy from Glenview said he had landed a crappie on a fly but it had slipped back into the water when he tried to put it on a stringer. There were a number of family parties fishing from the banks. In front of them small, gaily painted boats were skimming over the water. Other sailing enthusiasts were just arriving with their boats fastened on top of their cars or on trailers behind the family bus. Tuthill Ketcham of Winnetka and his two sons, Jack and Edward, were unloading their homemade sailboat from a trailer as we headed south thru the preserve toward Willow road, one of the east and west roads which cuts thru the preserve. We were not surprised to see few picnic parties because this is not a wooded, shady, playground—the kind that is inviting to picnickers.

Big Boathouse Planned.

Robert Mann, superintendent of maintenance of the Cook county forest preserves, stresses the fact that the Skokie project is not completed. For example, Mann says that plans for a big boathouse where canoes and dinghies could be stored have been prepared, but actual construction of this much needed building has not begun. But even in its unfinished state the Skokie preserve is being used by many sailboat enthusiasts and other outdoor fans.

MIGDOW LEADS CRANE TO PREP TENNIS TITLE

Benny Migdow concluded his high school career by leading the Crane Tech tennis team to the Public School league championship yesterday. The west section champion turned back Senn, north division title holder, 3 matches to 2 on the courts of the Chicago Town and Tennis club.

In winning his two singles matches, Migdow, who also holds the state singles crown, lost only three games in four sets. He triumphed by a 6-2, 6-1 count over Jerry Evert, star of the north side squad, and then came back to win 12 straight games from Hubert Rance, the scores being 6-0, 6-0.

17 Champions Will Compete in NAAU Track

New York, June 18 (AP).—Track and field athletes are a dime a dozen around the big town today—and the reason is the national A. A. U. meet will be held in Randalls Island stadium tomorrow and Saturday with the army emergency relief the only sure winner.

Sponsors of the meet, held in New York for the first time since 1908, figure the army fund will receive approximately $75,000, most of which has been obtained thru advertising revenue and donations in the 140 page program.

The 21 event junior meet, eligible to athletes who never have won a national AAU, IC4A, or NCAA title, and the 10,000 meter run and 3,000 meter walk for seniors will get the two day program under way tomorrow—clearing the way for the real assault on the record book for Saturday.

Seventeen Champions Return.

Seventeen of the 21 senior winners at Philadelphia a year ago are entered in defense of their titles along with every national collegiate champion and a host of title holders from the major college conferences. San Francisco's Olympic club, team winner the last three years, is sending a 16 man squad across the country to defend its honors. But the New York A. C., having no transportation problem, has entered 49 men in an effort to regain the crown it held from 1932 to 1936 and again in 1938.

Look at the list of entries and you'll see why sponsors are billing the meet as the greatest collection of athletes since the Olympic trials were held on the same track in 1936. Seeking titles will be Cornelius Warmerdam, Al Blozis, Harold Davis, Leslie MacMitchell, Gil Dodds, Bobby Ginn, Cliff Bourland, Greg Rice, Bob Fitch, Adam Berry, Richmond Morcom, John Borican, Campbell Kane, Bill Lyda, Charlie Beetham, Archie Harris, Phil Fox—all names that bespeak the best in the sport.

Mitchell-Ginn Encore.

Dwight Eddleman, basketball and track star from Centralia [Ill.] High school, also will compete in the high jump. Eddleman, who has been entered by his home town's chamber of commerce, leaped 6 feet 6 inches Tuesday in an exhibition at the Pacific Coast-Big Ten track meet in Chicago.

Altho every event is star studded, the 1,500 meters, with MacMitchell defending, tops the program. The New York university graduate, shorn of his NCAA crown by Nebraska's Ginn last week, again will meet the midwesterner along with Gil Dodds, Boston's indoor champion; Leroy Weed of Southern California, and Dartmouth's Don Burnham, who recently beat MacMitchell in the metropolitan championships.

Other defending champions are:

Davis, Olympic club, 200 meters; Beetham, Columbus, O., 800 meters; Rice, New York A. C., 5,000 meters; Lou Gregory, Millrose, A. A., 10,000 meters; Joe Medgyeski, New York A. C., 3,000 meter walk; Arky Erwin, Louisiana State, 400 meter hurdles; Forest Efaw, Stillwater, Okla., 3,000 meter steeplechase; Warmerdam, Olympic club, pole vault; Harris, North Carolina A. and T. college, discus; Blozis, New York A. C., shotput; Irving Folwartshny, New York A. C., hammer throw; Boyd Brown, Olympic club, javelin, and Frank Berst, New York A. C., 56 pound weight throw.

EWELL OUT OF MEET

State College, Pa., June 18 (AP).—Penn State's Barney Ewell will not defend his 100 meter dash crown in the National AAU track meet in New York tomorrow and Saturday. Ewell tore a tendon in his leg while qualifying for the broad jump in the NCAA meet at Lincoln, Neb., last week-end.

PRICES OF HOGS CLIMB DESPITE LARGE SUPPLIES

Only 20 to 30 Cents Under 1942 Peak.

Despite the record breaking June volume of hogs handled thruout the country this week, hog prices at the Chicago stockyards yesterday rose to the highest level in 16 days and were only 20 to 30 cents under the 1942 peak established the middle of April.

Buyers paid an average of $14.30 a hundred pounds, 10 cents more than on Wednesday, and paid up to $14.45 for the top loads, which also were 10 cents over Wednesday. Both prices were the highest since June 2 and higher than any corresponding June session since 1926.

Farmers marketed 64,000 hogs at the 11 major points, compared with 70,000 a week earlier and 47,000 the same day last year. In the first four days of this week these markets received 303,000 head, an increase of 79,000 or 35 per cent over the same four days in 1941.

Packers made additional savings in their buying of lambs. Prices were mostly 25 cents lower, bringing the majority of purchases down to $15.25 and below. A few top natives reached $15.75, but the average for the day dropped to $14.75. Yearling wethers slumped 25 cents.

One of the smallest Thursday supplies of cattle in several months resulted in a steady to strong trade for most steers and yearlings, with some sales 10 to 15 cents higher. Steady prices were paid for beef cows, canners, cutters, calves and most bulls.

STATE PREPARED FOR CASHING OF FIDELITY FUNDS

Awaits Final Court Action Over Pledged Assets.

Machinery for the liquidation of more than 3¾ million dollars in collateral held for Illinois investors in savings contracts issued by the Fidelity Assurance association of Wheeling, W. Va., already has been set up and the distribution of cash to these investors can be made quickly at such time as the United States Supreme court may uphold the decision made Tuesday in the Fidelity case by the Court of Appeals for the 4th circuit in Asheville, N. C.

This was stated yesterday by an official of the Illinois securities department, who said that an appeal to the Supreme court is considered certain.

State's Authority Upheld.

The appeals court, reversing a district court ruling giving Fidelity the right to reorganize under federal bankruptcy laws, ordered, in effect, that $20,056,680 in securities deposited with 15 states is to be used to pay off incurred liabilities of $23,475,688. The amount of cash and securities held on deposit by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes for Illinois contract holders is placed at $3,759,894 against liabilities of $4,225,790.

The bulk of Fidelity savings contracts in Illinois were sold after July, 1931, when the state required the association to deposit collateral equal to the contracts sold. As a result these contracts are covered 100 per cent by deposits now held by the secretary of state.

In 1939 Illinois required Fidelity to cover contracts sold prior to 1931 if it was to continue sales in the state. Deposits were made covering about one third of the amount of these contracts before the association's right to sell new contracts in Illinois was canceled early in 1940 after it failed to comply with requests for additional deposits to secure liabilities.

Old Contracts Partly Secured.

According to the securities department, at the end of February, 1941, liabilities on contracts sold since 1931 totaled $3,289,731, while liabilities on those sold prior to 1931 amounted to $935,905. On April 15, 1941, deposits against these totals amounted to $3,362,228 and $393,916, respectively.

The number of contract holders was not available. It was said, however, that the number of those holding contracts purchased prior to 1931 was considerably smaller than those buying later because many of the earlier contracts had reached or were about to reach maturity and, consequently, were larger in amount.

Lend-Lease Buys Sugar, Butter, Tomatoes and Yeast

The Agricultural Marketing administration yesterday announced lend-lease purchases of 5,160,801 pounds of sugar, 400,000 pounds of butter, 60,000 cases of tomatoes, and 22,416 pounds of dry yeast.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Birds Brave Noise.

June 18, 1942.

THREE interesting bird episodes were recorded during the hay harvest which has been occupying the attention of the farm workers for the past week. One concerned the killdeer which is incubating four eggs in a nest just 50 feet from the clank and rattle of the ensilage machinery. Another involved a bold catbird which was looking for insects near the cutter. A flock of chimney swifts which made the area over the freshly cut alfalfa their feeding headquarters was the third bird species which drew the attention of workers.

We were wondering how the killdeer would react to all the noise and confusion around her nest while the silo was being filled, for the nest is on the gravel driveway quite close to the silo.

Stones Protect Nest.

In addition to the constant racket of the big diesel caterpillar [which is furnishing the power for the ensilage cutter] and the chomping of the noisy cutter, the nervous killdeer has to put up with huge trucks and horse drawn hay racks passing beside her headquarters from morning till late evening. Her nest is surrounded with large stones which the men placed there to protect it.

After watching this bird for a while we learned that she stayed on her nest during the ordinary racket of the ensilage cutting, but she left her eggs when the trucks and racks went by. As soon as they had passed her precious nest and eggs she returned to them.

Catbirds ordinarily are rather shy, but the female member of this species which swoops down to pick up insects from beneath the ensilage cutter evidently has a personality of her own. It's quite possible that she has some young to feed, too, so she needs to find more food each day. The men report that this bold bird stays away while the big "hay chewer" is in operation, but as soon as it is turned off between loads she flies down, feeds for a few minutes, then flies away.

Field Day for Swifts.

As far as we know there is no colony of chimney swifts based on the farm, so the 10 or 15 birds which were winging over the alfalfa field the other morning must have come in from some neighboring area. When the big mower and rake goes into operation to cut and harvest the alfalfa it naturally sends insects of many kinds into the air.

When these winged insects fly in general confusion over the newly cut field they provide a field day for the swifts, which take all their food on the wing. We wouldn't be surprised if the swifts in a given area made the rounds of the farm fields to follow the mowers.

TRUMAN REPORT HITS NELSON FOR FAILURE OF AIDS

Hints Dollar a Year Men Should Go.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sen. H. S. Truman.

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The special senate committee investigating the war production program, headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], charged in a report submitted to the senate today that the War Production board under Donald M. Nelson's administration has not measured up fully to its responsibility.

While expressing satisfaction with the WPB program of curtailing less essential civilian production, the committee charged that the board has failed to follow up its curtailment orders with an adequate conversion of the facilities and materials thus made available to war production.

Nine of the ten committee members—six Democrats and three Republicans—signed the report. Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.] dissented, he told the senate, largely because "Mr. Nelson regards the report as reflecting on his policy."

Lucas Chides Critics.

Sen. Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.], who is not a member of the committee, rose in defense of Nelson, expressing doubt that any other man could have done the job as well.

"The senator from Illinois does not have to defend Donald Nelson to the senate or to the committee," Sen. Truman responded sharply. "What the committee has been endeavoring to do is to protect Donald Nelson from some of the people who may cause him a great deal of embarrassment a little later in the year if he does not take the matter in hand and clean up the situation right now!"

Truman's remark was construed as a warning that unless changes are made promptly Nelson will go the way of his predecessors—the Knudsen-Hillman combination in the old Office of Production Management.

Blow at $1 a Year Men.

The Truman committee's investigation and today's report grew out of the resignation of Robert R. Guthrie, a former WPB official, in March. Guthrie charged that dollar-a-year men in the WPB, particularly in the bureau of industry branches, had served their private interests in resisting maximum conversion from civilian to war production.

Altho Nelson asked the Truman committee to investigate Guthrie's charges, he tried to persuade the committee to suppress the report when he learned that it substantially supported the charges.

A report by a house military affairs subcommittee, exonerating Nelson's dollar-a-year men, was rushed out in anticipation of the Truman committee's report.

Sen. Ralph O. Brewster [R., Me.], a member of the Truman committee, asked Sen. Lucas in today's debate whether it was not "a rather interesting coincidence" that the house committee's report "should have appeared while publication of the Truman committee report was being delayed at the request of those downtown."

Lucas conceded that "something more than a mere coincidence" may have been involved.

Files Two Reports.

The Truman committee filed two reports, one setting forth its findings respecting the Guthrie charges and the other dealing with the WPB's present policies and performances.

In conclusion the first report said:

"After an examination of the subject of conversion and the findings in connection with the charges of Robert R. Guthrie, the committee is of the opinion that Philip D. Reed, chief of the bureau of industry branches, did not take the necessary action to obtain the maximum conversion of private industry to war.

"The committee has not been impressed with Mr. Reed's ability or accomplishments, either in the field of conversion or in the field of copper, lead, and zinc, where the committee, in its report of Jan. 15, 1942, had occasion to criticize his failure, when he was deputy director of the materials division of the Office of Production Management, to recognize that a shortage of these metals was imminent or to take proper action with respect thereto."

Present Program Approved.

The second report said in part:

"If the curtailment of less essential civilian production could in itself guarantee the conversion of productive facilities to the service of the war effort, there might be little point in investigating past history in the War Production board. For there is unanimous agreement that a satisfactory curtailment program at last is under way.

"Curtailment, however, is but half of the conversion process. Limitation and curtailment orders release facilities for war production, but they do not insure the efficient use of those facilities in the war effort.

"It was the failure of the Office of Production Management to take adequate steps in this direction which, in large measure, led to the creation of the War Production board, which was charged specifically by the President with guidance and direction of the entire procurement machinery. The War Production board has not fully measured up to this responsibility."

CIO Plane Workers Win Wage Boost and Union Maintenace

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The War Labor board today ordered a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour for employés of the Ryan Aeronautical company, San Diego, Cal., and ordered a maintenance of union membership clause written into the contract with the CIO United Auto Workers.

On the latter issue, the industry members of the board split, two approving and two dissenting. The clause, agreed to by Roger D. Lapham and Richard P. Deupree of the industry group, provides that all employés who, 15 days from today, are members of the union in good standing or who thereafter become members, shall, as a condition of employment, remain members in good standing for the life of the contract.

Vote Unanimous in Wages.

The board voted 10 to 2. The vote was unanimous on the wage raises.

Lapham's concurring opinion said: "In previous union maintenance decisions, the employer members of this board in their dissenting decisions emphasized that the directive orders of the board did not allow the individual affected to exercise in some form the right of withdrawal or resignation within a reasonable time. . . . While in the present case, as well as in many others, the necessity of a union maintenance clause is not apparent, I have voted with the public and labor members because the yhave met a main objection to any union maintenance of membership clause."

In previous orders, the maintenance of membership clause became effective on the date of the signing of the contract, and in one case the effective date was made retroactive.

The blanket increase raising the rates 10 cents over the rates set in the contract of Jan. 22, 1941, is retroactive to Oct. 15, 1941.

Change in Hiring Rate.

The board ordered a basic hiring rate of 60 cents an hour, retroactive to July, 1941, to be increased 5 cents an hour each four weeks until it reaches 75 cents. Time and one-half will be paid for work over eight hours a day, or 40 hours a week, and double time will be paid for the seventh consecutive day of work, but Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays will be regarded as any other day of the week. Wages will be subject to review each six months.

The ruling affects about 1,440 employés. The CIO United Auto Workers is the bargaining agent for all production and maintenance employés, except the welders.

Aircraft Wage Parleys

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—The first of a series of wage conferences for the aircraft industry, intended to stabilize pay rates "at a level designed to check inflationary tendencies" will be held July 6 in Los Angeles, WPB announced today. Union and management spokesmen of nine major manufacturers will participate. The conference will be followed by similar conferences in other regions, and a series of zone stabilization agreements, like those reached in the shipbuilding industry, is expected to result.

Meat Animals Sold at Rate of 264 a Minute

Every 60 seconds during 1942 the American farmer must market an average of 43 cattle and calves, 158 hogs, and 63 sheep and lambs to meet current wartime requirements for meat supplies, R. C. Pollock asserted yesterday.

Pollock, who is general manager of the National Live Stock and Meat board, spoke at the annual meeting of the board in the Blackstone hotel. Leaders of the nation's live stock and meat industry from coast to coast, representing growers, feeders, marketing agencies, processors, and retail meat dealers, are attending the two-day session.

Record Number on Farms.

"The live stock and meat industry never has been in a more favorable position to meet wartime demands than it is today," Pollock declared. "Our meat animal population is the largest on record.

"Figures relative to cattle, hogs, and sheep numbers show a total of 191,112,000 head on farms and ranches—a gain of more than 11 million head over a year ago.

"For every 100 persons in the United States there are now 56 head of cattle, 46 hogs, and 42 sheep and lambs, or a total of 144 meat animals," he said.

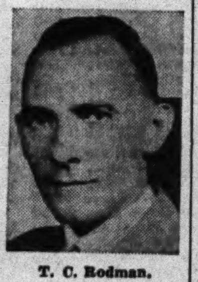
Pollock said that approximately 30 cents of the nation's farm dollar last year came from the sale of meat animals, the total being $3,260,861,000. In 11 states the income from meat animals accounted for more than 40 cents of every farm dollar and in five states for more than half of the total farm income.

Per Capita Use Growing.

Use of meat at America's tables is on the increase, Albert K. Mitchell, Bell ranch, N. M., chairman of the board, said at the meeting. Mitchell said Americans ate an average of 148 pounds of meat per person in 1941 and that the average per capita consumption of meat during the last five years was 6.2 pounds more than for the preceding five years.

Miss Inez S. Willson, home economics director for the board, said the added responsibilities of the war effort make it necessary for the housewife to become better acquainted with meat cuts. She said too many limit meat purchases to about six popular cuts, leaving many less-used cuts which lend themselves to a variety of appetizing dishes and help stretch the meat dollar.

People and Events



T. C. Rodman.

T. Clifford Rodman, Chicago resident partner of Shields & Co., will report to the naval war college at Newport, R. I., June 29 for training. He is going into naval aviation as a lieutenant commander. Rodman was a naval aviator in the World war. He has been a director of the Chicago Board of Trade, for several years was chairman of the business conduct committee, and has been a governor of the Chicago Stock exchange.

The membership application of Walter R. Brailsford, partner in Brailsford, Rodger & Co., in the Chicago Stock exchange was approved yesterday by the executive committee. The company name was changed recently to Brailsford & Co.

Lifetime passes good for travel on any lines of the Illinois Central railroad will be presented at a luncheon in the Stevens hotel today to 32 veterans of 50 years' active service with the road.

Directors of Dolese & Shepard company have elected William J. Lynch, president. Lynch is president of W. J. Lynch company, general contractors, and a director of Republic Realty Mortgage corporation.

WELDING METHOD FOR MAGNESIUM REPORTED FOUND

Los Angeles, Cal., June 18 (AP).—Northrop Aircraft reported tonight the development of a method of welding magnesium, thus making available for aircraft manufacture one of the most abundant metals known.

While magnesium has been used widely in engines, wheels, and accessories, fabricating difficulties have prevented its development for primary construction.

Announcement of the discovery was made by Thomas E. Piper, a Northrop process engineer, in an address before the American Welding society. He said the welding method had made possible simplified manufacturing processes, "eliminating the use of hundreds of thousands of rivets that go into the conventional plane."

Full details are being made available to other American aircraft manufacturers, Northrop said.

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE.

What information do you have on Illinois Bell Telephone 2¾ per cent first mortgage bonds?—D. S.

Answer: Illinois Bell Telephone company 2¾ per cent first mortgage bonds are outstanding in the sum of 50 million dollars and, with the exception of $5,058,585 in 4 per cent notes sold to the trustee of the company pension fund, represent the company's only funded debt.

The bonds were issued in January last year under a refunding program and are secured by a first lien on substantially all physical properties, rights, franchises, leases, and contracts of the company in Illinois owned at the time of the issuance or subsequently acquired. The security has a book value substantially in excess of the amount of bonds outstanding. The company has a six year average for covering its fixed charges of 7.62 times.

The bonds are redeemable in whole or in part at any time on 30 days' notice at 108 thru January, 1946, and at decreasing premiums in subsequent years. The issue is listed on the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges. Prices ranged on the New York exchange from 100 to 105 last year.

NO DIVIDEND ACTION.

Answer: Commonwealth & Southern corporation gave the following reasons for omitting dividend action on the preferred shares last month: Uncertainties over pending tax proposals, cash requirements of subsidiaries for expanding facilities for war purposes, and possible results of the Securities and Exchange commission's order directing that the corporation be recapitalized into one class of common stock.

NONVOTING ISSUES.

Answer: Since 1926 the New York Stock exchange has refused to list common stocks which have no voting rights.

NOT NECESSARY.

I recently purchased a War Savings bond and the address of the beneficiary was omitted. Must the address be written on the bond?—S. W.

Answer: No.

PLANE MAKERS SHARE SECRETS TO WIN THE WAR

Establish Clearing House for Ideas.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A new form of industrial collaboration is arising out of the war. In the aircraft industry, where the keenest rivalry existed, trade secrets are now the common property of all manufacturers.

A comparatively new industry in which special emphasis is given to development and research is leading the way in the free exchange of engineering data. If any single manufacturer possesses any special "know-how" in manufacturing technique and other production problems, that knowledge is available to others in the industry. In some instances percy effective.

Work Out Problems.

As a clearing agency for the exchange of information, the leading manufacturers whose plants are located on the Pacific coast organized the Aircraft War Production Council, Inc., a nonprofit organization. A group of company presidents directs the work of the council. Under this group are seven functional committees that work on specific problems such as production, materiel, engineering and standards, and transportation and housing.

After two months of operation the council is described by the leaders in the industry as an outstanding success.

How the organization has functioned to speed up overall production of the industry was related yesterday by John C. Lee, manager of the council.

Lee Cites Instances.

"When a company building a new twin-engined bomber recently faced delays pending experimentation with landing gear, another company in the council promptly sent over its proved data complete with blueprints of its successful gear," he said. "The contribution saved the government thousands of dollars—but more important—it saved thousands of man hours."

Another example:

In the field of aerodynamics, a manufacturer opened his records on such important matters as cooling tests, vibration, fuel systems, vapor locks, flight tests, and flying characteristics of all its models. The company making available this data to other manufacturers is one of the largest and most successful airplane builders.

Patents Not Involved.

The interchange of information, Lee explained, has nothing to do with patents which have been exchanged freely in the industry for many years. It is concerned primarily with methods, materiel, and machine time.

A procedure has been set up to relieve critical material shortages that may develop at any particular plant location. A company that has a temporary surplus of parts will share it with another that is short. When one company does work for another, a strict no-profit rule is adhered to.

Manufacturers comprising the council are Consolidated, Douglas, Lockheed, North American, Northrop, Ryan, Vega, and Vultee. Boeing, another Pacific coast manufacturer, maintains liaison with the council.

The exchange of data, however, goes beyond the membership of the council. The work is projected nationally thru the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and thru contacts with other industries, the armed services, and government agencies.

NATIONAL INCOME AT RECORD RATE IN FIRST QUARTER

Washington, D. C., June 18 [Special].—National income for the first three months of this year reached the record annual rate of 108 billion, 800 million dollars, the department of commerce reported today.

"In actual dollars," the report said, "total national income aggregated 25 billion, 700 million in the first quarter of 1942, compared with 20 billion, 800 million, and 26 billion, 500 million, respectively, in the first and final quarters of 1941. The decrease from the final quarter of last year is a reflection of seasonal factors which are eliminated in computing the annual rate of 108 billion in the first quarter of 1942.

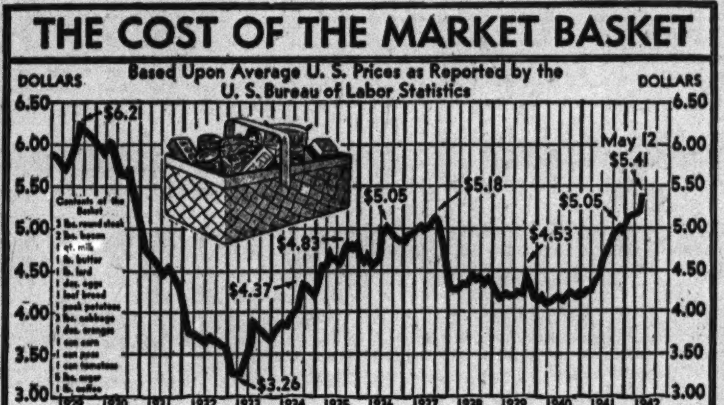
"Corporate savings, representing net profits after deduction of cash dividends as well as taxes, are estimated at a half billion dollars for the first quarter of this year. This compares with a figure of about the same magnitude in the first and last quarters of 1941."

Bank Clearings Climb 12.4 Per Cent in Week

New York, June 18 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today bank clearings this week were strongly higher than last, but only slightly above comparable totals a year ago. The agency said volume for 23 leading cities in the week ended June 17 was $7,170,990,000, a rise of 12.4 per cent from the preceding week, and off 1.4 per cent from the corresponding 1941 week. Chicago volume at $445,600,000 was off 3.7 per cent from 1941.

Senate Confirms Illinois Man for Tariff Commission

Washington, June 18 [Special].—The senate today confirmed the nomination of Lynn R. Edminster, Chillicothe, Ill., to be a member of the tariff commission succeeding the late Raymond B. Stevens.



Hits Contract Repudiation in Price Control

New York, June 18 (AP).—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers charged tonight the emergency price control act was being used to repudiate government contracts, and appealed to congress to remedy "this very serious situation."

Arthur Besse, association president, told reporters that a memorandum had been sent to all members of both houses of congress because that body "can amend the act or force the Office of Price administration to honor government contracts."

Hits Power to Void Terms.

Besse said he did not believe congress "knew it was giving Leon Henderson [price administrator] power to override government contracts when it passed the price bill."

The contracts in question, the memorandum said, had been entered into in good faith prior to the issuance of price regulations relating to certain woolen products for the armed forces.

"Not only is such a repudiation of existing government contracts unthinkable from the point of view of public morality," the association said, "but the adoption of such a policy means that any new undertakings by the government are likewise subject to repudiation."

Criticizes Ceiling Formula.

The memorandum criticized particularly price regulation No. 157, issued June 3, providing for a special method of figuring price ceilings on certain textile products.

"If the terms of government contracts are not to be observed," it said, "the standing and effectiveness of permanent organizations of the government such as the quartermaster corps of the army and the bureau of supplies and accounts of the navy will be seriously jeopardized.

"Altho this special formula [in regulation No. 157] provides for some measure of financial relief for those holding government contracts, such relief operates unevenly and haphazardly as between different concerns, and what is more important, necessitates a repudiation of countless government contracts, especially in the war department."

CHANGE IN POLICY AIDS TRANSFERS IN WAR INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., June 18 [Special].—An amendment to the government's automobile industry labor transfer policy designed to facilitate employment of workers at their top skills was announced jointly today by Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission, and Donald M. Nelson, chairman of WPB.

Under the original policy announced last Sept. 17 by the Office of Production Management, a former employer could recall a worker to his original job on one week's notice. If the worker did not answer he would lose seniority rights with the original employer. This had the effect of disrupting essential war occupations in new plants, especially where the worker had been retained for a new job in the new plants.

The statement directs that workers originally from nonwar plants who have been fully trained by new employers for new jobs may, if they choose, stay with their new employers, retaining their accumulated seniority rights, unless they are offered jobs by their former employers which will utilize their newly acquired skills.

STORE VOLUMES ABOUT STEADY WITH YEAR AGO

Dollar volume of department store sales in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district last week was approximately the same as a year ago, with small gains in the larger cities offsetting declines in others, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Chicago volume was up 1 per cent.

Compared with the preceding week, sales declined 13 per cent over the district and 14 per cent in Chicago. In each case the decline was larger than usual for the period. For the four weeks ended June 13, compared with the corresponding 1941 period, district sales declined 2 per cent and Chicago sales 6 per cent.

Farm Price Dip Lowers Wholesale Staples Index

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—A dip of 1.3 per cent in the average price of farm products lowered the wholesale commodity price index 0.3 of a point last week to 98.4 per cent of the 1926 average, the labor department reported today.

Northwest Airlines Sets Express Record in May

Northwest Airlines planes carried 103,930 pounds of express last month, a new monthly record for the company, Croil Hunter, president, reported yesterday. This was almost double the 54,308 pounds carried in May, 1941.

HALT RISE IN LIVING COSTS

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson reported today that, for the first time since November, 1940, the steady rise in living costs had come to a standstill—actually declining slightly—and he credited the government's over-all ceiling on retail prices.

Henderson declared that a special survey of 21 cities, made by the bureau of labor statistics for the period from May 15 to June 2, showed that "if we are really serious about it, the battle against inflation can be won."

From the outbreak of the war in Europe until imposition of the general maximum price regulation May 18, the cost of living had climbed 17½ per cent, his office said.

The survey showed the greatest reported decline came in rents, which OPA reported had dropped 1.2 per cent as the result of or in anticipation of rent freezing regulations. Clothing prices also declined ½ of 1 per cent while food prices increased 3-10 of 1 per cent.

The ceiling prices must be backstopped, Henderson said, by a reduction in consumer buying power, including increased savings, more purchases of war bonds, higher taxes, and stabilization of wages and farm prices.

Silver Loans, Sale to Allies for Coin Asked

Washington, D. C., June 18 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau told a meeting of the senate special silver committee today he desired permission to make this country's silver available to friendly foreign nations for coinage.

Requests are coming from other countries, including Great Britain and Australia, the secretary said, Britain asking about 2,500,000 ounces a month. Morgenthau said the treasury had about 5 million ounces that could be made available under the lend-lease law, but desired an expression from congress before acting.

Suggests $1 an Ounce Price.

Chairman Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] of the committee announced after the meeting that he proposed to offer to dispose of 500 million ounces of silver to other countries for $1 per ounce, then buy the same amount of American mined silver at that price.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] suggested in the meeting that the silver might be sold at $1.29 an ounce, its treasury book value, but Morgenthau said that would not be possible.

The Coloradan observed that rather than depreciate the price of silver, he would prefer to lend it rather than sell it, "but we must have assurance of getting it back ounce for ounce."

Pays Double World Price.

Under the silver purchase program the treasury is required to pay 71.11 cents an ounce—about double the world market level—for silver newly mined in the United States.

The meeting, an executive session, covered a wide discussion of silver problems, but no conclusions were reached, McCarran said, and "nothing is yet settled."

The discussion also covered the question of "nonconsumptive use" of pledged silver in the treasury to replace copper in industry. Morgenthau previously asked congressional permission to make such use of silver now backing silver certificates. Unpledged silver already is being used in war industry.

Others at the meeting were Senators Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], Eugene D. Millikin [R., Colo.], and John Thomas [R., Idaho], and a staff of treasury experts.

Continued Advertising Held Vital

Presidents and other top executives of 45 of the state's principal business organizations who make up the directorate of the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday urged business nationally to continue advertising "for the duration" as a means for maintaining a free press, free enterprise and "fundamental rights of the public."

The board's unanimous action, which followed an investigation into advertising's effect on the public and on the publishing industry, was based on the necessity of continuing advertising as a means of acquainting the public with the necessary changes incident to wartime economy.

Need Press as Check.

Sterling Morton, president of the association, declared the continued existence of a virile press is vital as a check on governmental excesses and as an instrument for achieving victory with the least disruption of normal life.

"Over the years," the association's statement said, "advertising has proved itself to be a powerful economic force in the progress and development of the nation's economy with our government operating under a free enterprise system.

"In this war emergency, it has the job of teaching easy living Americans how to live in an all-out war nation. Advertising built the people up to luxury life; it will now have to let them down easily into the lean life ahead."

Fight Unsound Proposals.

The directors called attention to newspaper support of the association's "opposition to unsound and uneconomic proposals, governmental and private, which were calculated to impose unnecessary burdens or restrictions" on business and the public, and said:

"If we are to succeed in procuring relief from unduly high federal, state, and local tax burdens, it will be necessary to have the support of newspapers, especially those of smaller communities, whose life blood flows thru channels of advertising."

INTERLAKE IRON BOOSTING BLAST FURNACE OUTPUT

The Interlake Iron corporation announced yesterday that pig iron capacity at its South Chicago plant has been increased to meet rising war needs and that when present alterations are completed the unit's capacity will be stepped up by 100,000 tons annually.

One of the two blast furnaces at the plant has been undergoing enlarging and relining, the company said. Further alterations are planned for the second furnace, together with installation of a sintering plant.

The company said additional installations are scheduled at its Toledo, O., plant which will increase production by about 40,000 net tons. All alterations and additions are being financed by the company.

PETROLEUM USE CALLED BEST IN MAKING RUBBER

Chemists Say Farm Alcohol Is Costly.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

It is cheaper and easier to make Buna S synthetic rubber—the type to which the government is largely committed under its synthetic rubber program—out of raw materials derived from petroleum than from alcohol derived from farm products, Chicago petroleum chemists said yesterday.

The petroleum men base their assertion on the cost of raw materials going into butadiene—the principal ingredients in Buna S—and in the ability of the petroleum industry to start at a point further advanced in the production of butadiene than can the alcohol industry.

"The cost of making Buna S, from the standpoint of operations and raw materials at current prices, is very much higher if you start with alcohol than if you start with butylene," one oil company research official said. "This may be extremely important in considering the manufacture of Buna S from a long range point of view."

Yield Same; Cost Higher.

The pound yield of butadiene from either alcohol or butylene is about the same. But, according to oil men, the cost of alcohol is about six times that of the petroleum product. [The price of commercial alcohol approximates 50 to 58 cents a gallon.]

The oil men were asked to state their position regarding the controversy in congress over the synthetic rubber program. The farm bloc is asking more extensive use of alcohol made from farm products in the manufacture of butadiene.

Butadiene—which comprises 75 per cent of the makeup of Buna S, the other 25 per cent being styreme—may be made directly from butylene, a petroleum derivative, or ethyl alcohol, which may be made from a variety of farm products, including grain, sugar, molasses, potatoes, etc.

Quick Start Essential.

The oil men said that the big thing is to get the synthetic rubber production started. If it can be demonstrated that farm products alcohol can do the better job, then that material should be used in preference to petroleum derivatives. They added, however, that the evidence at hand indicates the job can be done cheaper and faster with petroleum derivatives.

Construction of huge plants to produce synthetic rubber in vast quantities is something new for American industry, the oil men continued. Consequently it is difficult to give exact estimates as to construction costs because as the production of synthetic rubber progresses better methods will be developed which will require changes. Trial and error, it was said, likely will play an important part in bringing synthetic rubber to the same high degree of development as has been attained by natural rubber.

Plant Costs About Equal.

Starting with plant costs, expenditures on butadiene plants would probably be about the same whether alcohol or butylene were used.

To make ethyl alcohol the products of the farm must go thru the various processes required to convert them into alcohol. And the alcohol must be a high proof product—close to 100 per cent pure alcohol. Expensive distilling and rectifying equipment is required to accomplish this.

The practice in the petroleum industry in the past has been to produce butane and butylene in the process of cracking petroleum. The next step was the conversion of butylene into aviation gasoline. Under this method there was insufficient butylene to provide for butadiene production, necessitating the conversion of butane into butylene.

One Step Eliminated.

Now the oil industry has worked out a process whereby the butane step is eliminated in the production of the required amount of butylene. Facilities being built for the production of new aviation gasoline make it possible to go directly from petroleum thru more intensive cracking of crude petroleum.

The oil men said that were it possible to start directly with pure rectified alcohol in the manufacture of butadiene the cost of the equipment required would probably be about as much as that for making butadiene out of butylene. But the alcohol is more expensive than butylene under present conditions.

STOCKS DECLINE ON CHINA, AFRICA WAR DISPATCHES

Light Profit Taking Stems Climb Begun Wednesday.

New York, June 18 (AP).—Light profit taking, inspired partly by the cloudier war news from Libya and China, today served to stem the general stock market swing which got under way in the latter part of Wednesday's session.

Nelson Action Has Effect.

Sentiment was added to a certain extent by War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson's recommendations for lower excess profits taxes than those proposed for corporations. The Japanese drive in the orient and British withdrawals in Africa, however, provided some customers with arguments for lightening commitments.

Prominent stocks lower included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, J. I. Case, Westinghouse Electric, Johns-Manville, General Electric, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Goodrich, Woolworth, Deere, and Western Union.

CHICAGO PRICES FIRM.

A firm price trend continued yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in transactions of 13,000 shares. Of 84 issues traded, 41 advanced, 23 declined, and 20 closed unchanged. Brown Fence & Wire, volume leader, was unchanged at 1¾. Berghoff Brewing, Commonwealth Edison, and General Motors, other more active stocks, closed ⅛ higher.

Heavy Butter, Egg Supply Causes Decline in Futures

Heavy receipts of butter and eggs and the unsettling effects of a speech by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard against inflation were given as causes for declines in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. The November butter contract closed .2 cent lower at 37½ cents a pound. The October egg delivery was down .1 cent to 33.7 cents a dozen.

FIRE INSURANCE FIRMS PAY OUT MORE IN LOSSES

Illinois Companies Show Increase in Business.

Fire and marine insurance companies did 13.9 per cent more business in Illinois last year than in 1940, but paid out 19.5 per cent more in losses, Paul F. Jones, director of the Illinois department of insurance, reported yesterday.

Net premium volume was $77,948,602, compared with $67,055,165 a year before, Jones said. Losses paid during the year to Illinois policy holder aggregated $34,851,238, against $28,055,456 in 1940. The companies wrote $16,661,627,597 of net risks in Illinois during the year, a gain of 14.6 per cent over the 1940 figure of $14,219,508,858.

Combined admitted assets increased $102,246,461 during the year to $2,812,013,685, but surplus funds set aside for policy holders, including capital stock of the stock companies, declined $64,259,546 to $1,466,831,700, he said.

Illinois companies had strong gains, the report showed. Net risks written by Illinois stock companies in the state increased 33 per cent to $110,807,226, while mutual companies increased their total 23.4 per cent to $428,880,100. Premiums written in the state by the stock companies totaled $1,078,362, up 41 per cent from 1940, and by mutual companies amounted to $3,046,464, up 20.9 per cent.

Illinois stock companies paid out $431,220 in net losses within the state, a 32 per cent increase, while the total for the Illinois mutual companies within the state was $1,078,317, a 13.1 per cent gain.

ALL GRAINS DROP; PROCESSORS BUY HEAVILY IN CORN

Wickard Attack on Farm Bloc Induces Selling.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Manufacturers of corn products bought around a quarter of a million bushels of corn yesterday for Chicago shipment to convert into sugars, sirups, starches, and other materials essential to the war program.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1 cent lower with the July at $1.20¼ a bushel. Corn was down ¼ to ⅜ cent; oats, ⅛ to ¼ cent; rye, ½ to ⅝ cent, and soy beans, ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel.

General Movement Near.

With new wheat arriving on the Kansas City market from Kansas and Oklahoma, traders made ready for the general crop movement. So far the market has had little hedging pressure as most of the new grain has gone into storage under government loans.

County Agricultural Adjustment administration offices in Illinois announced that federal wheat marketing cards are now available for producers who planted allotted acreage. Each farmer must have a card to sell his wheat. If he planted more than allotted he must pay a penalty of 57 cents a bushel on all excess wheat before he can sell.

Hedging operations in connection with the larger bookings of corn were transacted without much effect on the market. Much of the corn bought was reported sold from stocks of another grain industry. Some of it was winter shelled corn that was being shipped from country elevators before hot weather could put it out of condition, grain traders said.

Purchases Are Heavy.

While yesterday's corn purchases were the largest in several days, grain men say that the industries require around 350,000 bushels of corn a day. If they do not buy their full quota one day, they must make it up the next. Altogether they grind between 10 and 11 million bushels of corn a month.

Altho soy bean futures reversed recent sharp advances to dip around 2 cents at one time, higher prices were paid in cash sales. No. 1 and 2 yellow soy beans sold in the cash market at $1.76½ a bushel, up ¾ cent from the preceding day. Oats and rye followed the trends of other grains.
